Desert shooting

A gathering of more than 100 young people, identified as mostly juveniles, around a bonfire in the desert area near the Socorro Activities Center in East El Paso County got out of hand in the early morning hours of April 22, resulting in the firing of shots that critically injured 20-year-old Jose Estrada, and the arrest of Matthew

Long

Addison Long, 19. A spokesman for the El Paso County Sheriff's Criminal Investigation Division said an unidentified caller notified officers of the situation, stating that several kegs of beer were open at the site. The group scattered and fled when law enforcement officers arrived, however, someone flagged down an officer and reported that a man had been shot. Estrada had gunshot wounds in the upper body. El Paso Police detained several subjects at the scene and the case was then referred to the El Paso County Sheriff's Office. A warrant was issued for Long, who was later picked up in East El Paso County and booked into the El Paso County Downtown Detention Facility, charged with Aggravated Assault with a Deadly Weapon, with bond set at $20,000.

SOCORRO — In order to eliminate or ease the overcrowding of neighborhoods in Socorro, the City Council has begun the process of creating an ordinance to address that concern.

On April 20, during the regularly scheduled council meeting, the first reading on and amendment to Ordinance No. 76 to eliminate Section 8.4 from Socorro's Zone District Regulations, relating to high-density residential construction. The ordinance states all future applications for residential designations shall be limited to single family residential and medium density residential.

Also, all districts currently designated as high density residential will be re-designated as medium density. The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval of this amendment. City Council approved the first reading and will be calling for a public hearing before the second reading can be approved. This was an item placed on the agenda by Mayor Willie Gandara, Jr.

Knock-knock warrant arrest program increased county collections last week

EL PASO COUNTY — Following publication in area newspapers of the names and addresses of persons with outstanding warrants — and an offer of amnesty — from the El Paso County Sheriff's Department, the El Paso County Auditor reports collecting $160,000 during the week of April 17 compared to $91,000 collected during the previous week, an increase of $69,000.

The last day of amnesty period is Friday, April 28.

The Traffic Warrant Arrest Operation is sponsored by the El Paso County Sheriff's Office in conjunction with the constables. The published list included approximately 20,623 warrants with an approximate value of $4,124,600. This is based on an average fine of $200 per outstanding warrant. The list is available for review on the Sheriff's website at: <http://www.co.el-paso.tx.us/sheriff>

The El Paso County Sheriff and constable offices will conduct a Justice of the Peace Traffic Warrant Arrest Operation starting on April 29. If the traffic fine is paid by April 28, the Justice of the Peace will waive the "Fail to Appear" fine.

Persons will have two weeks to pay all fines. If you know that you have an outstanding ticket that has not been paid or if your name is on the list, immediately contact the Justice of the Peace whose jurisdiction the citation was issued in. After April 28, County Law Enforcement Officers will begin the "knock, knock — we have a warrant for your arrest" campaign on those individuals who still have an outstanding warrant.

Those on the list were encouraged to clear up their fines during the amnesty program to avoid County law enforcement officers arresting you at your home, job site or place of employment.

Horizon code enforcement to begin neighborhood sweeps, residents urged to comply voluntarily

HORIZON CITY — The Horizon City Police Department will be stepping up its enforcement of city ordinances and will be conducting neighborhood sweeps for inspection and enforcement of city ordinance violations in order to enhance the quality of life for all residents of the Town of Horizon City, according to Horizon City Police Chief Antonio Aguilar.

The neighborhood sweeps will concentrate on existing city ordinance violations such as the following:

- Noxious weeds and other rank vegetation

- Accumulation of rubbish, trash, refuse, junk and other abandoned materials such as tires, metals or lumber.

- Any condition which provides harborage for rats, mice, snakes, spiders and other vermin.

- Any building or other structure which is in such a dilapidated condition that it is unfit for human habitation, or kept in such an unsanitary condition that it is a menace to the health of people residing in the vicinity thereof, or presents a more ordinarily dangerous fire hazard in the vicinity where it is located.

- Motor vehicles which are abandoned or dilapidated and boats, RVs, trailers, etc. with expired registration or safety inspection stickers.

- Motor vehicles, large trucks or recreational RVs parked in neighborhoods on landscape, dirt, or grass in violation of City Ordinance #0093.

- Alarm Ordinance pertaining to permits and false alarms (City Ordinance No. 103).

- Other ordinances that will be strictly enforced are loose or unrestrained animals and registration violations.

"There are other numerous ordinances that pertain to the above issues, but the most common ones which have become central issues of complaints by our citizens are the ones listed above," Chief Aguilar said. "Once the Code Enforcement Officer or Police Officers issue an official notice of the violation, compliance is required within 72 hours for some violations such as trash and weeds or 15 days for abandoned or dilapidated vehicles.

"We encourage all Horizon residents to voluntarily comply with these ordinances. Our ultimate goal of the neighborhood sweeps is voluntary compliance. However, if people refuse to comply or cooperate, then we will take alternative measures such as issuing citations, summons to court or removing abandoned or dilapidated vehicles through impoundment if necessary," he said.

Failure to comply with city ordinance violations, such as the Nuisance Ordinance No. 0017, may result in fines of up to $2,000. Each separate occurrence of a violation or each day that a violation continues constitutes a separate offense.

Citizens having questions concerning any city ordinance violation may call the Horizon City Police Department at 852-1047 or Code Enforcement at 852-1875.

Sentimental value

How many remember that old song called Sentimental Journey? About how this person is going to "renew old memories."

Such a nice sentiment. Unless you are moving and find yourself boxing up all kinds of useless stuff you are keeping for its "sentimental value."

There once was a time when young people kept their parent's and grandparent's cast-off and left-behind items because they needed them. Things like cast-iron stoves, wagons, beds, chairs, and quilts with chest of drawers to put them in.

Nowadays, however, young folks want to start out life with everything their parents have, only new. And since the advent of Wal-Mart and its inventory as large as China, they can. A house-full of stuff all brand-spanking new can be had for a reasonable price, despite the fact that it probably won't wear too well since it actually does come from China, made fast and cheap. It won't be long before the table top will sway and the wheels fall off.

But that's a whole other story.

Modern Americans may want to use all-new stuff but that doesn't stop them from storing things that aren't. Just like their parents — namely, you and me — and our parents, they begin to accumulate things of various size, shape and volume, much of it with no obvious value except one. Sentimental value.

Those two words seem to be the single-most-used excuse for American's habit of filling up enormous square-footage of space in home, garage and a rented storage unit.

Garages aren't built for cars anymore. No, indeed. They have far greater value as storage. You probably won't have the same car long enough for the paint to fade anyway, so why clutter up the garage with it? Better still, let's fill up that space with an unused volleyball set, a motorcycle that doesn't start, boxes of decorations from various parties and events, kids' costumes, and books we intended to read but never did. These are all stacked up with bicycles and tricycles our kids used that we are keeping for our grandkids — won't it be wonderful for baby Amanda to ride the same trike that her Aunt Cassie did?

Never mind that by the time Amanda gets her own tricycle, she's going to prefer the new updated version with fluorescent spokes and seats that can be changed to match her outfit.

Still, we hang onto boxes of cookbooks that belonged to relatives long departed, arts and crafts supplies given us by someone who woke up and decided to clean out their own garage, moldy tents with broken support poles we used on wonderful camping trips years ago, maternity and baby clothes, and boxes and boxes of pictures, certificates of achievement, and works of art in finger-paint we intend to put in scrapbooks so our kids will have a record of their history.

The way we handle our possessions says a lot about us as people. Organizational experts tell us that if we're not managing our stuff, we're probably not doing so well with our lives in general. It's amazing how much stuff we keep around simply because we don't take the time to actually look at a particular object and ask ourselves: Do I really need this?

They say you spend the first half of your life accumulating things and the second half disposing of them. I believe I've arrived at the second half of my life at a most inconvenient time — while I have teenagers living in the house.

Their rooms are astonishing. When they were little and didn't ask too many questions, I simply cleaned out their rooms, disposing of unnecessary articles with impunity. Not so anymore. They seem to have developed the opinion that they should have some say in whether I get rid of a crumpled note from a friend left under the bookcase with the dust-bunnies or a pen that doesn't write anymore but has a fluffy feather on top inhabited by a tiny plastic frog. And why not?

Because it has sentimental value.

So I set out on a campaign to educate my girls on the importance of consciously recognizing items they no longer need or use and to develop the self-discipline to simply get rid of them.

Mid-way into my crusade, however, I started having second thoughts about how aggressive I should be in teaching this lesson.

Afterall, there are some things in this life that are not useful in the ways they once were, but still hold value inherent in themselves. There are things that everyone should be careful to provide space for and carefully maintain with love and respect, simply for their sentimental value.

You know, things like their mother.

Helping seniors understand Medicare Part D

Many El

Paso seniors have been struggling to decide if the new Medicare Prescription Drug program — also known as Medicare Part D — is a good fit for them, and the May 15 deadline for joining this program is quickly approaching. To answer any lingering questions, I am holding a conference at El Paso Community College on Tuesday, May 9, 2006 from 8:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. to provide El Paso seniors with information and assistance about Medicare Part D.

Representatives from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), the federal agency that administers the Medicare and Medicaid programs, El Paso's Social Security office, and trained local professionals, will join me. Seniors will hear about "Extra Help" from the Social Security Administration. "Extra Help" is a special part of Medicare's prescription drug program that may provide seniors with additional help in paying for prescription drugs.

Trained partners from local organizations such as Centro de Salud Familiar La Fe, Centro San Vicente, and Project Vida will be on hand to provide general assistance. About 15 computers and ten dedicated phone lines will be available for those who wish to enroll in the Medicare Part D program. Free general health screenings will also be available.

I have spoken out frequently about Medicare over the past few years, and by now you might know that I voted against the Medicare Prescription Drug and Modernization Act of 2003, which created this prescription drug program. I have long worked to strengthen Medicare and provide a comprehensive, fair, user-friendly prescription drug program for Medicare beneficiaries, and unfortunately do not think that this particular program sufficiently meets the needs of many of El Paso's seniors as well as it could have. That does not mean that this program absolutely is not for you — it just means that this new program must be considered carefully, and I hope next week's conference will provide you with the information you need to make your decision.

The deadline to enroll for coverage next year without penalty is May 15, 2006. If you decide not to enroll on May 15, there are annual open enrollment periods from Nov. 15 to Dec. 31. However, a late-enrollment fee is imposed, through which your premium cost will go up at least one percent per month for every month you wait to join.

For example, if you join in November of 2006, you will be subject to an extra fee of at least six percentage points. Like other insurance, you will have to pay this penalty as long as you have Medicare prescription drug coverage.

If you are considering the new Medicare prescription drug program and still have questions, please consider joining us for the conference on Tuesday, May 9. Please call my office at 534-4400 or visit my website at www.house.gov/reyes for more information.

San Eli ISD moves forward on improvements to two campuses

By Don Woodyard
Courier Staff Writer

SAN ELIZARIO — A variety of construction projects in the San Elizario ISD took center stage at its April 12 board meeting. They include new classrooms, a new library, cafeteria, park lighting improvements and new sidewalks.

With state funding virtually assured, the board of trustees of the San Elizario ISD gave a green light to preliminary steps for $8 million in construction projects at Alarcon Elementary and Garcia-Enriquez Middle Schools.

The board took two key steps in the overall planning process.

It approved the district's recommendation of Wright and Dalbin as the architect for the planned construction. The firm has been architect of choice on numerous district projects.

It also approved construction manager-at-risk as the construction delivery method. Larry Baskind, the district's attorney, said this method assures there will be no hidden costs and that the books will be open for inspection.

"I think we are going to get it," said Baskind referring to the money for construction. It comes from the state under its IFA (Instructional Facilities Allotment) program which helps property-poor school districts like SEISD expand its academic facilities. The state would pay about 90 percent of the cost with the remainder borne by the taxpayers of San Elizario.

"The money is there — budgeted and allocated," he added. "I don't think it will be a problem."

Robert Longoria, assistant superintendent for support services, expects that actual construction to begin during this coming fall semester. Before that, requests for proposals will go out, soliciting bids on construction. Also, architects will be preparing designs for the new structures.

Construction breakdown:

- Alarcon Elementary. Construction of a 10,000-11,000-square-foot cafeteria adjacent to the present facility which serves as both a cafeteria and gymnasium. When completed, Longoria said, the old cafeteria would be used as a gym only.

- Garcia-Enriquez Middle. Construction includes a 19,000-square-foot classroom wing plus a 7,000-square-foot library. The wing will

Texas moves to cut property taxes

Greetings mi gente from your state capitol. Our Governor has called a special legislative session to comply with the Texas Supreme Court order and give school districts more room to raise or lower taxes because most districts are now forced to set their rates at the state's maximum or close to it. In other words, this form of taxation system amounts to an unconstitutional statewide property tax and if lawmakers don't approve a plan by June 1, state money for schools will be cut off.

We must address the issue immediately and we commenced by passing four of five tax bills on Monday, April 24. My colleagues and I worked all day Monday ending our house session at midnight Tuesday — when we recessed and met again on Thursday.

The passage of the tax proposals, with some money from the state surplus is designed to pay for about $6 billion a year in school property tax cuts or enough to reduce a school district's tax rate for operations by about one-third. The measures that were approved to address a cut on the property taxes are the following:

HB 1 passed the house with an overwhelming 139-5 vote and reduces school property taxes about 11 percent. We voted to strip language from the bill that would have widened disparities between school districts with the most property wealth and poorer ones. The provision in the bill, if kept in HB 1, would have restricted the amount of tax revenue that rich school districts must share with the rest of the public education system under the Robin Hood share-the-wealth plan.

HB 1 will provide enough money to lower taxes to $1.33 per $100 valuation for those taxing at $1.50. Although School Boards could raise the rate another three percent to get additional funding and any increases would require approval of voters in the district. Furthermore, we voted to secure that seniors and people with disabilities whose property taxes are frozen will receive a cut in property taxes.

HB 2 dedicates new tax revenue to property tax reduction.

HB 3 will set up a new business franchise tax to replace another tax many companies avoided paying. It will require most medium and large companies to pay a tax on their gross receipts after deducting either the cost of goods or employee compensation.

HB 4 is the "don't lie about how much you paid for your used car" bill. Because so many Texans fabricate a lower price on their used care vehicle purchase when calculating the sales tax — the law will soon require the buyer pay a tax based on the at least 80 percent of the vehicle's "blue book" value.

The bills will now move on the Senate for approval and if the tax plan is approved a joint House-Senate committee will then resolve any differences.

In the Senate, I applaud Senators Eltife (R) and Ellis (D) for their senate bill that would raise public school teachers' pay by $3,000 annually and would restore the $1,000 health insurance stipend that was cut in 2003. I am hopeful Senate Bill 24 will reach the house or will be successfully attached as an amendment to one of our House Bills. I believe the Governor will call a charge and include a teacher pay raise and bring Senate Bill 24 to fruition.

I agree and stand by with all those Texans that agree real property relief is overdue. However, this special session I believe we must address both property cuts and teacher salary increase.

Eye on D.C. By U.S. Rep. Henry Bonilla

How the little guy gets got

Did you file a tax return this year? If you receive a pay check, you better have. How long did it take you to read all the forms, fill in the forms, and compute what you owe or are owed?

The 1040 form is one of the most commonly used forms by taxpayers who need to report interest and dividend income, itemized deductions, and capital gains. It is estimated that it takes the average taxpayer using these forms 37.8 hours when using a computer and tax preparation software. Even if you are using the so-called "short" form, you need to allot at least 12 hours using your computer. The self-employed and small business owners spend approximately 80 hours on average to complete their taxes.

In 2005, the 1040 instruction manual was 142 pages long — more than triple its length from 1975 and 71 times larger than in 1935 when it was only two pages. Additionally, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) now prints more than 1,000 publications to help clarify your uncertainty. More taxpayers than ever are turning to professional services to prepare their taxes. Starting in 1977, the law required tax professionals to sign returns they were paid to prepare. Today, over 60 percent of returns are prepared by a professional. When you add in returns prepared by either a tax professional or by using a computer, the statistic climbs to more than 90 percent.

A survey conducted by the National Society of Accountants found that the cost of using a tax professional to file the simplest 1040 would be $110 and climbs to $201 when you add in itemized deductions.

Many Americans hire a professional tax preparer because they are simply flabbergasted by the amount of paperwork associated with the filing process. In 1995, Congress passed the Paperwork Reduction Act in an attempt to reduce this burden. However, since this law was enacted, this burden has increased by more than 20 percent. Several laws have been passed in Congress to reduce the financial burden for middle class taxpayers such as the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, and more recently the Jobs and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003. Despite these efforts, the Tax Foundation estimates that in 2005 individuals, businesses and non-profits will spend over 6 billion hours complying with the federal income tax.

American taxpayers deserve a fairer, simpler tax system. Therefore, I believe that we should abolish the IRS as we know it. Americans now face the highest tax burden since World War II. I strongly support a reduction in tax rates to ease this burden on taxpayers.

By simplifying the tax process, fewer Americans would run afoul of the IRS, fewer would suffer undue tax burdens and a more fair and balanced system would be in place. Families in Texas should not have to pay so much of their hard earned money in taxes or be hassled by a burdensome tax code.

Fabens ISD selects its Teacher of the Year

FABENS — Fabens ISD presents many awards over the course of a year but one that stands out the most is Teacher of the Year. This year, Renee Louise King received this highly coveted award. According to her students in her Pre-AP English 1 and her Pre-AP English 2 classes, she's a very fun person with a great personality.

Being a teacher is hard enough but that's not the only reason she was awarded this prize. King also serves as sponsor for the cheerleaders, student council, one-act play, drama club and the pep squad. This Teacher of the Year was born in Bennington, Nebraska where she graduated early with honors. Later she moved to El Paso where she's lived and taught at Fabens ISD for the last four years. She said the TORNILLO — On April 13, Tornillo High School held its annual Career Day, inviting the 7th and 8th graders from Tornillo Junior High to participate in the event. Organized by the Tornillo High School Student Council, the event gave students the opportunity to learn about various career opportunities, especially those available in the El Paso/Las Cruces area.

In the morning, over 15 guest speakers addressed students at the High School to talk about their own career choices and to share useful information with the students about those careers. Later in the day, more than 25 exhibitors from various organizations and trade schools set up exhibits in the high school gym. Students had the opportunity to browse through the exhibits, talk to the exhibitors, and learn about the multitude of career opportunities available to them.

THS Student Council sponsor and teacher Jose Luis Silva noted that the guest speakers and exhibitors were very impressed with the excellent behavior the Tornillo students exhibited. The students, in turn, showed much interest in the information the guests shared with them.

represented on the council by four to 10 delegates. Student enrollment determines the number of regional representatives — this year there are 108. They will review and consolidate ideas from 21 regional grassroots meetings. The council will finish its business at its second meeting on May 20 in Austin.

TASB is a voluntary, non-profit association established in 1949 to serve local Texas school districts. Its membership includes 1,039 school districts and county school boards, 48 junior colleges, 36 tax appraisal districts, 149 cooperatives, and 20 education service centers. TASB represents the largest group of publicly elected officials in the state.

It's a fact. Clint ISD is growing at a phenomenal rate.

In 2001, Clint ISD served the educational needs of 7,860 students. Today, there are 9,350 students.

Clint ISD projects that, by 2010, the district will need to provide classrooms for over 24,000 students. This figure is calculated based on historical enrollment growth combined with the new developments in our community.

We can see the growth throughout the district. We know that major developments are planned within our school district boundaries. And we know that the expected influx of military families due to BRAC will impact our classrooms.

Clint ISD Board of Trustees has called a $90 million Bond Election for May 13. Please invest in our Children's Education.

Es un hecho.
El distrito escolar de Clint
(Clint ISD) esta creciendo en proporciones fenomenales.

En el 2001, el distrito escolar de Clint cumplió con las necesidades educativas de 7,860 alumnos. Ahora hay 9,350 alumnos.

El distrito escolar de Clint anticipa que para el año 2010 el distrito va a tener que proporcionar salones para 24,000 estudiantes. Este calculo esta basado en el desarrollo de inscripción del pasado combinado con el crecimiento en nuestra comunidad.

Podemos ver el desarrollo dentro del distrito. Sabemos que hay plan de desarrollo dentro de los límites de nuestro distrito escolar. Y sabemos que la llegada de familias militares a causa de BRAC (por sus siglas en inglés) va a impactar nuestros salones de clase.

La mesa directiva del distrito escolar de Clint ha pedido que se lleve a cabo una elección el 13 de mayo para aprobar bonos por $90 millones de dólares. Por favor invierta en la educación de nuestros hijos.

Athletes reach new low in criminal behavior

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

It's hardly a secret that any time you pick up a newspaper, watch TV or listen to the radio, a sports personality is making news for some kind of criminal behavior.

It happens so often that it's almost surprising when it doesn't. It's like a real macho thing, a kind of "you don't want to mess with me" attitude.

You hear about the drinking, the womanizing, the drug abuse, the murders, the assaults, the rapes, the gambling, the tax evasion, the steroids and the money-grubbing selfishness — now we can add a new one to the criminal-behavior list.

The latest fad seems to involve children, and the very manly act of beating them up.

Just last week, two incidents of child abuse by former professional athletes were reported.

Keith Hamilton, who spent 12 years with the New York Giants, was disappointed in his 12-year-old son's report card. So he did what any average red-blooded American parent would do. He hit his son with an electric cord and surge protector, then picked him up by his throat and elbowed him in the chest.

Not exactly Ozzie Nelson, Mike Brady or Cliff Huxtable-like behavior. Hamilton defended his action by saying that was the way he was disciplined.

I don't know how big Hamilton's 12-year-old is, but Hamilton was a defensive lineman in the NFL, for goodness sake. Hardly seems like a fair fight.

Why do the words "malicious bully" come to mind?

But it doesn't end there. Hamilton has other talents his son has had to witness — he's already been arrested for cocaine possession. Under his plea deal, Hamilton will serve three years' probation starting in August 2007, when he finishes a probation sentence he is already serving for cocaine possession related to a 2003 traffic stop.

Now, let me get this straight, the man is arrested for cocaine possession and then is arrested for beating his son with a foreign object and picking him up by the throat — and the guy doesn't have to serve any jail time?

Oh, I get it, this must be one of those "let's wait till he kills the kid before we take any action" deals.

Now let's switch to former NFL offensive lineman Rich Tylski. This brute picked on his adopted daughter. But at least he had some help from his wife.

Seems mom and dad had certain ways of dealing with their daughter. Let's list a few. They would hit her with a belt and they slammed her head on the table. Doctors found about six fractures on her hands.

After claiming that their daughter fell down the stairs, the girl told authorities that her mom had bent her leg over her head so far that they heard it pop. Oh, and she also described to police how her mother would bend her fingers backward.

She said both mom and dad would hit her.

Both Tylski and his wife are free on bond of $20,000 each. That's a total of about $6,000 to get out of jail. Not bad for a family with millions of dollars.

I guess in this day and age, that's how much a little girl's life is worth. About as much as a 10-year-old used car.

Los Angeles who?

I had to adjust my TV set the other night during one of those never-ending NBA playoff games. I heard the announcer say welcome to the Staples Center in Los Angeles.

But he had to be mistaken. I watched both teams running up and down the court but I saw no purple and gold, no Kobe taking every shot and no Jack Nicholson sitting at courtside.

I turned the color knob as far as I could but to no avail.

Then the guy said three words I didn't think I'd ever hear again in an NBA playoff game. Those three words were "Los Angeles Clippers."

No, I'm not kidding, he really said that.

Remember in the movie The Ten Commandments when that Rhamsis guy got really upset and made it against the law for anyone to speak the name of Moses?

Well, I always thought it was one of those things, you know, where you couldn't speak the words "Clippers" and "playoffs" in the same sentence.

Now, I don't know if Elton Brand or Sam Cassell will deliver these Clippers to the promised land, but you never know.

The Clippers, who seem like they've been lost in the desert for 40 years, should at least try to follow one NBA commandment: Thou shall try not to commit many turnovers or flagrant fouls or shoot a lousy percentage."

If they can do that, they might win their opening round series against the Denver Nuggets. It would be the Clippers' first in 30 years.

pressed on by the roar of the crowd.

"We just have to stand in front of our son and he knows he has to run," says proud parent John Uvaldo. "I'm so glad the District organizes this type of event. It motivates us as parents to keep going with our children."

The event Uvaldo referred to was the Socorro ISD Special Olympics, held April 7 at the Socorro Student Activities Complex. Over 300 Special Ed students from 30 SISD schools competed in various events, as a preparation for the city-wide Special Olympics April 28-29.

"We've been doing this for 20 years," says Joe Morales, adaptive physical education teacher. "A whole year of preparation goes into this type of event. We're always adding new events and new students. And we accommodate kids from early childhood all the way to 21 years of age."

Araceli Cosillo, the self-contained academic teacher at Sierra Vista who teaches Adrienne Nicole, says the Olympics motivate students while bringing the entire SISD Special Ed community together.

"I'm very proud of what the students are accomplishing here today," she says. "But I'm prouder of what they accomplish on a daily basis."

You can unrot your brain - maybe

By Don Flood

The headline caught my eye: You May Unrot Your Mind.

As a rapidly aging baby boomer — I've aged 10 years in the past decade alone — I have an abiding interest in mind rot.

My main concern, of course, is that my mind rot would look like that disgusting toenail rot you see in advertisements.

It's bad enough your mind's slowing and that you can't remember important stuff like, well, whatever.

But it's alarming to think your brain is unattractive.

The story told how "to stave off midlife brain decay."

I had reached midlife several minutes ago. What if it were too late?

Worse, the proposed cure for "mind rot" was video games.

I couldn't play video games even in my halcyon pre-rot days. (And I can't even remember what "halcyon" means — yet another sign!)

I had reached my "level of incompetence" with a game called Pong, which was — and this is a true story — invented by dinosaurs.

OK, that's not completely true, but it was invented when I was high school, when many dinosaurs still roamed the Earth. (Not all dinosaurs "roamed," as is commonly believed. Many settled into Florida condos.)

I was afraid my inability to play video games indicated advanced mind rot, so I asked an expert — my wife.

"Am I suffering from brain decay?"

"Of course not, dear."

Well, that sealed it. I was suffering from brain decay, and it was worse than I thought.

I resolved to try the "brain training" video game, which a company marketing vice president described as "a treadmill for the mind."

Unfortunately, I had a hard time imagining my brain on a treadmill. To the best of my knowledge, it doesn't even have feet.

I tried to relax and just forget about brain decay. Due to my advanced mind rot, it was surprisingly easy!

But maybe I could fight the effects of aging another way.

Madonna, for instance, seems desperate to prove she's really, really, really not getting old. She keeps releasing bizarre photos demonstrating how she has come to terms with her inner contortionist.

The latest one showed her with both legs behind her head, using one foot to knit a sweater and the other to make a pizza. It was an amazing demonstration of limberness (a funny-sounding word that should be abolished).

OK, that's a slight exaggeration — and not a sign of mind rot — she was actually playing the violin with one of her feet, but the point is... I forgot what the point is! (Uh-oh!)

Another approach, one apparently followed by Vice President Dick Cheney, is to not let your mind rot in the first place.

A recent news story outlined the vice president's demands for hotel rooms, including the rather sensible rule that the TV must be preset to Fox News.

You wouldn't want to take the chance of getting information from any other source. That could rot your brain.

have 14 classrooms plus two science labs. Twelve portables will be removed to make way for the new wing. Two other portables will be demolished.

No timelines have been established for the projects, but Longoria hopes construction can be completed by the summer of 2007.

The assistant superintendent also addressed trustees about two quality of life projects involving the county Commissioners Court and SEISD.

Trustees approved an interlocal agreement between the two entities involving new lighting for Alarcon Park and upgrades to athletic fields and other park amenities to an area behind Excell Academy.

The agreement calls for the county to install a new lighting system at a cost of $75,000 at the park across from Alarcon in the downtown area. The school district will maintain the park and the lighting system which is used by students during the day and by members of the community in the after-school and evening hours.

Longoria said Commissioner Miguel Teran is looking at the county building a skateboard park in that area. It would also include canopies, benches and possibly a playground. Longoria says he'd like the two baseball fields upgraded to official size. He also has hopes for a soccer field as well.

Longoria pegs the price tag for these improvements at approximately $280,000, a cost which would be borne by the county. He hopes work on the two joint projects can get under way within the next month.

Longoria had still more good news.

A sidewalk project three years in the discussion stage is finally moving ahead at Borrego Elementary. It will mean a safer walking environment for students going to and from school. They can walk on sidewalks rather than on the road. The Texas Department of Public Safety (TXDOT) will build the sidewalk with $201,000. Funding comes from a state grant, a part of its Safe Routes to School program, Longoria says.

Five feet wide, the sidewalk will run 3,350 feet from Borrego along Chicken Ranch Road to Saltillo Road. Longoria says the project will be going out to bid next month.

In other action, trustees discussed how to fill the board vacancy caused by the resignation of Terry Alarcon in December of 2005. After discussion, it was agreed that board members would solicit applications from community members for the position. If there are none, then the board would then appoint a replacement.

In a related action, the board approved cancellation of the school board election scheduled for May 13 because no one had applied for the post.
