Family Fun Week

El Paso County will join the rest of the country in celebrating "National Family Week," beginning 9:45 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 22 with a Family Walk at the El Paso Zoo, followed at 11 a.m. with a Family Fun Festival at the El Paso County Coliseum. The Family Walk, sponsored by Walk El Paso and the El Paso Zoo, is free to the first 300 persons who register between 9:45 a.m. and 10:30 a.m., when the walk begins at the zoo entrance. Families who wish to visit the Zoo on that day can do so at a special National Family Week discount price. The Family Fun Festival, sponsored by El Paso Sports Commission, Family Services of El Paso, and the "Strong Families, Strong Future" initiative, will begin at 11:00 a.m. at the Coliseum, featuring live entertainment from school groups, activity booths, health screenings, a giant slide with an obstacle course, door prizes, and other family activities. Admission to the festival is free. For more information about the event, contact Melodya Salaces, "Strong Families, Strong Future" coordinator at 834-8246 or msalaces@epcounty.com.

Fabens Center noted

The Fabens Head Start Center was recently honored for providing high-quality early childhood programs with accreditation from the largest early-childhood education accreditation system in the nation, the National Association for the Education of Young Children. The Fabens Center, under the direction of Socorro Rede, will celebrate the achievement on Nov. 19 at 9 a.m. at 300 NW CC Camp Street. Opening the ceremony will be Fabens ISD Superintendent Poncho Garcia, whose remarks will be followed with a balloon-release by children of the Center. "It gives me great satisfaction and pride for NAEYC representatives to validate what we know we are already doing," Rede said.

Darrington update

Effective Dec. 1 the traffic control light at the intersection of Darrington Road and Horizon Blvd. will not be operating. Instead, a four-way sign will be placed at this intersection for traffic control. In addition, there will be signs on both streets to remind drivers that they are approaching a four-way stop. These signs will be in place for about three months. Information: 852-1046.

Socorro ISD board votes unanimously to call for $188,686,000 bond election

EAST EL PASO COUNTY — The Socorro school district student population has doubled over the past 10 years. With no relief in sight, the Socorro ISD board of trustees considered final input on Tuesday night and cast a unanimous vote to bring a $188,680,000 bond election to voters of the district on Jan. 24.

When the final vote was taken, following a lively discussion of questions and answers, the packed house rose in a standing ovation.

The bond proposal will enable the district to build nine new schools, an Education Center and complete a number of additions, renovations and major improvements at existing campuses.

The bond was recommended by the SISD Facilities Advisory Committee made up of parents and community members. Superintendent Dr. Robert J. Duron said he is confident that the SISD voters as a whole understand the needs of the district, and several opportunities will be presented for public questions and answers.

Two public meetings will be held on Jan. 7, one at Socorro High at 6 p.m. and one at Americas at 7:30 p.m. Two more will follow on Jan. 8, at Montwood at 6 p.m. and at El Dorado at 7:30.

Community members with questions may call the Bond hotline at 937-BOND or visit www.sisd.net.

LVWD considers manager at special board meeting

EAST EL PASO COUNTY — The Lower Valley Water District held a special meeting on Monday, Nov. 17 with only one agenda item: to evaluate General Manager Arturo "Tury" Duran.

However, following an extensive period in executive session, the board adjourned after tabling the item.

The agenda item included the "review and possible action on terms of employment, to include compensation review, issue of continued employment and period thereof" for Duran who took over management of the district in July of 2000.

Over the past three years, Duran's financial and negotiating skills have not gone unnoticed or unrewarded. In February of this year he was appointed by Gov. George W. Bush to serve on the Joint Public Advisory Committee of the Commission for Environmental Cooperation, and was presented the Texas 2003 Businessman of the Year Award by the National Republican Congressional Committee in an awards luncheon in Washington, D.C. in March. He also participated in the Congressional Tax Summit on the President's economic stimulus plan.

Over the past three years, however, Duran has also made significant contributions to financial health and viability of the LVWD as a public utility.

In the summer of 2000 when Duran took office, the LVWD was running as much as $100,000 a month in the debt, plagued by mismanagement and low public opinion due to criminal charges being filed against members of the board of directors.

However, Duran negotiated a contract with the El Paso Public Service Board that provided

Special public meeting in Alpine to discuss GLO water development and the Rio Nuevo proposal

WESTTEXAS — Land Commissioner Jerry Patterson will chair a public meeting of the School Land Board at Alpine ISD Administration Auditorium, 704 W. Sul Ross Ave., in Alpine, on Tuesday, Dec. 2 to hear public input on water development — specifically, the Rio Nuevo proposal to lease state land for the purpose of mining and selling ground water from West Texas aquifers.

This is the first special Land Board meeting outside of Austin held since Patterson took office in January, prompted by public reaction to ongoing negotiations with the Midland-based Rio Nuevo on their West Texas water development proposal.

At the meeting, GLO staff will make a presentation on concepts and guidelines for water development on state-owned land in West Texas. Officials with Rio Nuevo Ltd. are also expected to make a presentation about their lease application before the board.

Following the presentations, Commissioner Patterson and the Board will hear public testimony on the issue. Those interested may make comments at the hearing, or submit written comments in advance.

GLO staff, in particular Patterson himself, have been invited to attend the Far West Regional Water Planning Group meeting in Van Horn on Thursday, Nov. 20 at 1 p.m. to present information on the GLO's water policy and take questions as time allows.

One GLO staff member, Jeffrey Frank, is currently a non-voting member of the group.

A Web page with information on the Texas General Land Office and water development, is at www.glo.state.tx.us/water.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst has announced the formation of two water issue related committees to study state policy regarding ground and surface water policies.

A Senate Select Committee on Water Policy will study issues regarding Texas' management and policy concerning ground and surface water resources, chaired by Sen. Ken Armbrister, and made up of Sen. Kip Averitt, Sen. Bob Deuell, Sen. Robert Duncan, Sen. Troy Fraser, Sen. Jon Lindsay, Sen. Eddie Lucio, Sen. Frank Madla, Sen. Eliot Shapleigh, Sen. Todd Staples, and Sen. Tommy Williams.

Canutillo's Cooper creates Thanksgiving baskets for needy

By Alfredo Vasquez
Special to the Courier

Canutillo Elementary School Physical Education Teacher Kenny Cooper doesn't want anyone in the Upper Valley to go without a Thanksgiving dinner this year. So, he is mobilizing his students and fellow teachers into action once again.

Coach Cooper will spearhead Project Harmony, an effort launched by Cooper four years ago, to provide food baskets to needy families in the Upper Valley school district. Last year, more than 200 food baskets were distributed.

"Project Harmony is an enthusiastic heartfelt event where the community — students, families, school staff, and businesses — work hand in hand collecting, providing, and creating these wonderful baskets acknowledging that there are those who are in need within our own community," said Coach Cooper.

Cooper receives a lot of help from parent volunteers, his students, and fellow P.E. teachers Lillian Lopez and Lura Beets-Lane. Cooper visits with businesses throughout El Paso to ask for donations of food items, trucks them to CES's coaches office, where everyone pitches in to make the Thanksgiving Day baskets.

"Several business persons know me by now, and I have tremendous response from everyone I contact," Cooper said. "I hope we can expand our food baskets to 300 families this year," he added.

For more information, contact Cooper, at any of these numbers: 877-2836, 877-7600 or 373-8868.

Horizon fire department receives grant from FEMA

HORIZON CITY — The El Paso County Emergency Services District #1, home of the Horizon City Fire Department, has received a grant of $168,300 from the 2003 Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program administered by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The award, part of $750 million being distributed to over 7,000 fire departments in 2003, will be used by the Horizon Fire Department to purchase a ventilation system and additional personal protective equipment.

"Firefighters play a key role in safeguarding America, and these fire grant funds provide first responders with the resources necessary to protect our communities from all hazards," said Michael D. Brown, Under Secretary of Homeland Security for Emergency Preparedness and Response.

The Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program is administered by the U.S. Fire Administration (USFA), a division of FEMA, and assists rural, urban, and suburban fire departments throughout the United States.

The Board of Commissioners, Fire Officers, and firefighters of the EPCESD #1 would like to extend a special thank you to Captain Kris Menendez. Without his dedication to the Horizon City Fire Department, this grant award would not have been possible.

Lawmen

He was sort of like the mountain.

Big and solid, having been there forever, you think they always will be.

That's why I was so shocked when one day I heard that the first lawman I ever knew had died. Being a kid, I guess I considered him kind of an eternal fixture.

He was tall, probably over six feet, with a big paunch hanging over his belt and his hair was gray by the time I came of noticing age. He wore cowboy boots, a big hat, and a pistol strapped around his waist.

He was the law.

He was friendly and even-tempered, not loud or very outgoing. The biggest thing that made him really somebody in my eyes was because he had my father's respect — a high recommendation for anybody.

In later years, I learned that he had been the local law during the rough and rowdy years of the braceros farming program that swelled the population of his tiny farming town into the thousands. He was faced with a melee on the weekends that included violent outbreaks among frequently intoxicated workers, including serious stabbings and other weapons violations.

Miles from the county jail, with only a tiny one-cell holding facility of his own, he didn't bother trying to officially arrest the drunk and rowdy. He just handcuffing them to a nearby solid object — a tree, stock trailer or utility pole — until they sobered up. Then he sent them back to the farms.

There is a type of grant available these days which gives communities assistance to hire additional officers to meet what the state considers an appropriate officer-to-citizen ratio.

That's a good thing.

We need officers to keep the peace. Without them, where would we be? There is a saying that a thin, blue line exists between chaos and civilization. I think that's true.

When our house or car alarm goes off, we hope there is a cop available to take our call. When we are threatened in one way or another, in a car accident or have a medical emergency, we hope there will be a police officer available to lend a hand, keep the peace and iron out the details.

There is a popular TV program entitled "COPS," in which the theme song asks: "Bad boy, bad boy, whatcha gonna do? Whatcha gonna do when they come for you, bad boy, bad boy?"

The situations the officers handle in real episodes filmed as they occur are enough to curl your hair. Some humorous, most tragic, they are situations that make me glad that the cops must handle them, not me.

Still, there exists another facet to our lawkeeping system that causes some folks to resist the maintenance of a local law enforcement department, and to resent the authority that police officers have.

You see, not all lawmen are like the one I grew up knowing.

The quality of the law enforcement a community has is equal only to the quality of the heart of the officer that beats beneath his badge. And there are plenty of bad apples in the law enforcement barrel.

Like the sadistic little prison guard in the heart-wrenching movie The Green Mile, some people are attracted to law enforcement as a method by which they can have legal authority over other people, and once attained, that authority is subject to varying levels of unacceptable abuse.

On the other hand, some citizenry think that local laws were created to be broken, and it is their civil right to violate those laws with impunity. Therefore, some officers can become hardened to the need to be flexible and to use good "car-side manners" when dealing with the public.

They forget that sometimes you have to just handcuff somebody to a horse trailer until they sober up, and forget the details.

Living in Horizon over the past 18 years or so, I've had reason to need a police officer from time to time. Each time I did, I found one that handled my situation with wisdom and compassion or, lacking that, at least with courtesy and respect.

I'm not naive enough to think this happens all the time, though. Like people who are elected to public office, sometimes an officer can forget that his public trust must come before his personal inclination.

I've come to the conclusion some people simply don't have the temperament and character to be police officers. They ought not be allowed to carry a badge and should have enough sense to look for another occupation.

Meanwhile, there are plenty of good guys out there wearing the uniform — men I would much rather be carrying the firearm than the guys on the other side.

Reyes Reports

By U.S. Rep. Silvestre Reyes

Diabetes found in one of four El Paso County Hispanic adults

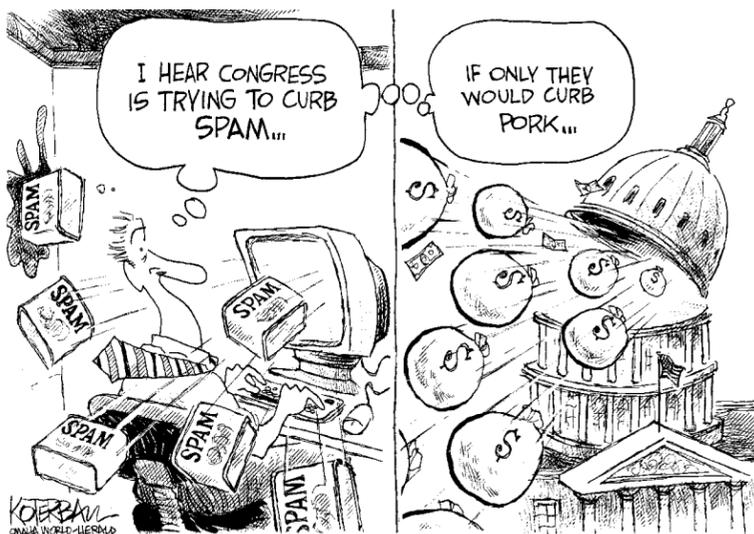

A recent study by the Pan American Health Organization found that nearly 13-percent of all El Pasoans have diabetes, compared to about six percent of Americans nationwide. November is American Diabetes Month, so this is the perfect time for us to become more informed about diabetes and take action against it in our community.

The majority of people diagnosed with diabetes suffer from type 2 diabetes, commonly known as "adult-onset diabetes." Type 2 diabetes accounts for about 90 to 95-percent of all diagnosed diabetes cases. It is associated with older age, obesity, family history of diabetes, physical inactivity, and race or ethnicity. While Type 2 diabetes was once seen exclusively in adults, it is now increasingly being diagnosed in children, largely as a result of poor eating habits and today's more sedentary lifestyle. Diabetes can cause life-altering complications, including kidney failure, cardiovascular disease, and blindness.

In 2000, over 2 million Hispanic Americans were diagnosed with diabetes which is twice as common in Mexican-Americans as in Anglos. One in four Hispanic adults in El Paso has diabetes, according to a study by the Paso del Norte Health Foundation and the El Paso Diabetes Association.

As a member of the Congressional Diabetes Caucus, my colleagues and I have introduced several bills in Congress to help prevent, treat, and find a cure for this very serious disease. One of these bills, the Diabetes Prevention Access and Care Act, specially focuses on addressing the diabetes rate among minorities. It would provide funding for the National Institutes of Health and the Department of Health and Human Service's Office of Minority Health to jointly examine the clinical, environmental, socioeconomic, and cultural factors that may contribute to high levels of diabetes in minority populations. It also would provide money for the U.S.-Mexico Border Diabetes Project — a collaboration between U.S. and Mexican health agencies and organizations — for physical fitness programs and mental health services for minority diabetics. Finally, the bill includes funding for new educational programs to increase the number of minority health care professionals.

Lowering El Paso's diabetes rate will not be easy, but with help from Congress and federal health agencies, hard work from healthcare providers and organizations, and a commitment to healthier lifestyles on the part of people in our community, we can do it.

San Eli ISD wants to transport students until hazardous route is updated

By Don Woodyard
Courier Staff Writer

SAN ELIZARIO — The safety of students walking along Alarcon Road again came under the scrutiny of board of trustees of the San Elizario ISD at its Nov. 14 meeting.

Board members approved a resolution declaring Alarcon a hazardous route for transportation purposes. The resolution pointed out the lack of sidewalks and pedestrian crossings along the roadway. The resolution now goes to the Transportation Division of the Texas Education Agency (TEA). Robert Longoria, Support Services director, explained that approval is a necessary first step to get a 10 percent reimbursement from TEA to offset district costs of transporting students who walk to school along Alarcon.

In a memo to board members, Longoria said Alarcon would remain a hazardous route only until sidewalks and bicycle paths are available through funding from other agencies.

Action by the board comes against the background of the tragic death in September of Jose Amparan who died when he tried to cross Saltillo to catch the school bus and was hit by a truck. Amparan was a first-grader at Sambrano Elementary.

After lengthy discussion and input from the district's attorney Larry Baskind, trustees elected not to fill the vacancy created by the resignation and departure of long-time board member Rick Rednour. Baskind explained that the board had three choices. One was to hold a special election to fill the post; the second was to appoint someone to fill the position. The third possible course of action, which the board opted to take, was to wait for the May 2004 elections.

In May, the person who is elected will fill only the one year remaining of Rednour's original term. That position would again be up for election in 2005 for a full three-year term.

The board tabled action on a request to designate Alarcon Elementary as an Historic Landmark. Board member Armando Martinez was concerned about an outside entity possibly having control over one aspect of the school in terms of repairs that might be needed in the future.

Superintendent Dr. Mike Quatrini pointed out that the school has been on National Register of Historic Places since 1997. The school, located in the San Elizario Historic District, was designed in 1936 by the Educating children should be our priority

As we go forward in pursuit of excellence regarding the education of our children, it becomes even more timely that we, as Texans, become totally engrossed and focused on our primary to find ways to finance our public education system. We need to create a system that will not only be fair to every student in Texas, but one that can become a model for the rest of the world.

That's why I was so surprised and pleased that Texas State Rep. Kent Grusendorf came to El Paso. Grusendorf is chairman of a committee set up by Texas House Speaker Tom Craddick to study the issue of funding public education. Grusendorf has been working hard to insure that every player in the public education system has a chance to make his or her feelings known. This, of course, must include my constituents. I need to know what you think is the best way to fund public education.

Grusendorf, who came to our beautiful city last Wednesday and Thursday, discussed with area superintendents and other local education leaders ways in which we can fix the mess in which our school system finds itself.

As a former educator — I was a superintendent for the Socorro ISD for more than 30 years — I am very pleased that Grusendorf accepted my invitation to come to El Paso. Educating those of our students who live alongside the U.S.-Mexico border is especially important. Fortunately, Grusendorf also understands the need for bilingual education and has asked me to become involved with the re-vamping of bilingual education legislation.

I am also pleased that earlier this year Craddick followed my advice to appoint a Hispanic Legislator to the blue-ribbon panel charged with making recommendations for improving the system. Craddick named our very capable State Rep. Norma Chavez to this important post.

Although I continue to be concerned with the proposed elimination of the so-called Robin Hood system of financing public education without having something to replace it, I am also hopeful that we can reach an agreement to ensure that every child in Texas receives a quality education. If Robin Hood — which takes money from property wealthy school districts, and distributes it to property poor school districts — is going to end, then we must find something else to give the State of Texas the best educational system in the world.

I invite and encourage every voter in my District 75 to let me know your ideas for revamping our public education financing. No idea is without merit. Unless I hear from you, how will I be able to make your feelings known to Rep. Grusendorf, Rep. Craddick or to other house members?

I also want to thank Jimmy Vasquez, Region 19 Executive Director, for his support, expertise, and commitment to securing equitable funding for all public schools across Texas. He was Superintendent of the Edgewood ISD, when that school district became famous statewide for the Edgewood vs. Kirby lawsuit which equalized funding for education in Texas. Thanks to this lawsuit, our public school system became the most equitable it has ever been.

Thank you, and I remain, Chente for la gente

Write stuff

Dear Editor:

As a concerned resident I attended the special meeting of the Socorro City Council on Nov. 17, at which an item was to be introduced in regards to the Municipal Police Dept. The city attorney sponsored this item. The question has been, since when has the police department been in legal existence since the Socorro Charter was adopted on Nov. 6, 2001?

The attorney could not provide an answer to this and took over the floor taking my time to ask questions.

Also, I questions the actions the city attorney is taking, in that in the Charter the attorney's duties are clearly defined. However, this city attorney believes that she is an elected official and is conducting herself as a city representative and is conducting city business as such at these meetings.

Another issue, the appointment of Civil Service Commissioners was addressed, of which the city attorney was also a sponsor. The Mayor clearly stated and provided the minutes of previous meetings acknowledging the one open seat for one commissioner. Why were there two names waiting for confirmation for only one seat on the commission? Again, the city attorney took over the issue.

Is the city attorney an elected official? Is the city attorney violating the Texas Disciplinary Rules of Professional Conduct?

According to the Charter of the City of Socorro, Article IV, Section 4.03: "The City Council shall appoint an attorney(s)... The City Attorney(s) shall serve at the will and pleasure of the City Council and may be terminated at any time."

HCPD to participate in high-visibility enforcement

EAST EL PASO COUNTY — The public knows they should buckle up.

However, research shows that many are not taking the necessary steps to protect themselves and their children on every ride. Enforcing the law is the most effective way to change this behavior — that is why the Horizon City Police Dept. will participate in Air Bag and Seat Belt Safety Campaign Click It or Ticket Mobilization. This nationally coordinated effort involves two enforcement waves per year — in May and November.

Since these Mobilizations began:

- Child fatalities have dropped by more than 20 percent.
- Child restraint use for infants under one has gone from 85 percent to 99 percent, and restraint use among toddlers, ages 1-4, has jumped even more dramatically from 60 to 94 percent.
- Adult seat belt use rose from 62 percent to 79 percent, the highest use rate ever, with more than 50 million Americans buckling up.

Mobilization is based on a highly effective law enforcement model, called the Special Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), that has been developed and used with success in several states across the country. It combines periodic waves of stepped-up enforcement of seat belt and child passenger safety laws with aggressive publicity highlighting the enforcement.

The Horizon City Police Department will be participating in this event as it has for the past several years by putting extra officers on the street to show high visibility and pro-active enforcement for safety belt violations.

"You can expect to get pulled over if you are not wearing your safety belt," said HCPD Sgt. Ron Swenson, "we will have extra patrol officers on the street for the holidays and specifically targeting those violators."

The Horizon City Police Department is also participating in the National Enforcement Campaign: You Drink and Drive. You Lose. Again, we will be out in full force looking for intoxicated offenses and enforcing them with a zero tolerance attitude. This enforcement campaign will be from Dec. 19 to Jan. 4. "The main issues we are addressing and are going to be enforcing strictly are safety belts and sober drivers", said Sgt. Ron Swenson. "If you are not wearing your safety belt or are driving under the influence and we don't stop you some other law enforcement agency will!"

Horizon City hires a city planner, moves ahead with annexation

By Arleen Beard
Special to the Courier

HORIZON CITY — When Mayor Diane Whitty was elected, she said she wanted to make Horizon City something more than just a city located in the outskirts of El Paso, Texas — a feat she hoped to accomplish with the help of a City Planner. That planner was introduced by John Dixon, Director of Public Works, at the regularly scheduled City Council meeting on Nov. 11.

Ed Hamlin accepted the appointment to this newly created position initiated by Mayor Whitty. Dixon said he believes Hamlin will give Horizon City a vision of what the growth can be.

"Mr. Hamlin has many credentials which would make him a viable candidate for a successful city planner," Dixon said.

Alderwoman Bethany Sellers addressed City Council as a concerned citizen to express her opposition of the hiring of a city planner. She feels the budget is much too tight to be filling that position at this time even though it is only on a part-time basis.

Sellers said time and time again the administration continues to state how there is not enough money in the budget for other issues, yet the city goes on to hire a City Planner. Dixon reminded Sellers this position was budgeted for.

Hamlin voiced his excitement about being selected as the city planner. His said goal is to make Horizon City a chosen destination to visit, not just a place visitors just happen to stop at.

The cost to the city will be around $22,000 a year and Hamlin will be restricted to working no more than 20 hours a week.

In other business, a public hearing was held regarding the proposed annexation of three parcels of land. The combined three parcels looking to be annexed is a total of 449.72 acres of land, east of Horizon City. Risher Gilbert, a concerned land developer, asked council if this annexation is going to cause the city's public services to be stretched thinner than it already is.

Howard Buck voiced his approval of the annexation stating the annexation can do nothing but help any development that develops in the city. Former Mayor Walt Lee also expressed his approval of the annexation, adding that the land being annexed will have the luxury of having ordinances enforced not currently being enforced by the County of El Paso.

Special ceremony in Clint honors unforgotten heroes

CLINT — A special Veteran's Day Assembly was held on Nov. 11 at Clint Junior High School, a high light of which was to honor four World War II veterans who live in Clint and attended the ceremony.

Sponsored by the CJHS Father/Son and Mother/Daughter programs, the assembly provided an occasion for the program participants to "adopt" about 29 local veterans, and present them with certificates of appreciation. Each was introduced by a CJHS student and a brief account of their military service was given.

Gilbert Alarcon Sr., Albert Hanmoore, Pedro Hernandez and Pete Eveler were give special honor as surviving veterans of World War II, with mention made of Jose Alarcon, who was unable to attend the ceremony.

Armando Hernandez, a teacher at CJHS, gave a chronicle on each of these veterans.

Two young men who are currently serving in the military were noted: Carlos Murillo was at the ceremony while on two-week leave from Iraq, and Manuel Montes, stationed at Ft. Bilss, has seen action in Iraq.

A special appreciation letter was presented to Helen Rojas from the group in remembrance of her father, Gilberto Vargas, who passed away early this year. He served during WWII in the Philippines and received a Purple Heart due to wounds received during the war.

San Elizario patriotism shone brighter than Indian summer sun

By Phillip Cortez
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO — The Indian summer sun gave the day a bronze hue straight out of a Norman Rockwell painting. Hands saluted; hands were held. Smiles on children's faces were as common as the tears of remembrance from their parents and grandparents.

A town, county and nation celebrated Veteran's Day in San Elizario, Nov. 11, 2003.

The celebration started with a veteran's memorial service at the San Elizario Cemetery, where U.S. Congressman Silvestre Reyes, represented by Gilberto Cardenas, donated a U.S. flag to Vietnam veteran Ramon Borrego. Borrego Elementary School in San Elizario is named after Ramon's father, Alfonso.

State Rep. Chente Quintanilla was in attendance and gave Borrego the Texas flag. County Commissioner Miguel Teran also took part in the ceremonies.

After the memorial ceremony, a parade from the cemetery made it's way through town with hands waving, horns honking, and sirens flashing. The procession eventually made its way to Veteran's Memorial Plaza, or "La Placita," as San Elizario residents call it.

The San Elizario Presidio provided a majestic backdrop for perhaps the most exciting events of the afternoon, the unveiling of a memorial plaque in honor of PFC Ruben Estrella Soto, who was one of nine soldiers killed in action in the battle of Nazarilla, Iraq. Estrella's parents were in attendance to accept the honor as hundreds of community members supported them.

Also supporting the family was CPT Troy King, Commander of the 507th Maintenance Company, Sergeant Major Kevin McGovern of the 552nd Battalion, which oversees the SALUTE — A group of veterans present the colors in San Elizario.

507th, SGT Matthew Rhodes of the 507th, and CPL Damin Luter, who was Estrella's squad leader. Each had poignant words to say during the ceremony.

According to Commissioner Teran, the day was a time for reflection and a day to honor the men and women who served this country. But he was mostly impressed with the community's involvement in putting on an event that just keeps getting bigger for the 7th year in a row.

"The beauty of this ceremony is that it is a community initiative with volunteers from this community," Teran said. "That's also the beauty of this area, there's a lot of involvement here."

Community involvement was evident. Cadets in the San Elizario High School NJROTC proudly played key roles throughout the ceremony, whether it was folding the U.S. flag for Ramon Borrego or marching in the parade. Cadet Adrian Payan read the meaning of TAPS during the memorial ceremony and the San Elizario High school band marched with pride. Even the Sambrano Elementary cheerleaders waved and cheered from the back of a trailer in support of our country's veterans.

According to retired Army veteran and co-master of ceremonies Ramon Holguin, there is a special significance for celebrating Veteran's Day in San Elizario.

"I think people in this part of our county, our involvement as veterans in this community goes back 70 or 80 years," said Holguin. "In all the wars we've ever had, this community has provided soldiers for every branch of the military."

Holguin added that pride runs deep in this community, which is why even when the American flags in the "placita" were taken down at the end of the day, when the Indian summer sun made its descent, the pride of the San Elizario community still shined.

Happy Thanksgiving

From Congressman Silvestre Reyes

Let's remember to be thankful for the good gifts of life we enjoy in America as Americans.

And, in our giving of thanks, we are thankful for and need to especially remember our troops in Iraq, Afghanistan and in other places throughout the world who are defending freedom!

— Congressman Silvestre Reyes

Never mind the football blues — UTEP basketball is back in a big way

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

There are times when we are able to see into the future. Times when certain events reveal what is real or what is about to become real.

One of those crossroads events that come along every so often and will be talked about for years to come, happened last Saturday at the Don Haskins Center.

The Harlem Globetrotters came to town.

Not the Harlem Globetrotters that bring along their own props, referees and opponents. This was a real game, no confetti, no flat basketballs — and no referees had their pants pulled down.

This was a competitive group of Globetrotters that have been traveling the United States leaving a trail of beaten college teams in their wake.

This collection of ex-college stars and NBA players has orchestrated huge wins over perennial college bullies such as Syracuse, Michigan State and U. Mass.

This is a formidable squad. When the Globetrotters came out of the locker room to warm up I wasn't worried about the Miners getting beat, I was worried about the Miners getting killed — literally!

These guys were as wide as they were tall. This was another league of basketball altogether.

It's a giant step up. The Globetrotters came into the game a step above every college team in the country.

And in the first moments of the game, it showed. The Miners trailed 14-4 and looked like they knew they were in over their young heads.

But it was three young guys that took the initiative on the court for UTEP. Jason Williams, Filiberto Rivera and Omar Thomas, all first-year Miners, decided to run the court with the Globetrotters and, believe it or not, they began to out-NBA the professionals.

The Miners fought back to trail by just two points at half-time and that was a feat in itself. With 10 minutes to go in the game I noticed that the Miners weren't getting pummeled to the ground, they were within five.

The closer the game got to the end the more the Miners started to believe that they, and not Syracuse or Michigan State or U. Mass, had a chance to actually defeat the talented Globetrotters.

And remarkably, amid a noise that hasn't been heard at "The Don" since the days of Ellenberger and the Lobos, Majerus and Utah and Danny Ainge and those nasty BYU Cougars, there were the Miners putting forth a miraculous effort.

And when the Trotters' final shot rolled off the rim, giving UTEP an 89-88 victory, everyone knew — Miners basketball was back!

And one thing is undeniable — UTEP will not play another college team any tougher than these Globetrotters all season.

What this game against the Globetrotters gave El Pasoans was a glimpse into the future.

And the future is Jason Williams, Filiberto Rivera and Omar Thomas.

Williams scored 19 points and added eight rebounds and some stingy defense. Rivera scored 16 points and dished out five assists and didn't turn the ball over once. Thomas added 16 points and pulled down seven rebounds.

The game was an exhibition and didn't really mean anything, and yet it meant everything.

After winning just six games last season, coach Billy Gillispie has already proven that he not only can recruit, he can also motivate and coach.

This UTEP team resembles all the great Don Haskins teams with one big exception. Yes, they play that tough, in-your-face brand of defense, but this team does not shy away from the fast break. And they run the break to perfection. Gillispie has said that whenever they get the chance these Miners will push it up the court.

The only real weakness this team has is rebounding. Not because they don't have the desire or the hustle, but because they just don't have the size.

But the Miners, who were out-rebounded 44-29 by the Globetrotters, still managed to pull out the win.

The UTEP basketball team, unlike their football counterparts, have already shown that they have not just improved, they are a team to taken very seriously.

Get ready, El Paso. Miner basketball is back in a big way.

Fans around here have stored away about three years worth of frustrated energy that they will finally have a chance to unleash this year.

I'm not saying that the Miners will play so well that they may contend for the WAC championship — but I'm not saying they won't, either.

water to the district at a far more favorable rate, has established an in-house solid waste disposal collection program, and instituted other financial management programs that, by January of 2002, had already saved the district $1.5 million over a six-month period.

This was the first such evaluation the board of directors has had of Duran during his three and a half years of employment. Though Duran requested the evaluation take place in open session, the board declined and went into executive session, with the lawyer for the district, Phil Bowen. Both Duran and Bowen were in and out of the executive session several times for varying lengths of time.

Board members Alice Fresquez, Henry Trujillo, Rosalinda Vigil, Mario Aguilar and Raul Diaz were all present for the session.

Though the district has fared better financially and operationally over the last three years, the district may not yet be out of the woods.

Mismanagement of water projects — paid with public funds — that were undertaken before Duran became manager may still present difficulties for the sitting board.

Sources outside the district have confirmed that board-approved water lines were laid across property where easements had not been granted and that the line had benefit to at least one member of the board of directors.

When the property was later prepared for development, the LVWD was forced to abandon the improperly laid line, resulting in thousands of dollars loss in infrastructure expenditure.

Duran declined to comment on the project, only to confirm that the project in question was undertaken previous to 2000.

Tornillo ISD opens new parent center

TORNILLO — Tornillo Junior High school hosted the grand opening of the district's parent center on Nov. 3. This project was a joint venture between Tornillo JHS and the district's migrant program. The goal of the center is to provide parents and community with activities ranging from literacy programs, sewing, computer applications and arts and crafts. The center will also provide a calendar of speakers based on community interest.

The speakers at the grand opening were from planned parenthood and alcoholics anonymous. The calendar for the balance of the month of November and December will reflect community concerns and interests.

Stars step in where others have failed

By Don Flood

In our fast-paced world — where many current events are forgotten before they even happen — it has become increasingly hard to provide the meaningful, insightful commentary you've come to expect from this column.

This is especially true with earth-shattering, breaking news such as the recent announcement by Brad Pitt and Jennifer Aniston that they plan to BRING ABOUT PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST.

The problem for me is that by the time you read this, Brad and Jennifer may have already wrapped up the final details of lasting Middle East peace and — who knows? — they may be on their way to healing such long-time trouble spots as North Korea, Northern Ireland, Sacramento or the "10 items or less Express" lane at your local grocery store.

In a statement to the press, Pitt and Aniston said, "The past few years of conflict mean that yet another generation of Israelis and Palestinians will grow up in hatred. We cannot allow that to happen."

Frankly, it's a shame they've allowed the conflict to continue as long as they have, but it's good to hear Pitt is finally going to leverage the stature he has achieved with films like "The Mexican" in the interest of world peace.

Brad and Jennifer's plan is to appeal to the two sides' "ordinary folk." It might go something like this:

PITT: Hi, I'm Brad Pitt. I am an extremely good-looking but scruffy actor who has appeared in a long series of flops. This is my wife, Jennifer. She's famous for her work on "Friends" and for her hair. Together, we have come to bring about a lasting peace in the Middle East.

ORDINARY FOLK: I have been waiting for this moment ever since I first saw "Legends of the Fall." It is time to lay down our arms and live in peace. And, perhaps, your wife can tell us how to perfect the "Rachel" hairstyle.

ANISTON: It's been some years since I've worn that hairstyle but — in the interest of peace — yes, I would be more than happy to bring the "Rachel" to your people.

Brad and Jennifer won't be alone in their newfound roles as dual Secretaries of State.

Other Hollywood types are lending their star power to the cause. They include Danny DeVito, who learned foreign policy the hard way in his role as the crazed dispatcher on "Taxi," and Jason Alexander, a supporting actor on "Seinfeld" who has moved up to a lead role in his own series of commercials for KFC.

(At press time, there was no word from the Schwarzenegger administration about whether Brad and Jennifer would continue to represent California as ambassadors to the United States and other foreign countries.)

Cynics may say that, to be successful, diplomacy must be backed by force, and the same is true of the Brad and Jennifer Middle East Peace Initiative.

But if things really bogged down, Brad could always threaten both sides with multiple showings of "Meet Joe Black."

Hopefully, it won't come to that.

Water Rights, with the overriding charge to study proposals regarding the lease of permanent school fund and permanent university lands and their water rights for the intent of developing and marketing water, will be chaired by Sen. Madla, with Sen. Duncan, Sen. Fraser, Sen. Lucio, and Sen. Shapleigh appointed as members.

“Ensuring that we have a plentiful supply of water in Texas, not just today but in the future, is critical to our quality of life, our economy, and our environment, said Lt. Gov. Dewhurst. “In order to meet our water needs tomorrow, I believe that we must address the way we manage our water resources, and identify solutions for securing and distributing water in the future.”

Among the select committee’s specific charges as they relate to the management and policy concerning ground and surface water are: the role of federal, state, regional, and local governments in setting consistent water policies; the authority of the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality over water contracts; the role of the Edwards Aquifer Authority; the role of groundwater conservation districts; the regional water planning process; the conjunctive use of both ground and surface water resources; the rule of capture; historic use standards; water infrastructure and financing; interbasin transfers; junior water rights; conservation; water quality standards; drought preparedness and water marketing.

The select committee will also monitor the on-going desalination projects by the Texas Water Development Board, to determine how desalination can provide for a cost-effective water source for Texas cities.

The request for Alarcon’s designation as an Historic Landmark came from the El Paso County Historical Commission. If approved by the school board, the request then goes to the Texas Historical Commission for approval.

The board approved a larger number of district goals for 2003-04. It approved the addition of an 11th goal along with minor changes in wording to the original 10. The 11th calls for adherence “to all local, state and federal guidelines pertaining to providing a quality education to all students of San Elizario I.S.D.”

Four middle school band students were honored at the board meeting for their achievements at the recent regional band competition.

Eighth-graders Carlos Prieto, bass clarinet; and Denise Ibarra, baritone; were named to the First Band. This was an open competition against all students, not by district. Ibarra was named to first chair.

Seventh-graders Iris Carrasco, clarinet; and Kimberly Martinez, French horn; were named to Second Band.

In other action, the board approved the Student Code of Conduct.
