Lower Valley Int'l Bridge meeting

A public meeting to discuss the Tornillo/Guadalupe International Bridge application will be held at 10 a.m. on Friday, Feb. 14, at the TxDOT's El Paso District Office, 13301 Gateway West. The application for the international bridge was submitted Dec. 23 of last year by El Paso County for review by TxDOT before being submitted to the U.S. State Department. Written comments on the application will be accepted through Feb. 28, and should be mailed to James L. Randall, P.E., Director, Transportation Planning and Programming Division, 125 E. 11th Street in Austin, TX 78701-2483. Texas, which shares the largest land border with Mexico of some 1,254 miles, has 26 international bridges and border crossings into Mexico and five rail-only crossings.

Rural traffic

STEP (Special Traffic Enforcement Program), a federally funded program administered by the Texas Department of Transportation, allows state and local law enforcement agencies to put additional officers on the road to focus on specific violations. The program will run through Sept. 30 this year. DPS chose to run the program in counties with rural areas that showed large numbers of DWI-related and speeding-related crashes. El Paso County — in its rural areas — had 86 DWI-related crashes and 250 speeding-related crashes in 2000, according to preliminary DPS crash figures. "Motorists will frequently encounter a DPS trooper who is working on the STEP program in this county," said Major Tim Thompson, who oversees the program. "We're asking motorists to slow down, wear your seatbelts and drive sober — every day."

San Eli jail

San Elizario will get $75,000 in matching funds from the County of El Paso to move ahead with a $105,000 project to renovate the historic San Elizario Jail, now estimated to be about 125 years old. The El Paso County Sheriff's Dept. will also apparently use the jail for a museum to showcase their history as well. The project is supposed to take about a year to complete.

Socorro seniors get affordable housing

Rules of order for council under consideration

By Arleen Beard
Special to the Courier

SOCORRO — Ms. Rose Garcia, president of Tierra del Sol, brought the Socorro City Council up to date regarding some affordable housing for senior citizens at the regularly scheduled City Council meeting on Feb. 6.

A non-profit organization known as Tierra Del Sol Housing Corporation purchased a 6.49 acre tract of land located in the Three Missions Subdivision off of North Loop in Socorro in response to a survey conducted by a Denver firm surveying the need for affordable housing and improved housing for senior citizens.

The survey, conducted in 1999 and updated in 2000, determined there were 369 senior respondents expressing a need for improved housing conditions. Tierra del Sol was able to obtain $2,349,300 in financing from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in order to build 41 units of senior housing known as the Missions Senior Community.

Construction for these units began around nine months ago and will be ready in March. The 41 units are being constructed in 3.4 acres of the tract of land. The application process for interested residents should begin. Eligibility requirements for occupancy include that the applicant is 62 years of age or older; immigration status verified; police and credit reports required; and birth certificate. Projected rents pending approval from HUD will be approximately $245 per month. The rents paid by tenants are calculated at 30 percent of adjusted annual income. Utility assistance is also provided for eligible persons.

The initial 41 units comprise Phase I of the project and Tierra del Sol is hoping to continue Phase II which would include 16 to 38 more units of senior apartments and a 5,120 square foot senior citizen multipurpose center. Garcia said Tierra del Sol is asking the City of Socorro to provide them with a letter of support to potential funding sources, i.e., Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and/or the U.S. Development of Agriculture. They would also like assistance from the City Council to testify, if necessary, at public hearings and to actively advocate for the financing resources.

In other council business, it was noted that over the past years, City Council meetings in Socorro have been conducted without establishing rules of order though it is common practice for governing entities to establish and implement rules to bring order at the meetings.

Since Socorro City Council has no specific rules of order established for their meetings and they have experienced some unfortunate behavior and unruly conduct by members of the audience, causing the meetings to be unnecessarily lengthy. Some types of unruly conduct experienced at these meetings include addressing City Council on certain agenda items without a designated time limit, speaking out of turn from the seats or insisting to speak on an agenda item without having signed up for the item in question.

City Representative Gary Gandara said he is concerned about these issues and asked to council to have the item of rules be addressed. City Attorney Dominguez has begun to investigate the type of rules that would best suit the City of Socorro Council meetings. He has looked into other city's governing entities rules of order, such as that of San Antonio, Texas.

Bernardo Frescas, community member, mentioned to City Council he would like to see the most commonly used "Roberts' Rules" of Order to be utilized by City Council. Council members said that though they feel "Roberts Rules" is an option, they would like to research all avenues available, or maybe establish their own Rules of Order. City Attorney Dominguez was directed by City Council to continue researching the matter to be discussed at a later meeting.

City Council approved a student for internship for the City Planning Department to be under the supervision of Reyes Fierro.

City Council took action approving and allowing Connie Ruiz, Personnel Director, to initiate actions to do an assessment of the city's information systems needs. This action would allow Ruiz to recruit assistance professionally from a systems expert and hopefully eliminate any problems being experienced with the current system. Some of those problems include losing valuable information, inability to access

Statistics show fires twice as likely to claim a life in manufactured homes as in other types of dwelling

EL PASO COUNTY — Fires in manufactured homes claim the lives of 500 Americans each year and injure 1,000 more. Many of these fires are caused by heating and electrical system malfunctions and improper storage of combustibles.

The United States Fire Administration (USFA) would like consumers to know that there are simple steps you can take to prevent the loss of life and property in home fires.

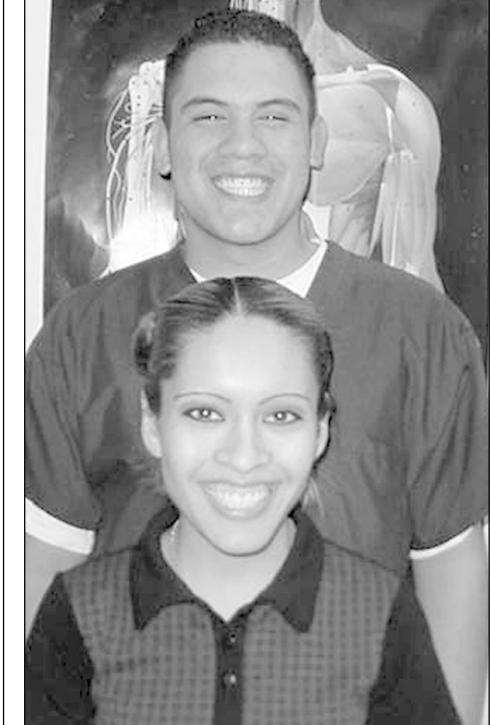

During a typical year, manufactured homes account for 22,000 fires, hundreds of deaths and $200 million in property losses. An estimated 11 million Americans live in manufactured homes, where fire deaths occur at twice the rate of fire deaths in other types of homes.

Young children account for more than one-fifth of all fire deaths in manufactured homes. A recent study of rural fires showed that smoke alarms were less likely to be present or operating in manufactured homes.

San Elizario HOSA students qualify for state

By Phillip Cortez
Special to the Courier

EAST EL PASO COUNTY — San Elizario High School's Brenda Acevedo has a clear vision about her future, which is a good thing because as a participant in the school's Health Occupations Students of America (HOSA) program, excelling in vision screening has earned the senior a trip to state, April 10-12, 2003 in Dallas.

Acevedo took first place in the Clinical Specialties category at the Area IV HOSA Competition in Lubbock, Texas, and joining her in Dallas is Jonathan Grijalva, a junior, who took third in the same category. Both Acevedo and Grijalva were required to submit videotapes that demonstrated two specialty skills and a portfolio.

"I demonstrated setting up and conducting HOTV screening and the tumbling 'E' screening," Acevedo said. Both demonstrations are vision-screening tests.

Meanwhile, Grijalva demonstrated cover slipping (the covering of slides) and numbering specimens. According to both students, even though it only took a couple of days to shoot their respective video presentations, the nerves began to set in once the record button was pushed.

"It took me lots of takes," Grijalva laughed. "I was just really nervous."

"It took him like five minutes to put his gloves on," Acevedo added in more laughter.

Nobody, however, could blame the San Elizario HOSA students for being nervous. According to Mathilda Mirabal, the school's HOSA teacher, this was the first time she had taken a group of students from San Elizario to competition. Aside from Acevedo and Grijalva, the Biomedical Debate Team (Claudia Arias, Maira Avalos, Vienna Sanchez) placed 4th and made it to the finals, Career Health (Miriam Baca, Diana Borrego) placed 4th, Medical Spelling (Liz

Worse than television

I always thought that television was the worst possible time consuming medium in the world. I was wrong.

When I was a kid we didn't get a TV in our house until I was already in junior high. Even then it didn't make a very big dent in my life because the screen was little more than a blur of black and white snow. My parents could hear the news commentator through the static, but it had little other entertainment value.

Living way out in the country, cable wasn't available and satellite disks hadn't yet come into vogue.

Later on, though, things got more complicated. TV screens nowadays are as big as your living room window, the picture is more clear than real life, and you can receive a jillion channels of trash TV even if you live way up on the mountain in Tibet. You could spend every moment of your life watching television and never watch up all the programming that is cheerfully billed each month by your provider.

Therefore, many of us seem obligated to watch it, although I suspect some of us do it because it lets us escape our own lives and gets us off the hook of having to deal with our own problems.

So what could be more time consuming than that? The telephone? Shopping? A good book, maybe?

No. It's a baby.

Now babies consume a lot of time in their care and tending, changing those nasty nappies and worrying about whether that stubborn two-year-old is consuming enough nutrients to survive another 24 hours.

But I'm not talking about caring for a baby. I mean watching one.

Funny thing is that they are more mesmerizing than the latest Columbo murder mystery. They're more entertaining than World's Funniest Home Videos and more endearing than The Andy Griffith Show.

I know a couple whose daughter and husband were living with them when their first child was born. The family consisted of grandmother, grandfather, and two uncles and an aunt of teen age, in addition to the baby's parents.

Now, I don't know how that family managed to meet their basic physical needs to survive because they all spent every waking moment staring into the baby's sleeping — or, oh joy! — wakeful face, searching like gold miners for any change in expression, blink of eye, curl of tiny lip.

I'm not much better. My youngest grandson spends several days a week with me since his mother started college. He takes a good bit of watching to keep him out of the cat litter, from turning on the knobs on the kitchen stove, and from taking my alarm clock outside and dumping it in the dog's water.

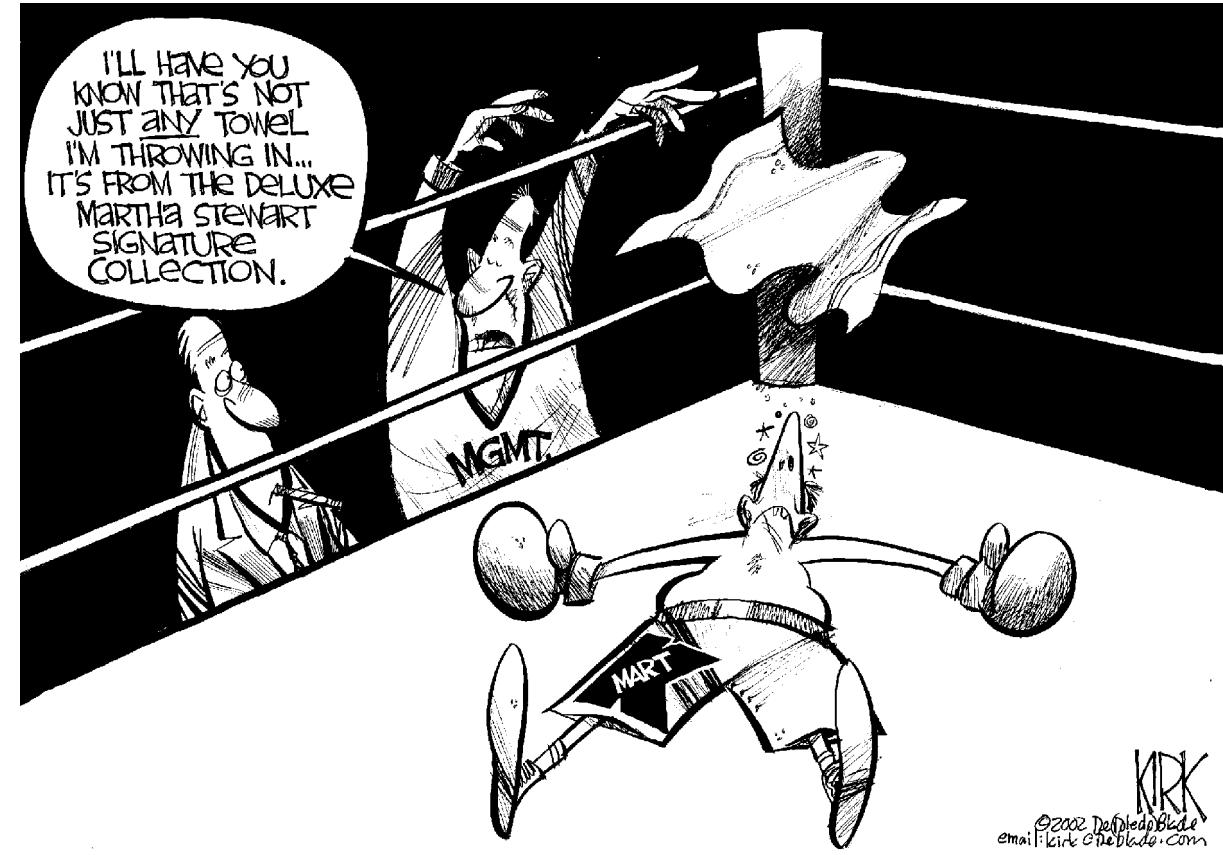

But more than that, he is just downright interesting.

It looks like I'd get over it, especially after watching four of my own before my two grandsons came along. But I'm not the only one. Our whole household can, and does, come to a complete stop when the youngest member does something momentous like line up bouncy balls along the wall in correct sequence of size, successfully climb into the high chair without assistance, or emerge dripping and smiley with a funny wet hairdo from an evening bath.

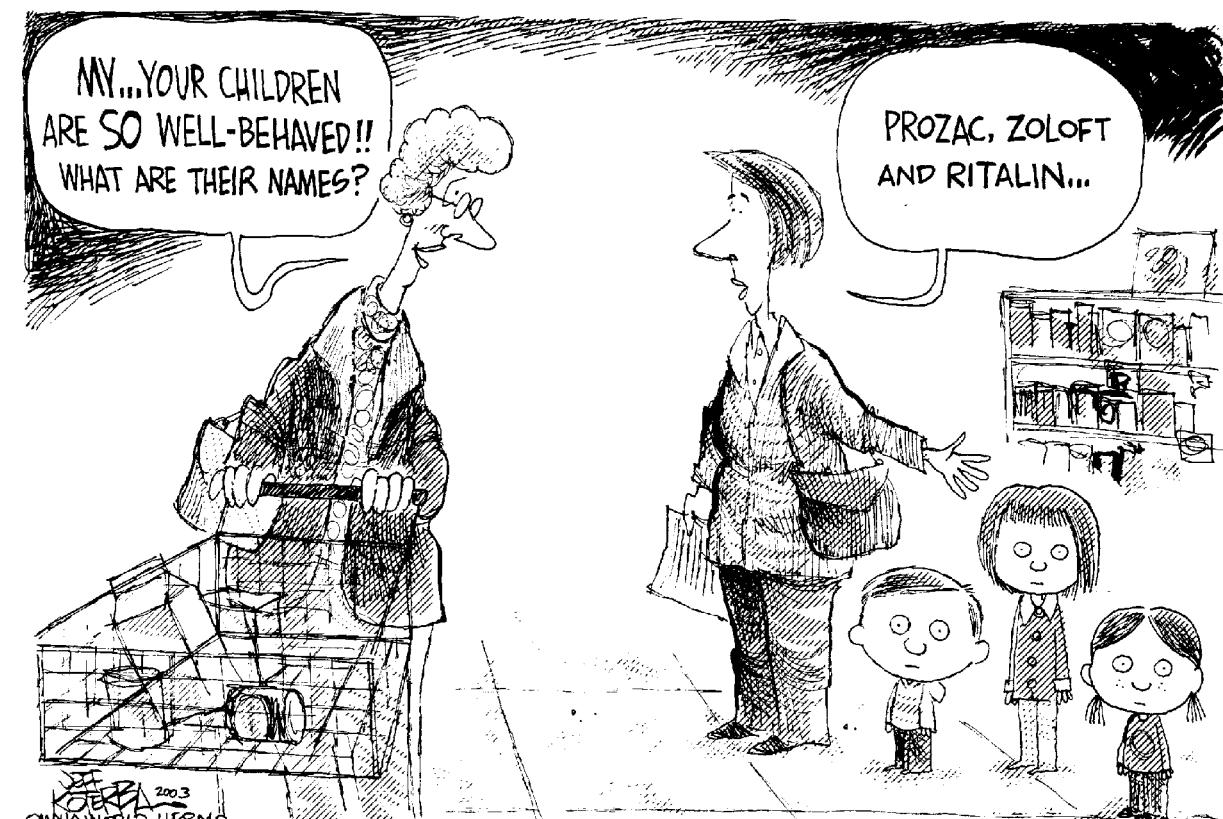

A dancing two-year-old or a baby in a kissing mood are guaranteed show-stoppers.

So why is that so interesting? It's hard to say. For me it is watching a

Reyes Reports By U.S. Rep. Silvestre Reyes

Bush-proposed budget will hurt social services

In the new $2.23 trillion budget proposed by President Bush, he wants to nudge operation of social services to state governments while cutting some programs and mandating more proof to show eligibility for public assistance.

That would affect housing and unemployment, health insurance and — no surprise! — Head Start.

While also looking to make cuts in numerous programs, such as "community services" grants for poor neighborhoods, the president also wants nearly $1.5 trillion in tax cuts for the wealthy and intends to shrink social spending for the near future.

White House officials justify the changes, saying the cuts would actually help the poor better than direct government aid by accelerating quicker economic growth, raising wages and adding to the workforce.

R. Glenn Hubbard, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, basically considers the "pro-investment tax policy" as Bush's version of an anti-poverty program.

But Hubbard is departing from the White House at a date uncertain. As the architect of the president's $364 billion poised cut on investment dividends, he was passed over as the choice for Deputy Treasury Secretary in the wake of Kenneth W. Dam's exit.

Hubbard kept his New York home and commutes to Washington. His apparent successor is N. Gregory Mankiw, a Harvard University economist.

Meanwhile, Democrats hesitate to leave town with assaults on Head Start, low-income housing, health insurance for the poor and community services still targeted.

While everyone was trying to figure out when the attacks on Iraq would start, people are wondering now how local Washington Post columnist Al Kamen figured out when the shooting would stop!

Kamen pegged his date on the basis of the Army's award of a $12 million 'firm-fixed- price contract' to a South Carolina company for a 'regional heavy lift for 305 trucks and buses.'

Supposedly, they are needed for a job in Kuwait which has to be finished by March 27.

He goes on to say that if March 27 was the completion date, then he pegged the date for attack to be in "a few days, and allowing a week or so for the dust to settle, that would put the first cruise missiles flying in, absolute latest, early March." Interesting...

Meanwhile, some of the heavily-promoted new programs being touted by President Bush appear to be worth less than the tout.

Take a red pencil to AIDS funding, mentoring and homeland security, and it doesn't add up to his promises.

The president wowed everyone recently, saying he wanted Congress to spend $1.2 billion to put hydrogen-powered cars in the showroom.

But a fact sheet from the White House later showed $720 million of the $1.2 billion would come from "new funding." The remaining 40-percent is what the government is already spending on hydrogen fuel-cell development.

Looks like more colorful repackaging to hide his preferred intentions to expand energy drilling. Critics are calling it a "shell game," but President Bush's defenders say, no, it's for real.

And, he said he wanted to spend $15 billion to fight AIDS overseas over five years with $10 billion in new funds. But his 2004 budget calls for spending $1 billion — and $450 million in new funding.

Eye on D.C. By U.S. Rep. Henry Bonilla

American heart month Get in on the action

Heart attack, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases remain the number one killer in the United States. On an average day in Texas, 150 Texans die due to cardiovascular diseases and stroke. Heart disease has affected my family and, chances are, it may affect many of yours too.

Every year since 1963, February has been designated American Heart Month. This month is the time to learn more about cardiovascular disease detection, prevention and treatment. The American Heart Association has designated this year's educational message as "Get in on the Action!," urging Americans to make physical activity a part of their daily lives.

There are a few simple things we can all do to reduce the risk of heart disease. Exercising regularly is an important step. We all enjoy some form of exercise. So, whether it's horseback riding, jogging, walking or bike riding, help keep your heart healthy and "just do it!" Other easy approaches to control heart disease include eating a diet low in fat and high in fiber, and controlling stress.

One of the myths surrounding heart attack and stroke is that it is a "male disease." Wrong. Heart attack and stroke do not discriminate. In fact, heart attack, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases remain the number one killer of American females.

Research and education are key to battling and preventing heart disease. Today, the chances of saving a life and reducing disability from heart disease and stroke are better than ever because of research done in our lifetime. Important discoveries such as life-extending drugs, bypass surgery and pacemakers, have improved the lives of many heart patients. But the fight against heart disease is far from over.

Hopefully, with more heart disease research and better education, fewer Texans will fall victim to the disease this year. As with any other health problem, please consult a physician immediately if you, or someone you know, shows any sign of a heart problem. For now, as we remember American Heart Awareness Month this February, get in on the action and increase your physical activity!

For more information or questions concerning prevention or treatment of heart disease, please call the Texas chapter of the American Heart Association (AHA) at 512/433-7220 or the San Antonio division of AHA at 210/614-4121.

For Sanity's Sake By Taprina Milburn

Team players

Until recently, I'd never paid much attention to the saying, "What doesn't kill you will make you stronger."

My family and I set out on an adventure during the kids' winter break. We were in Colorado, and my husband scheduled a snowmobile tour through the mountains.

After driving deep into a national forest one early morning to meet the tour, we found no sign of life, only a fleet of snow-covered snowmobiles.

The map showed an office up the mountain a few miles, so we decided to drive on to check in there. The snow was much deeper in this area than where we were staying in town, and when I glanced at the car's thermometer it gauged a negative 9 degrees F.

A few miles up we realized that our four-wheel-drive vehicle couldn't make it — and there was no way to turn around because the road was too narrow. So we began backing down slowly, but started sliding.

The car lodged itself into a snow bank.

My husband and I looked at each other, passing a lot of non-verbal messages: "D___!" "Don't panic." "What are we going to do now?"

When we got out of the car it was apparent just how lucky we were that we hit that snow bank. If we'd slid 2 more feet, we'd have fallen off the cliff.

The kids and I joined my husband, who was already on his knees digging out snow from the tires with an ice scraper, the only tool we had in the car. It took an hour to clear enough snow to create traction behind each tire. We backed up and got stuck again, which took another hour to clear.

We had a lot of time to talk, and we all admitted that this really wasn't how we wanted to spend the day. But we agreed that we'd have awesome stories to tell our friends and family. The kids seemed to understand the concept of being team players. The more we worked together as a team, the quicker we'd get off the mountain to find hot cocoa and hamburgers (I'd forgotten our lunches).

Warmth, food and chocolate are great motivators.

Two hours later we dislodged and safely backed a little more than a mile down the mountain.

As we did, our 7-year-old son casually remarked: "I hope when I get married that I don't marry a person who'd throw a fit if something like this happened. It wouldn't do any good; you'd still be stuck."

I was so grateful that his parents had been on their best behavior despite a stressful situation.

We didn't have our snowmobile adventure (we later learned there'd been a miscommunication about our reservations), but we did have an adventure in working together and being thankful for such things as a snow bank that prevented us from an awful accident, a family full of team players, and a wonderful, handy ice scraper.

I don't want to do it again, but if I had to, I'd pick the same team.

City Representative Joseph "Chito" Bowling brought up for discussion the need to have several streets repaired, weed infested lots to be attended to and also the need for more street lights. Reyes Fierro told Bowling the reason for the neglected street repairs is a matter of funding. Fierro elaborated on the fact of only being able to make pot-hole repairs. He is aware of the streets and their needs and wished he had a solution, but until there is more funding, the pot-hole repairs would continue. There will be an additional 60 plus street lights installed in the very near future, according to Fierro.

Canutillo Middle School seventh grade teams set new winning basketball tradition

UPPER VALLEY — Canutillo Middle School seventh grade boys basketball team and seventh grade girls basketball team captured their respective district titles during the recent El Paso County Basketball Tournaments. Both teams went up against strong Clint Middle School teams in the championship games.

The seventh grade boys' team defeated the Clint Cubs 22-18 in a see-saw battle played at Canutillo Middle School. The Canutillo boys' team finished the season with a 6-1 district record. This was the fourth time that Coach Mike Garcia has led his team to a district championship in the 13 years that he has been coaching at Canutillo Middle School.

The seventh grade girls' team defeated Clint Middle School by one point, 29-28, in the championship game that was played at San Elizario Middle School last week. After losing twice to Clint Middle by one point during the regular season, Canutillo girls rallied in the final period to score the only basket of the period for the win.

"I think this is the first time ever for both the seventh grade boys and girls to win the district basketball title in the same season," said Robert Marshall, coach for Canutillo seventh grade girls' team.

CLINT — Clint Junior High School has always been known for their basketball teams. However, no team has added to this prestige better than this year's 8th grade girl's team. The team not only finished undefeated in conference play, but also won the conference tournament. They completed the season with the Division I Lower Valley Conference Championship against Montwood Middle School on Saturday, Feb. 1 at Clint High School. Much smaller by comparison, Clint Junior High took the floor against a school that has four times the enrollment and had not lost a game in their two-year history. Consequently, the Lady Cubs proved their worth defeating powerhouse Montwood Middle School 40-38. Shown from left to right,

Notice of Intent To Change Rates

Texas Gas Service Company (the "Company"), formerly Southern Union Gas, gives notice of its intent to implement a new schedule of rates for approximately 7,835 customers in the environs of El Paso, Texas. The environs customers include approximately 7,311 residential, 485 commercial, 3 industrial, 33 public authority, and 3 transportation customers.

On September 24, 2002, the City of El Paso approved a revenue increase of $1,918,230 which was derived for the entire El Paso Service Area which includes the environs of El Paso. The environs share of this increase is approximately $77,886. The rates that the Company is proposing are identical to those approved by the City of El Paso on September 24, 2002 which became effective for meters read on or after September 24, 2002. The Company is asking that the rates for the environs become effective on March 25, 2003.

The proposed tariffs include increases in gas sales rates for all residential, commercial, industrial and public authority customers, and changes in the cost of gas, in the environs of the El Paso Service Area. The effect of the change in rates, when allowed, will be to increase the revenues of the Company by approximately 1.7 percent. Based on the proposed rate design, the average monthly residential bill of 45 Ccf will increase by approximately $0.64, or 2.1 percent, the average monthly commercial bill of 280 Ccf will increase approximately $2.12, or 1.3 percent, the average monthly public authority bill of 997 Ccf will increase approximately $6.15, or 1.1 percent, and the average monthly industrial bill of 2,625 Ccf will increase approximately $13.92, or 1 percent. The show doesn't go on for boomers

By Don Flood

Baby Boomers of the world, unite!

We have nothing to lose but our dignity!

I'm talking, of course, about Drew Cummings, who is leading what might be the most important crusade since Mr. Whipple led the struggle against squeezing the Charmin.

Cummings, a 50-year-old professor, stood in line for hours to audition for "American Idol," only to be told HE WAS TOO OLD!

Too old?

A spring chicken of a mere Half Century?

Naturally, he did what any red-blooded Baby Boomer would do when handed such an insult.

He filed suit.

Well, it's about time these young whippersnappers face the truth: Baby Boomers are NOT going to pushed off life's stage, by cracky.

We can still swivel our hips — with a little help from Motrin and Bengay — and we can still rock 'n' roll all night long — as long as we have a little nap and we're not up past 9 o'clock.

The problem is, advertisers no longer care about us. They worship young consumers.

(This is literally true. There is a church, Cathedral of the Young Consumers in Los Angeles, where advertisers actually pay homage and light candles to young shoppers, ages 18-34. OK, so I made that up, but it could be true.)

The result: an "American Idol" TV show where contestants must be between 16 and 24.

We can't even remember being between 16 and 24!

But couldn't they at least throw us a bone?

Instead of "American Idol," we could have a special Boomer edition of "American Could-Have-

Been-an Idol Maybe 25-30 Years Ago."

(Yeah, I know the title needs a little work.)

Which brings me to another new reality show, "Are You Hot: The Search for America's Sexiest People."

Now I don't want to cause unnecessary panic and alarm, but I have reason to believe this show, too, will engage in rampant and unbridled age discrimination!

OK, I'll admit, maybe "Are You Hot" wouldn't be the best show for Boomers.

But how about "Were You Hot A Couple of Decades Ago"?

But despite its vile and unfair age discrimination, there is something about this show I like: its honesty.

Susan Lyne, president of ABC Entertainment Television, said, "This is a show where intelligence, achievement have absolutely no bearing."

That says it all, doesn't it?

If only the Speaker of the House could go on C-Span and speak with such candor.

On the downside, "Are You Hot" will have guys like the one I saw on TV recently who was having implants placed in his calves.

(Note to farm boys: in his legs, silly, not his baby cows.)

He was subjecting himself to this operation because he thought everybody was looking at his skinny legs and laughing at him.

Yes, I wanted to yell at him, that's why I go to the gym, so I can laugh at guys with skinny legs! HA HA HA!

I mean, how self-absorbed can you get?

You'd think he was a Baby Boomer.
