Faith-based aid

In response to El Paso's recent floods, a national church community group has provided relief supplies for distribution throughout El Paso County. About 12 pallets of bottled water, Gatorade, soup mixes and cleaning supplies to assist those in most need were delivered by Convoy of Hope, a nonprofit organization that serves the United States and the world by providing disaster relief, building supply lines and sponsoring outreaches to the poor and hurting in communities through local churches. "We called Convoy of Hope and told them what was happening in El Paso," said Bethel Assembly senior pastor Ben Hodge. "They quickly responded and dropped off the 12 pallets of supplies." Supplies will be distributed on Friday, Aug. 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at three strategic locations. The Canutillo point will be Templo Nueva Jerusalem, 6945 Doniphan. The Socorro point will be Templo Centro de Fe, 11670 Socorro Rd. The central point will be Grace Christian Center, 4310 Alameda.

Swimming dangers

Due to the recent swimming pool accidents that occurred on Friday, Aug. 11, involving a four-year-old boy and an eight-year-old girl, El Paso Fire Department officials would like to remind the public that it is essential to take extra safety precautions around swimming pools. Each year in the United States 250 children under five years of age drown in swimming pools, said Lt. Mario E. Hernandez. In addition, 2,300 children will be treated at hospitals this year for injuries suffered in swimming pool accidents. To prevent swimming pool drownings and accidents, layers of protection are essential. Closely supervising young children and being prepared in case of an emergency are two very important things to remember. In addition:

- If a child is missing, always look in the swimming pool first. Seconds count!
- Knowing how to swim doesn't make a child drown-proof.
- Never use a floatation device as a substitute for supervision.
- Keep rescue equipment and a phone next to the pool.
- Install barriers around the pool. Fences and walls should be at least four feet high.
- Gates should be self-closing and self-latching.
- Never leave toys floating in the pool. They attract young children who might try to reach for them.
- Use a pool cover when the pool is not in use.
- Learn cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). The life you save might be your child's.

Officer's long and distinguished service record earns recognition

EL PASO COUNTY — Deputy Carlos Tavarez was named Law Enforcement Officer of the Year by El Paso American Legion Law Enforcement Post 74 and the Forty et Eight.

He is a 23-year veteran of the El Paso County Sheriff's Office and currently assigned to the Patrol Section. He was involved in a number of community projects for the Sheriff's Office, but was a strong advocate for community policing in the Canutillo neighborhood.

El Paso American Legion Law Enforcement Post 74 was organized in 1987 as a specialty post whose members must not only be wartime service veterans but also active or retired law enforcement officers. Judging guidelines for Law Enforcement Officer of the Year include performance in community service, professional career, heroism, and letters of recognition.

charitable works. Membership is by invitation for members of the American Legion who have shown exemplary service.

Tavarez continues to be a relentless promoter of the Graffiti Wipeout Campaign as he works with community leaders and businesses to continue the decrease in graffiti incidents. At his recognition ceremony he encouraged the residents of Canutillo to take ownership of their community.

"I'm proud of all of the men and women in our agency. I'm extremely proud of Deputy Tavarez for his hard work," said El Paso County Sheriff Leo Samaniego. "The statewide recognition as Law Enforcement Officer of the Year by Forty et Eight chapter is a credit to his commitment to making El Paso a great community."

"I'm humbled by the award," Tavarez said. "It really is a team effort. Everyone I work with in community service and patrol knows we can make a difference — today someone noticed."

Both are also nominated for state honors which will be decided in the upcoming months.

"I am very fortunate because the committee felt I was deserving of the honor based on the nominee form," says Tidwell. "I am honored to receive this award for Region XIX because I know that there are a lot of people who are deserving of this honor."

Blobner appointed to Horizon City council seat

Council rejects committee recommendations

By Arleen Beard
 Special to the Courier

HORIZON CITY — The Horizon City Council has filled by appointment a vacancy created by the resignation of Councilman Bethany Shillady Sellers, electing to decline recommendations made by its citizens' committee.

On Aug. 8, at the regularly scheduled City Council meeting, recommendations were made to fill Place 5 left vacant by Sellers, who resigned because she was moving to Florida.

Duane Juvrud addressed Council as a member of the committee appointed by council to study applications and make recommendations regarding the appointment. Juvrud said the committee had selected two names to submit for the council's consideration as the best candidates to fill the position.

Other members of the review committee were Dawn Post and former Horizon City Mayor Pat Randleel.

Juvrud said the committee members had gone over the qualifications and felt that either Ellis Thompson or Donald Robert Smasal were the best qualified of the eight who had submitted resumes and letters of interest.

Council members questioned Juvrud regarding the basis on which they had made their recommendations. Juvrud said they looked primarily at their work history and experience.

He added that the committee had eliminated two applicants because they had been candidates who previously ran for City Council, but were defeated. Juvrud, speaking on behalf of the committee, said they felt the community had voiced its opinion about the two at the ballot box.

Councilman Luis Najera then made a motion to nominate Jay Blobner, a former city councilman who was one of the candidates who had previously run but lost the election by a small margin.

It was stated that Council members felt he had done a good job during his service and that he would be best person to fill the vacancy. Council then voted unanimously to appoint Blobner to replace Sellers in Place 5.

El Paso County approved for federal disaster aid

Courier Staff Reports

EL PASO COUNTY — President Bush has approved a federal disaster declaration for El Paso as a result of recent flooding in the area.

"This disaster declaration means much needed assistance to El Paso is on its way," Gov. Rick Perry said. "Dozens of El Paso-area residents' homes were severely damaged or destroyed in the flooding, and this action will help them get back on their feet."

State Representative Chente Quintanilla added that people will have to initiate their own claims. "Please be aware of when the disaster teams visit your area. My office will have information available if you have questions. My staff and I will be there to help you," said Quintanilla. "Now our county will be visited by scores of people who will be recording your problems in order to provide financial assistance. I urge all of you who need help to be prepared with the information the Feds will need such as pictures and receipts."

Under the Federal Stafford Act, Tuesday's action makes Texans whose homes and property were destroyed or damaged by flooding eligible to receive individual assistance.

Heavy rains began in El Paso in late July and lasted more than a week. August brought torrential rains that washed out roads and flooded homes.

Individual Assistance programs are provided for losses by individuals and families that are not covered by insurance. Individual assistance can include financial assistance, temporary housing, tax relief, legal services, crisis counseling and Disaster Unemployment Assistance.

El Paso also is eligible for Public Assistance, which is provided for damages to roads, bridges, water treatment facilities, publicly-owned utilities and other public structures.

Assistance to small businesses also is available through Small Business Administration (SBA) loans.

Other assistance programs that are made available with a Presidential Disaster Declaration include:

- For people who have lost their homes, disaster housing assistance can include funds for repairs, providing temporary housing, rental assistance or reimbursement for hotel/motel lodging costs.

- Other Needs Assistance from the Individual and Households Program is provided for necessary expenses and serious needs not met by insurance, loans or other forms of assistance. Among other things, this assistance can be provided for medical, dental and funeral expenses.

- The Small Business Administration (SBA) provides low-interest loans to homeowners, renters and businesses affected by the disaster.

- Crisis counseling is available to anyone in the designated disaster area.

- Disaster Unemployment Assistance is administered by the Texas Workforce

Advocacy for the under-chicken

I read an article recently that would make a white dove's feathers stand on end.

In Cuban communities which practice Santeria — an Afro-Cuban religion still extant in Cuba and Florida — the white dove, goats, chickens and other popular sacrificial animals are constantly looking over their shoulders these days because they are likely to lose their lives as part of a sacrificial prayer that Fidel Castro either get well or die, depending on one's politics.

According to Reuters news agency, the creature-dealers in Miami are doing a booming business — about $15 a bird.

We in the so-called "civilized world" may scoff at the way less-veloped cultures interrelate with the animal kingdom. We understand that it won't make one bit of difference in Castro's health whether you give a goat to an imaginary god. We are united in our understanding that humans, supposedly being among the more intelligent of life forms, have a responsibility to relate to our fellow creatures on this planet with balance and compassion, right?

Well, maybe that depends on your politics, too.

There's an entire segment of our society who are members of PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals) or at least sympathize with their views. These folks are militant in their insistence that animals are due at least all the inalienable rights that humans have, if not more. And they are willing to put their money where their mouth is, not to mention their monthly e-mail allotments. Judging from the size and frequency of their lawsuits, they've apparently got some pretty wealthy members.

While we have strict laws prohibiting cruelty to animals, we think nothing of giving various kinds of animals some horrendous diseases for the sole purpose of testing the effectiveness of equally fearsome treatments to see if we can cure them.

Reminds me a little of our "civilized" policy on abortion where parents, with the assistance of a doctor, can kill an unborn baby intentionally, no one faces legal consequences. However, if the mother refuses prenatal care or takes harmful drugs, she could face criminal prosecution as can the person at fault who injures or kills an unborn child in a car accident or by some other unfortunate circumstance.

Hmmm... We get plumb up in arms with people who starve their animals but there is an animal shelter in Germany which wants to file charges against the owner of a cat which was anonymously left there because the cat is overweight. They put the cat, named Milka, on a crash diet and administered all kinds of emergency health care. They posted pictures of it on the internet so you can go look at it and keep track of its trek back to health. I was just thinking that there are starving children all over the world who would like to get that kind of attention.

Then there is a man facing prosecution for freezing the body of his dog — which died of natural causes — because he didn't have time to give it a proper burial. Unfortunately, the reason he didn't have time to bury it was because he was moving to a new apartment, and he failed to retrieve his dog before the new tenant moved into his vacated quarters. It gave her quite a shock when she opened the freezer door.

Even when one of our animal friends goes completely beyond all bounds of good behavior and commits an unpardonable act, we sometimes can't bring ourselves to administer justice. Reminds me sort of how our justice system says that people who commit unspeak-able and debased crimes should be put to death but still keeps them alive on death row for decades. Consider the saga of Barney, the sleek and handsome Doberman guard dog.

He was supposed to be guarding an exhibition of rare and valuable teddy bears, but instead he went a little nuts one night and tore a bunch of them up.

Among these was a bear named Mabel, reputed to be a beloved possession of the late rock n' roll legend Elvis Presley, more recently the property of one Sir Benjamin Slade who paid about $75,000 for it at auction. He is said to be "hopping mad."

The spokesman for the exhibition said Barney will be put to pasture where, incredibly, "he can chase chickens."

Back where I came from, a dog that chased chickens met its fate a whole lot quicker than one that chewed up a stuffed toy.

There really should be an advocacy for the under-chickens Barney is going to harass. At least we don't provide an equivalent for the folks on death row... do we?

ONE TEAM - ONE GOAL

Reyes Reports By U.S. Rep. Silvestre Reyes

Two projects showcase El Paso's visionary approach to water

El Paso is leading the country and even the world in the area of water resources management. In the Eastside, the $87 million El Paso/Fort Bliss Desalination Plant is currently under construction. This facility, under the leadership of the El Paso Water Utilities Public Service Board (PSB), will produce 27.5 million gallons of water per day and is the largest public-public partnership involving the Department of Defense and a private community.

El Paso will also soon be home to another innovative new project that reinforces our community's prominence in water management, as this week marks the groundbreaking for the Tech20 Water Resource Learning Center. This $7.6 million education complex, funded in part by federal dollars, will showcase the science behind the desalination process in a way people of all ages can understand and appreciate, while facilitating technology transfer among scientists and water resources professionals.

Tech20 will be state-of-the-art, with impressive exhibits, a beautiful 250-seat auditorium, and a communications room with the latest in video conferencing. The facility and its programs will be a great asset to El Paso Water Utilities, researchers, students and teachers, and the El Paso community as a whole.

It will showcase membrane technology and the desalination process. Its interactive exhibits, displays, and demonstration projects will explore four themes — the Chihuahuan Desert ecosystem, the Hueco and Mesilla Bolsons, the Rio Grande, and alternative water resources. El Paso Water Utilities is working with local school districts to develop science curricula based on the Tech20 exhibits.

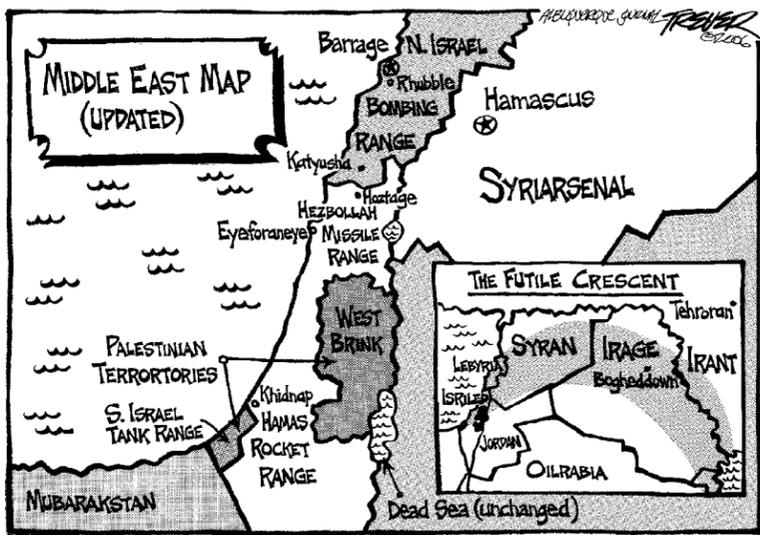

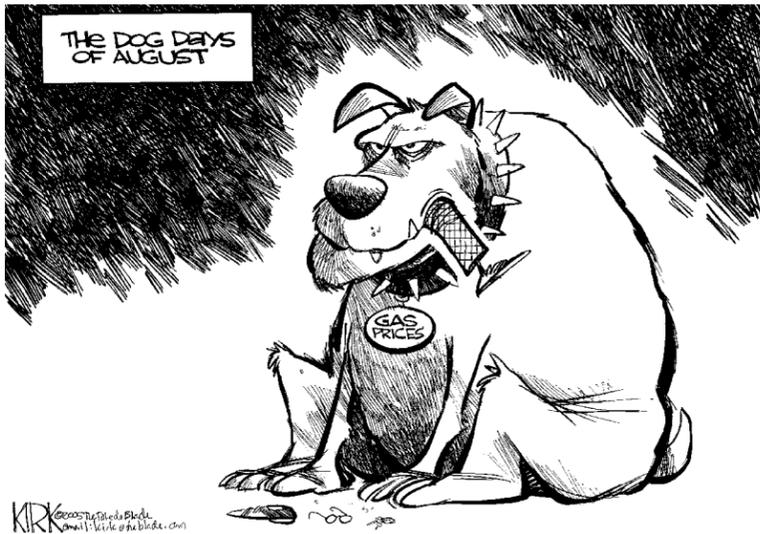

Tech20 will open in summer 2007, and this new facility, along with the desalination plant itself, will be a great testament to the leadership and collaboration that exists within El Paso. I commend the PSB and Chair Fermin Acosta, El Paso Water Utilities and General Manager Ed Archuleta, the UTEP and President Diana Natalicio, and Fort Bliss for all their hard work in getting this very impressive project started.

Partnerships like these are so important, and are also evident in the evolution of the desalination plant. I worked to help secure $26 million in funding from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and $3 million in military construction funding for the plant. El Paso Water Utilities also provided $58 million.

The plant will increase fresh water production for El Paso by 25 percent based on current demand, and ensure El Paso and Fort Bliss will have sufficient clean water for growth and development for 50 years and beyond. The availability of fresh water is a serious problem for El Paso, and this project is a realization of a vision and a dream for future generations of El Pasoans.

As we have seen with the flooding here in El Paso, preparation, collaboration and partnerships are key, and we must invest in long-term plans for the safety and well-being of our community. The Desalination Plant and Tech20 Water Resource Learning Center are important steps we are taking to ensure future generations of El Pasoans will have safe, clean water. I look forward to our continued work together, and for the opening of both of these valuable facilities.

UPPER VALLEY — The Upper Valley Lions Club and Western Hills United Methodist Church teamed up to provide school supplies to 200 students in the Canutillo Independent School District who were affected by the recent flooding. Members from both organizations volunteered during the first week of school to help sort and distribute the supplies.

"We are working with all our families to be sure they have what they need, but first and foremost, students need to come to school where there is a familiar and supportive routine," said Dr. Pam Padilla, CISD Superintendent. "Because of the support and donations provided by the Upper Valley Lions Club, our students were able to attend school on time and with appropriate supplies," she added.

San Eli trio looking to make a difference in 2006-2007

By Phillip Cortez
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO — Fernie Ibarra, a senior at San Elizario High School, has been racking up the frequent flyer miles, thanks to his participation in Skills USA. Whether he was strolling through a terminal in Austin or representing the state of Texas in Kansas City, by the time Ibarra graduates in 2007, he will have represented San Elizario High School 11 times as Skills USA District 1 President.

"He's the first District 1 president from San Elizario," said Sylvia Rubalcaba, who assists in the high school print shop and helps students involved in Skills USA.

Ibarra is fresh off his latest trip, the Skills USA National Competition in Kansas City, and while having a title is one thing, he wants to make sure that other students in San Elizario and the rest of District 1 will be able to experience the atmosphere and camaraderie he felt during his time in Missouri.

"I want as many (District 1) officers to experience that," Ibarra said. "We have the talent to compete at the national level."

Consider Sammy Dominguez and Syria Alvidrez proof of that talent. With Ibarra, the trio gives San Elizario High School three district officers for Skills USA, the most the school has ever had. Both placed at the state competition last spring, with Alvidrez taking third in Community Service and Dominguez winning the state pin design competition. In fact, it will be Dominguez' design that people will see and wear throughout the year, including the state competition in Corpus Christi and in Kansas City for nationals again. He was one of the few who placed first from El Paso during the state competition.

"They've gone through the leadership and they are qualified," said Jose Olivas, Advertising and Graphic Design instructor at San Elizario High School. "Now we have to find a way to get them there. It's a good opportunity for them to see other parts of the world."

There are roughly 500 students throughout El Paso County who participate in Skills USA, including about 70 from San Elizario High School. Skills USA is a national nonprofit organization serving teachers and high school and college students who are preparing for careers in trade, technical and skilled service occupations, including health occupations.

Only schools with a rating of exemplary or recognized may participate in the grant application.

"These campuses are eligible because of their performance on the TAKS test, more specifically because of their progress or increases in TAKS scores," says Antonio Baca, Assistant Superintendent for Secondary Education. "The grant can be used for incentives, staff development and other instructional programs."

Applications for this non-competitive grant are due Oct. 5, 2006. Each qualifying campus is eligible for an annual grant award ranging between $60,000 and $220,000, depending on the size of the student population at the eligible campus. A total of approximately $100 million is available for funding the Governor's Educator Excellence Award Program ñ Texas Educator Excellence Grant. This project is funded 100 percent from state funds, House Bill 1, Enacted in the Third Session of the 79th Legislative Session, Subchapter N, Awards for Student Achievement.

SEISD set to open Adult Education Programs

By Phillip Cortez
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO — Just

because students throughout the San Elizario Independent School District began going back to class on Aug. 14 doesn't mean that their parents and other community members won't be going back to school, too. That's because the Adult Education Program is set to begin its own school year, according to Josie Campos, Adult Education Program Facilitator.

Beginning Aug. 28 this year adults in the community are invited to participate in ESL and GED classes from 6-8 p.m. ESL classes will take place at Excell Academy, 13725 Socorro Rd. Meanwhile, the GED class will take place next door at Loya Primary School, 13705 Socorro Rd. in Portable 5. A morning GED class is available for those who cannot participate in the evening GED class, Campos said. This class is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. in the same location.

Literacy classes will also be offered to the adult community in San Elizario beginning Sept. 5 at Borrego Elementary. Instruction for this class will be offered for those who have minimal competency in reading, writing, and who are proficient in the English language. The class is scheduled to meet Monday through Thursday at 8:30 a.m. but will start on Tuesday, Sept. 5 because of Labor Day.

On Sept. 6, the Adult Education Program begins its computer classes for beginners, intermediate, and advanced users. Classes will be held Wednesday through Friday from 9-12:30 p.m. at Loya Primary in Portable 7. An evening computer class will be held on Mondays beginning Sept. 11 from 6-8 p.m. Campos said that if this class fills up, there is a possibility that another class will become available.

For more information on Adult Education Classes, contact Josie Campos at 872-3939 ext. 3646.

10th year and Tidwell's seventh at the school. Tidwell who has been at the school as a teacher, assistant principal and principal recalls her journey to her current position and feels her experiences there gives her a sense of ownership.

"I decided that I really needed to change. I wanted to go into administration after having been on one campus for 14 years. I transferred here as a teacher when the school opened in July until April when an AP position became available," she recalls. "I was fortunate and promoted to assistant principal. I spent two years here then transferred to an elementary for two years and middle school for a year and then the principal position became available here."

With 26 years in the Socorro district, Tidwell credits her mother, a kindergarten teacher, and Socorro administrators for helping her reach her goals.

"I used to go and help her with her classroom like other teachers' children do, I always had fun, played school a lot as a child and then I had some great teachers throughout my education. A lot of them had a strong influence on me," she says. "I also had excellent mentors and I do attribute where I am today to those people."

She recommends others to be involved in a variety of programs, to take risks and volunteer.

"Mr. Neito was the principal and he afforded me the opportunity to get involved and do all those things and that definitely helped me grow and helped me know that I really want to do this and feel confident that I could do it," Tidwell says.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE

2006 Property Tax Rates in Town of Horizon City

This notice concerns 2006 property tax rates for the Town of Horizon City. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Tetrahedron kites take flight in Canutillo

UPPER VALLEY — Students at Deanna Davenport Elementary School who attended Summer Science Camp in June and July were pleased that the weather cooperated with just the right breezy conditions for the test flights of their homemade tetrahedron kites. Kites were made with string, straws and tissue paper. Students experimented with different methods of tying the kite string to determine which method resulted in the best flying kite.

Operation Bounce to target hot check writers

By Elhiu Dominguez
Special to the Courier

EL PASO COUNTY — The El Paso County Attorney José Rodríguez, El Paso Sheriff Leo Samaniego, County Constables and members of several other law enforcement agencies announced the implementation of Operation Bounce on Aug. 9, a major initiative directed towards the prosecution and collection of money from hot check writers.

The operation began on Sunday, Aug. 13 with the publication of the more than 4,500 names of individuals with theft by check outstanding warrants, representing almost $4 million dollars.

The publication of the list marks the start of a two-week amnesty period during which the hot check writers may avoid arrest and criminal prosecution if they voluntarily pay off their hot-check balances at the El Paso County Courthouse.

During this period, the Hot Check payment windows at the County Attorney's Office, 500 E. San Antonio, room 503, will remain open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Individuals must pay the exact amount due. Change is not available at the windows. Payments can be made by money order, cashiers checks, cash in exact amount only, or Visa and Master Card credit cards.

No debit or check cards will be accepted.

Operation Bounce will begin immediately after the end of the amnesty period, on Aug. 26. Deputies from the Sheriff Office, the County Constables, and several other local law enforcement agencies will start a countywide arrest warrant round-up. The round-up will consist of officers going out and arresting hot-check writers at their homes or place of employment.

During a similar operation conducted earlier this year with the El Paso Police Department, the County Attorney's Office recovered more than $180,000 for local business. Still it currently has almost 5,000 outstanding hot check warrants that represent around $3.95 million owed to local merchants.

"Although it has been decreasing over the years, theft by check is still a serious problem in our community. Local small businesses often face financial difficulties because of their losses from hot checks," said Rodríguez.

"Operation Bounce is just one of several initiatives from our office directed towards decreasing this problem in our community. We are making it easier for merchants to report hot checks; we are giving them electronic access to their accounts 24 hours a day, seven days a week to find out about any payments made to their account. And we are getting ready to begin a 'most wanted' type of program for hot check writers," he explained.

For more information regarding hot check payments and balances contact the El Paso County Attorney's Office Hot Check Unit at 546-2051.

The complete and updated list of individuals with theft by check outstanding warrants has been posted in the El Paso County web site at www.epcounty.com

■ Each year more deaths occur due to flooding than from any other thunderstorm or hurricane related hazard. Most of these deaths are due to careless or unsuspecting motorists who attempt to navigate through flooded roads. While it seems unusual that a desert climate like El Paso should concern itself with flooding, the recent rainstorms have proven this region is not exempt from associated dangers. El Paso Fire Dept. spokesman Lt. Mario E. Hernandez offers these safety tips:

- Head to higher ground if flooding is suspected.
- Avoid walking in areas with rapid flowing water — it takes only six inches to be swept off your feet.
- Never let children play in flooded areas; flooded areas hide hazards like sink holes.
- Never drive through flowing water — it takes only two feet of flowing water to float away most cars.
- If your vehicle stalls, leave immediately and seek higher ground.
- Sandbags are available at all Fire Stations and are free to the public.

Act quickly to prevent mold growth after flooding conditions

By Janie Harris
Special to the Courier

When the power goes off during hot, humid conditions it is difficult to avoid an explosion of mold growth. Mold growth is common after flooding or water damage.

Under the right conditions, molds produce spores that spread easily through the air and form new mold growths known as colonies. These conditions include moisture, nutrients — which can be nearly anything organic — and a place to grow. Mold can damage your home, possessions and health. The longer you allow mold to grow, the greater the risk and the more difficult the cleanup.

As soon as it is safe to return home, begin cleaning and drying your home and possessions.

Usually you do not need to have the mold tested; such tests are rarely useful to answer questions about health concerns. However, some insurance companies and legal services may require sampling for documentation.

The best way to avoid mold hazards is to hire a reputable firm that is licensed and trained in dealing with water damage and mold remediation. As that may be difficult after a disaster, you may have to do the cleanup yourself. If so, follow the steps below.

After a flood

First take an inventory. Compile a room-by-room inventory of missing or damaged goods, and include prices, manufacturer's names, and dates and places of purchases. Take photographs to document the damages for insurance purposes.

Dry all wet materials as quickly as possible. If possible, use air conditioning or heat with fans and dehumidifiers. If you have no power and can get access to a generator, use the generator to run a dehumidifier indoors to help remove moisture from the air. New mold colonies can form in as little as three days if materials stay wet. Even if the wood and other materials look dry, they can still be wet enough to support regrowth.

Remove wet carpeting right away. It's best to discard wet carpeting. If you do salvage it, clean, disinfect and dry it quickly. Never reuse flooded padding.

Cut away wet wallboard and remove all damp insulation immediately. Even if the wallboard appears to be dry, wet insulation stays wet for too long, allowing the growth of hidden, unhealthy mold and decay fungi inside the walls.

Clean items with nonphosphate detergents. Any phosphate residue is mold food. If you disinfect them, follow the directions carefully and never mix bleach with ammonia or acids, such as vinegar. Although disinfectants can kill molds, they do not prevent regrowth.

Do all you can to speed the drying of subfloors, slabs and wall framing before replacing insulation, wallboard and flooring. Use air conditioning, heaters, fans or, better yet, a dehumidifier. Contractors that specialize in water damage restoration have special equipment (dehumidifying blowers) that can provide the fastest drying.

Use a moisture meter to test the moisture content of studs and sheathing if possible before replacing insulation. Wood-products specialists recommend that wood have no more than 14 percent moisture by weight before you close the wall.

DO NOT use vinyl wallpaper. It will prevent further drying on the inside.

Mold cleanup guidelines

Minimize your exposure during cleanup. People are exposed to mold by breathing spores or fragments. They can also be exposed through skin contact.

Wear gloves and a mask (N-95 or better) or a respirator to filter out mold spores. If you are sensitive to mold, wear splash goggles to help protect your eyes. Wear long sleeves, long pants and sturdy shoes.

Isolate the work area and ventilate it to outdoors. Because disturbing mold colonies can cause a massive release of spores, seal off the contaminated area from the rest of the house. If the power is on, use a fan to send air to the outdoors. If you have no power, ventilate the area if the outside humidity level is not above 60 percent.

Remove and discard moldy materials. Porous materials that are moldy or sewage-contaminated should be removed, bagged and thrown away. This includes paper, insulation, plaster, carpet, carpet padding, ceiling tiles, gypsum wallboard and processed wood products. To minimize the spread of spores, cover the moldy material with plastic to contain the spores before removal.

Items that can be cleaned in a washing machine likely can be saved, depending on how long the mold has been growing on them. Extended periods of mold or mildew growth may stain them.

Discard upholstered fabric furniture if it has been in a flood. If it has only surface mold on it, you might be able to clean it outdoors by letting the mold dry in the sun and then cleaning it with a HEPA-filtered vacuum.

Clean all surfaces. Surface mold can usually be cleaned from nonporous materials such as hard plastic, concrete, glass, metal and solid wood. The cleaning must remove — not just kill — the mold because dead spores can still cause health problems.

After cleaning, you may choose to use a disinfectant to kill any mold missed by the cleaning. In the case of sewage contamination, you must disinfect. Use 1 cup of bleach to 1 gallon of water solution.

Always handle bleach with caution. Never mix it with ammonia; test on a small area before treatment.

Do not use bleach in the air system. Instead, use milder, less corrosive disinfectants such as alcohols, disinfecting cleaners and hydrogen peroxide.

You may wish to consult a specialist if you are unsure about how to clean an item, or if the item is expensive or of sentimental value. Phone books often have listings of specialists in furniture repair, restoration, painting, art restoration and conservation, carpet and rug cleaning, water damage, and fire or water restoration. Look for specialists who are affiliated with professional organizations. Be sure to ask for and check references.

Remain on mold alert. Continue looking for signs of moisture or new mold growth. If the mold returns, repeat the cleaning and consider using speed drying equipment and moisture meters. Regrowth may signal that the material was not dry enough or should be removed. Wait to rebuild and refurnish until all the affected materials have dried completely.

What's up, doc? By Albert Balesh, M.D.

Skin Deep

(Part 1)

From pimples to elephant men, the gamut is vast, but the terrain is the same. Skin is as deep as you need go, to discover what lurks beneath. More than a mere peephole, the integument provides a panoramic view to the internist bent on providing appropriate diagnosis, treatment, or referral to a dermatologist. So, let's dive in, but keep it simple. The terminology is long and romantic, but, while tongues twist, principles are relatively straightforward. Observation is the name of the game, my dear Watson.

As we open the window to the inner workings of our biologic machinery, we note that skin manifestations can be associated with cutaneous, oncologic, cardiovascular, pulmonary, rheumatic, gastrointestinal, endocrine, and metabolic disorders. One size does not fit all, however, and it is the astute and patient clinician who brings order to the chaos of sameness. For while a blemish may mean house arrest for a testosterone-charged adolescent, it can signify something far more sinister for those whose middle years have been breached. Shakespeare called the same entity by many names. Today we give many names to different entities that may all look the same.

Enough of the cryptic, it's on to the concrete. Whether we call it seborrheic dermatitis, seborrheic keratosis, urticaria, erythema multiforme, vitiligo, or erythema nodosum, we must concede that something is "rotten in Denmark." While the hard, warty plaques of seborrheic keratosis may warrant a deeper look for an underlying adenocarcinoma of the gastrointestinal tract, the depigmented skin patches of vitiligo are no less important, serving as beacons to illuminate possible cases of thyroid disease, diabetes mellitus, pernicious anemia, or Addison's disease (insufficiency of the adrenal gland). And who hasn't seen the fluid-filled, cutaneous bubbles of urticaria, commonly known as hives, brought on by penicillin, sulfa drugs, aspirin, shellfish, nuts, and chocolate.

We never forget our first kiss, the prom, that sleek, new hot-rod we hid from our parents, or the unexpected roll in the hay on a warm, summer night. No less memorable, for those in their crosshairs, are the cutaneous metastases of buried cancers of the breast, colon, lung, and genitourinary tract. Their slumber and our relative complacency is often disturbed by the sprouting of epidermoid cysts and plaques that demand our attention when the cause may already be lost. And what of acanthosis nigricans, whose bark may or may not be as big as its bite? While its smooth, hard, velvet-like, skin plaques in the groin, axillae, and neck areas may warrant alarm and a trip to the barrister to put one's affairs in order, due to its association with abdominal cancer, it may be caused by something much less injurious such as obesity, insulin-resistant diabetes, or systemic corticosteroids.

As children, we crossed our hearts and hoped to die when we made assertions requiring blind credence on the part of an audience. Nothing bad ever happened to us. So, those little white lies served as judge, jury, and coat of armor. Not so with little brown freckles. While they look innocuous enough, they may signal underlying cardiovascular problems, colorfully named LEOPARD, LAMB, or NAME syndromes. Nor are all the incantations in the world a match for a broken heart, when the yellow skin papules of pseudoxanthoma elasticum and the blue eye sclerae of Ehlers-Danlos syndrome point to defects of elastic and collagen fibers, respectively, and a "wicker ticker."

While the "all clear" of an annual checkup evokes sighs of relief in those sailing uncharted waters, a sudden shift in surface tides may generate ripples indicative of the disturbed slumber of deeper demons.

Clarett's choices have been as consistent as they have been bad

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

In one of those classic "from the penthouse to the outhouse" scenarios, Maurice Clarett made headlines once again last week. But instead of crossing the goal line, these days he seems to always find himself in a police lineup.

Eventually, even the dumbest of us pull our hands away when we touch something hot. This is called "cause and effect" or a "conditioned reflex." Even Pavlov's poodle knew a little something about that.

All of us face "forks in the road" in our lives. Big decisions we have to make that will take us in one direction or the other. Most of us at least try to go in the positive direction, the direction that will lead us to happiness and prosperity.

And then there is Clarett who — well, frankly — shouldn't even be on the road in the first place. He'd probably take the fork and try to hurt someone with it.

Remember that Fiesta Bowl a few years ago when, as a freshman, Clarett scored the winning touchdown that gave Ohio State its first national title since 1968?

Back then the sky was the limit. He had million dollar endorsement deals just waiting for his signature. But then he began making a few of those "fork in road" choices.

He got himself involved in a tough situation at Ohio State and when confronted with it — decided to give a false statement to police on the matter. He sat out the entire 2003 season and eventually dropped out of college.

He then challenged the NFL rule about entering the draft early, and lost. He was drafted by the Denver Broncos the next year but was cut during the pre-season.

That's when Clarett's "fork in the road" morphed into a one-way street leading straight downhill.

At the age of 22, Clarett is awaiting trial on two counts of aggravated robbery, four counts of robbery and one count of carrying a concealed weapon.

But the guy was tenacious on the football field, so why wouldn't he be just as aggressive in his new chosen field — crime?

Clarett was arrested last week after he was spotted by police driving erratically on a freeway in Ohio. But it only started there.

Seems Clarett was going along his merry way when he must have seen an imaginary fork in the road and made a U-turn on the freeway. Police tried to pull him over and Clarett had a decision to make — naturally, he chose to try and outrun the police.

And it turns out there was a good reason he tried to run. When finally corralled, Clarett had no less than four loaded weapons in his car and he was wearing a bulletproof vest.

This was discovered after stun guns were ineffective when shot against the vest. The police had to mace Clarett to subdue him.

Now, I'm not the brightest light in the tool shed, but I can't figure out why a person would wear a bulletproof vest if he didn't have to.

I occasionally catch the fashion channel on cable and I've never seen any supermodels strolling down the aisle wearing a suggestive Christian Dior backless ensemble, a magnificent pair of Loeffler Randall shoes and a rugged yet fashionable bulletproof vest.

As bizarre as all this is, it gets darker when you throw in the fact that Clarett was stopped only a few blocks from a woman's house who was scheduled to testify against him in his robbery trial.

A coincidence? I'm not sure what to think any more.

Anyway, the judge saw the guy as an imminent threat and set Clarett's bail at $5 million.

I've written about many guys and girls who have taken the plunge from grace. And I'll write about many more, but this case is especially troubling when you consider how much this lost soul has thrown away.

You have to feel bad for someone who had so much going for him but then you're brought back to reality after you hear that he mocks the judge, fights with police and has almost none of the characteristics that make us thinking, compassionate human beings.

In all the "forks in the road" life throws at us, everyone manages to make some good decisions even if only by accident.

But Clarett is an oddity. He seems to choose the exact opposite of what he should do, all the time.

This does at least make him consistent — but it also makes him a fool.

celebrate the 12th campus to the district.

Horizon Middle School, home of the Hawks, began as a school within a school at Horizon High School. In 2005, the school was temporarily housed at C.T. Welch Intermediate while the students and staff waited for the new facility on North Kenazo to be completed.

Horizon Middle School is the final project of the 2001 bond issue. It was designed by SMS Architects and Arcon Group Consultants to house 1,400 students. Constructed by VEMAC, the facility includes 49 classrooms, two gyms, football, softball, and baseball fields, basketball courts, a cafetorium, band room, choir room, library, four computer labs, three science labs, a living skills room, an art room and more.

With the completion of the new school, the campus configuration in the Horizon area has changed to meet the student growth. Frank Macias Elementary and Desert Hills Elementary are now both pre-K through 3rd grade campuses. C.T. Welch Intermediate has students in grades four and five. Horizon Middle School has students in grades six, seven and eight. Horizon High School has students in grades 9 through 12.

The district will now commence with the 2006 bond commitments to keep up with the growth of the district. Clint ISD is projected to have 24,000 students by the year 2010 based on current developments. The district opened the 2006-2007 school year with about 9,800 students which is 475 more than last year. Horizon Middle School was expected to open with 1,150 students in grades six, seven and eight.

Finally, Americans are excited about soccer

By Don Flood

Remember that scene at the end of "Casablanca" where Rick and the police captain walk off into the misty night:

"Louis, I think this is the beginning of a beautiful friendship."

Rick and Louis were bound together in a noble and heroic battle against the Nazis.

But great friendships aren't just the stuff of movies. They happen in real life.

Take this recent quote from Oprah Winfrey about the special relationship she has with her friend Gayle King:

"When I was 22 years old and working as a TV anchor in Baltimore, there was a young production assistant in the newsroom, Gayle King. One night there was a snowstorm and she couldn't get home.

"I said, 'Hey, you can spend the night at my house.' She said, 'I don't have any panties.'

"I said, 'Well, I do. I have clean panties, and once I give them to you, you don't have to give 'em back.'"

While Oprah and Gayle's friendship wasn't forged in a wartime adventure, it is similarly based on something strong and enduring: an appreciation for clean underwear.

This statement shows Oprah is more than just a caring, sensitive Super Celebrity. Her goal, obviously, is to wrest from Michael Jackson the title of Weirdest Person on the Planet.

Yes, Jackson's still the champ, but Oprah has proven she's a worthy contender.

Sadly, elsewhere on the pop-culture front, we must recognize the American soccer team was not a contender in the World Cup.

But for the first time in forever,

Americans were excited and talking about World Cup soccer.

The reason for the excitement points to where soccer needs to go to gain American acceptance: head-butting.

It's so simple, I wonder why I didn't think of it before. As soon as that French guy head-butted the Italian player, Americans began realizing: soccer is a real sport after all.

Now, if we can just incorporate head-butting into all soccer games, we can turn it into a big-time American sport.

I'm not saying we should dispense completely with the running and kicking the ball back and forth. That's tradition, and I respect that.

But we need the excitement that head-butting can bring. Here's how it would work. The players could continue running up and down the field for a while, though hopefully not so long.

If someone actually scored — which hasn't happened in years — the goal would count, but the running around would just be a chance for the players to warm up for the real game: a team head-butting face-off to decide the winner.

Following the warm-up, the ball would be removed from the field, lest it interfere with the match, and the two teams would face each other in a straight line.

Or a crooked line. Or no line at all. It doesn't matter.

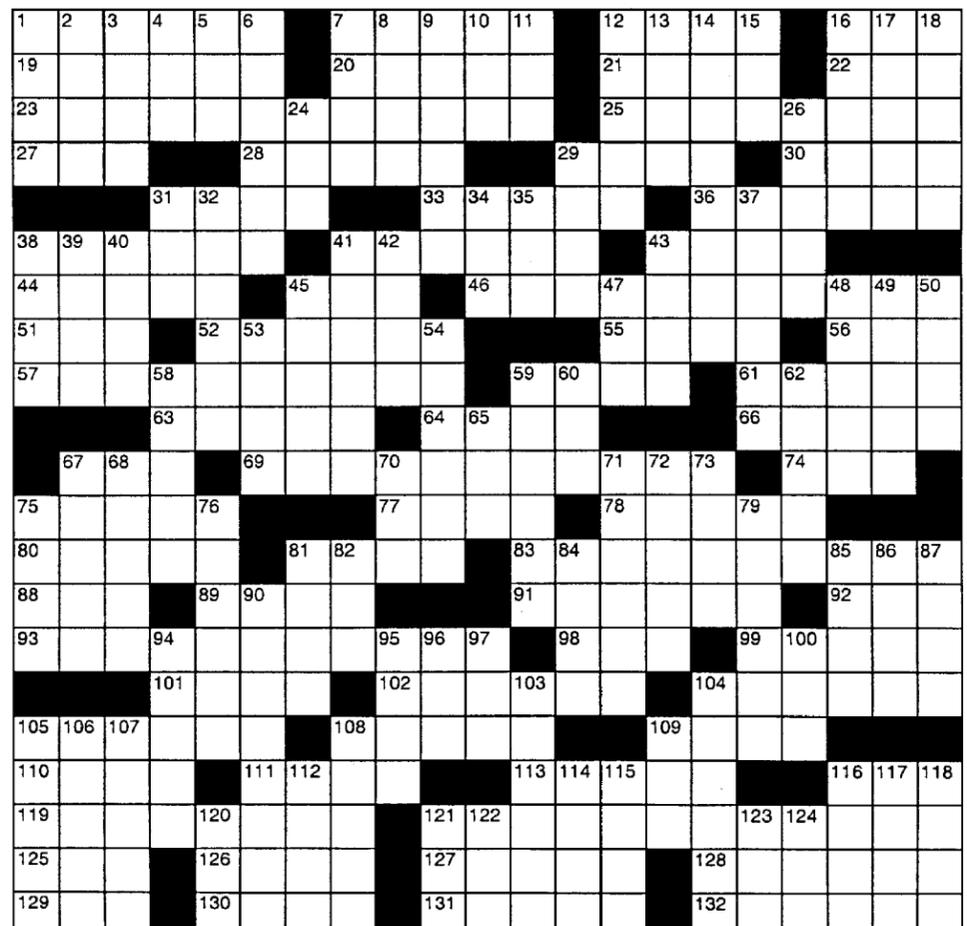

The point here is to achieve pure bedlam, a mad head-butting competition that a rabid ram would be afraid to enter. Last team standing would win.

The key now is to promote this great new soccer innovation. If we can get Oprah behind it, I think it will work.

Answer Page 14

Social Security Q&A By Ray Vigil

Q: I will be eligible for full retirement next year, but will probably hold off retiring for at least another year or two. Will my benefits increase if I wait and apply for retirement benefits later on?

A: Yes. If you continue to work, each additional year you work adds another year of earnings to your Social Security record. And if you earn more now than you did in the past, that could increase the amount of your monthly Social Security payments. Also, from the time you reach your full retirement age to age 70 you will earn delayed retirement credits. These credits can increase your benefit by a certain percentage (depending on date of birth) if you delay your retirement beyond full retirement age. For example, if you were born in 1943 or later, we will add 8 percent per year to your benefit for each year that you delay signing up for Social Security beyond your full retirement age.

Q: I have decided that later this spring, I will file for Social Security retirement benefits. I can save myself a trip to the Social Security office by applying online, right?

A: Yes. Simply go to www.socialsecurity.gov and look for the link Apply for retirement benefits in the center of the page.

Q: I did not apply for Medicare when I turned 65. Can I apply now?

A: No. You will be able to file during an open enrollment period which is from January 1 through March 31 of each year, permitting individuals age 65 or over who did not enroll or dropped their Part B Medicare coverage to sign up. Your coverage would begin July 1. Generally, a 10 percent premium penalty will be added to the monthly premium for each year you could have enrolled but did not. However, if you are covered by an employer or union group health plan through your or your spouse's current or active employment, you may qualify for a special enrollment period. The special enrollment period allows you to delay enrollment in Part B without paying a premium penalty or waiting for a general enrollment period. You have an eight-month special enrollment period if you have group health plan coverage from current employment at the time you first became eligible for Medicare. This special enrollment period begins with the month employment ends or the month your group health plan coverage ends, whichever comes first.
