San Eli ISD gold

For the second year in a row the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts has recognized the San Elizario Independent School District with a Gold Leadership

Circle Award for its successful efforts at implementing financial transparency. San Elizario ISD was recently notified that the district had scored 19 out of 20 possible points on the ratings criteria for the program. The award designation is valid for one year and signifies that the district is setting the bar high with its transparency efforts. The basic requirements of the Texas Comptroller's Leadership Circle call for districts to post their budget, annual financial report, and check register online for ease of access to taxpayers. Public entities from throughout the state apply annually to receive one of three Leadership Circle designations: bronze, silver or gold. The San Elizario ISD finance department under the leadership of Assistant Superintendent Rena Seifts has posted financial transparency documentation on its webpage that can be found at www.seisd.net/finance.aspx.

Hot check writers have chance to make good

Arrest roundups to follow publication of names

By Elhiu Dominguez
Special to the Courier

EL PASO COUNTY – El Paso County Attorney Jo Anne Bernal and El Paso County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Jesus Campa announced that they will be joined by Constables from Precincts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, in conducting a roundup of individuals with outstanding hot check warrants in El Paso County.

This cooperative effort by local law enforcement to arrest hot check writers will be preceded by the publication of the names and addresses of thousands of individuals with outstanding warrants, and an amnesty period in which residents can pay their outstanding amounts without being arrested.

Jo Anne Bernal

The list with the names of individuals with outstanding warrants will be published on Sunday April 1, 2012 by many local media outlets and the County's website. Individuals who want to avoid the publication of their names must pay their outstanding balances in full by Wednesday March 28, 2012.

The publication of the warrants list kicks-off a two-week amnesty period that runs from Sunday April 1 to Friday April 13, 2012.

Individuals who take advantage of the amnesty period and pay their outstanding balances before Friday, April 13, 2012, will avoid arrest during an upcoming countywide warrant roundup. Additionally, they will not have to pay extra fees, such as court costs, attorney fees, and the cost of posting a bond.

Residents with outstanding hot check warrants can make their payments in person at the following locations:

- El Paso County Courthouse
500 E. San Antonio, room 503
Mon. to Fri. from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
 - El Paso County Ysleta Annex
9521 Socorro Rd., Suite A-3
Mon. to Fri. from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.
- Additionally, during the amnesty period (April 1-13, 2012), residents of Northeast El Paso can make their payments in person at the following location:
- El Paso County Attorney's Northeast Annex Office
4641 Cohen St., Suite D
Mon. to Fri. from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 a.m.

Forms of payment accepted include credit cards, money orders, cashier checks, and cash; however, those paying with cash will have to bring the exact amount (cashiers cannot give change).

In addition, residents can make payments online 24 hours a day, seven days a week through "Hot Check E-pay," by visiting the El Paso County Attorney's Office web-page at <https://www.epcounty.com/hotchecks/>.

For more information regarding hot check payments and balances please contact the El Paso County Attorney's Office Hot Check Unit at 546-2051 or visit the El Paso County Attorney's Office web site at: www.epcounty.com/CA.

There are currently more than 2,700 names in the County's hot checks warrants list that owe local merchants more than $2.13 million dollars. During last fiscal year (2010-2011) the Hot Check Unit collected more than $905,000 in outstanding hot checks. So far, during the first 5 months of fiscal year 2011-2012 (October-February), the County Attorney's Office has collected over $330,000.

Bernal is encouraging individuals with outstanding warrants for writing hot checks to take advantage of this opportunity. In order to facilitate the payment of outstanding amounts, County Attorney's Office will be accepting payment plans for qualifying individuals.

"For many years now, the County Attorney's Office has been supporting local businesses by collecting their insufficient funds checks at no cost. We believe the public display of the names of individuals with warrants might serve as a deterrent for hot check writers, and will motivate some of them to come forward to pay any outstanding amounts before they face serious consequences," Bernal said. "Hot check writers who do not seize this opportunity will be arrested and will face criminal charges."

San Elizario ISD science teachers are national fellows for immediate success in the classroom. Recently, these two secondary educators were also chosen as Fellows in the 2011-2012 National Science Teachers Association (NSTA) New Science Teacher Academy that opened up an even wider network of support for them to build their portfolio of teaching experience. The fellowship awards Chavez and Luna a comprehensive NSTA membership, online mentoring and web-based professional

In the few short years that Susana Chavez and Ana Luna have been teaching science in the San Elizario Independent School District (SEISD) they have been busy making good use of the resources and tools available to them development opportunities and an all-expenses paid trip to the NSTA National Conference in Indianapolis from March 29 to April 1.

A total of 215 science teachers nationwide, including 52 from Texas, were selected from the NSTA fellowship. Chavez and Luna are the only two fellows from the El Paso area selected on the basis of showing evidence of a solid science background and a strong interest in growing as a professional science educator. They will participate in a year-long professional development program designed to promote quality science teaching, enhance teacher confidence and classroom excellence and improve teacher content knowledge. Since last summer they have been mentored by a seasoned teacher, have participated in web seminars and completed various assignments to meet the criteria for the fellowship according to Debbie Cortez, SEISD Science Instructional Officer.

Chavez is currently in her second year as a 6th-grade science teacher at Garcia-Enriquez Middle School and is looking forward to attending the national conference and bringing back new resources and ideas to integrate into her classroom.

"I feel privileged to be selected for this fellowship and I want to take full advantage of this opportunity," Chavez said.

Luna just narrowly met the requirements to apply for the fellowship since she is in the middle of her fourth year teaching science at San Elizario High School. She stated that the NSTA fellowship provides a wealth of information and assistance especially for new teachers who need a lot of help during the first few years. Luna also felt that the fellowship was beneficial for teachers who have had careers in other fields and are new to the profession. She added that she was grateful to be able to tap into the experiences and knowledge of educators from all over the country.

Both Chavez and Luna are looking forward to meeting some of the colleagues they have already communicated with online when they go to Indianapolis. Sharing their amazing adventures as NSTA fellows when they return to SEISD will be a bonus.

Texas graduation rate is tenth among states

By Alfredo Vasquez
Special to the Courier

EL PASO COUNTY – Texas has the tenth highest overall graduation rate among 34 states that are reporting the National Governors Association (NGA) Compact Graduation Rate for the Class of 2010, according to a comparison study released recently by the Texas

Education Agency (TEA). 2010 data is the most recent available for all state-funded schools.

The Compact Rate shows the overall graduation rate for Texas public school students was 84.3 percent. When broken down by ethnic or racial groups, Texas ranks even higher.

The four-year graduation rate for Region 19, which includes the nine school districts in El Paso County, was 80.7 percent, according to the TEA report.

Among the 34 states currently reporting the Compact Rate, also known as a four-year on-time graduation rate, Texas had the second highest graduation rate for white students at 91.6 percent and, along with Arkansas, the fourth highest rate for Hispanic students with 78.8 percent. Texas also had the fifth highest rate for African-American students at 78.8 percent.

When comparing the overall graduation rate, only the following states ranked higher than Texas: Iowa, Illinois, Vermont, North Dakota, Tennessee, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Virginia and Arkansas.

“Once again the numbers show that even with increasing the standards, Texas is graduating more students including higher numbers of our minority students,” said Robert Scott, Texas Commissioner of Education. “But we still have work to do to move the numbers even higher.”

The NGA Compact is a four-year, on-time graduation rate that emphasizes using actual student data over estimates. The Compact Rate is widely considered to be the best practical graduation rate capable of accurately comparing graduation rates across the nation.

In 2005, the governors of all 50 states signed the Graduation Counts Compact, and the Compact Rate became the accepted measure for calculating graduation rates. However, some states have not yet released results using this calculation.

Texas is considered a forerunner in the effort to institute the Compact Rate having been the first state to begin calculating and reporting a four-year, on-time graduation rate beginning with the class of 1996.

“The Compact Rate gives us and the rest of the nation a true apples-to-apples comparison of graduation rates in every state,” Scott said. “With the Compact Rate we have a clear idea of the numbers of students completing high school on-time within the four-year window. Early on Texas realized that reporting a solid, concise graduation rate was important,” he said.

Of the Texas students who did not graduate within four years, 7.2 percent continued in high school the fall after their expected graduation date, 1.3 percent received GED certificates, and 7.3 percent dropped out.

Students who continue high school in the fall after their expected graduation date or receive a GED are not considered graduates in the Compact Rate.

The Compact Rate differs from other graduation rates in two critical ways: (1) the data is comprised of graduates who receive regular or advanced diplomas within four years of entering ninth grade, and (2) the Compact Rate is derived from actual student-level data, rather than the estimated student counts used to calculate measures such as leaver and attrition rates.

Veterans Post By Freddy Groves

VA gets personal

If you are enrolled in the Veterans Affairs health care system, you're due to receive a personalized Health Benefits Handbook with all of your information in it.

The handbooks, which started rolling out in February, are being sent according to priority group, with Group 1 being the first to receive the handbooks. When you receive yours, read it and file it in a safe place (remember, it has your personal information in it). The handbooks are full of information you need about your benefits, including:

- Co-pays;
- How to make an appointment;
- How to communicate with your clinical team; and
- Medications you are taking at the time, as well as eyeglass prescriptions, nursing home information, dental benefits, specialized transportation, medical travel benefits and much more.

You'll also find information about coordinating your health care, your rights as a patient, getting care outside the VA, pharmacy services, telephone numbers for your preferred facility and more.

By next year, all 8.5 million health-care veterans will have received the handbooks. Be sure to check yours carefully because the information is personalized for you and contains your private information. If it's wrong, you need to speak up because it means something is incorrect somewhere in the system.

If any information is wrong, contact the VA immediately. This could be the spelling of your name, your preferred VA facility, benefits you know you're eligible for – no matter what it is, call and have it corrected.

To learn more about the coming handbook, go online to www.va.gov/healthbenefits/vhbh or call the VA at 1-877-222-VETS (8387). Give it time to get the booklets out in order of priority, but if you're in the first batch and months pass without receiving the booklet, give the VA a call.

Por la Gente By State Rep. Chente Quintanilla

Tax amnesty is bad idea

Hola, mi gente. The state comptroller issued a public notice that a business tax amnesty will be in place from June 12 through August 17, 2012. The amnesty is actually for penalties and interest that are levied for delinquent taxes.

It sure sounds exciting that the state can expect to collect tens of millions of dollars that businesses did not pay as required by state law. I just wonder why it even exists.

Sure, there is a solid incentive to pay the delinquent taxes. But why are the taxes delinquent?

When you go to a business and pay them money, do you hold back on paying the taxes? No, that does not happen if you want the product.

You are given a receipt that shows the items you bought, the cost for each and then, in a separate entry, the tax that you had to pay. There is no mystery about how much the tax was.

In the last such event, which is called Fresh Start, the comptroller boasted that an incredible $100 million dollars in delinquent taxes. Sales taxes that were collected totaled $47 million.

The question is: Why are these sales taxes not being paid and why are scofflaws being rewarded by avoiding penalties? As I wrote before, if a sales tax is owed, it is because a law abiding Texan paid it for services or products. There is no figuring a percentage of a payment at the end of the year, the tax is figured at the moment of sale.

There should be no amnesty for any business that fails to pay the sales taxes to the state. The comptroller should maintain the record of a business that is delinquent. There should be elevating penalties for those who are repeat offenders.

The $47 million the comptroller collected in 2007 stayed in the accounts of those businesses earning interest. Those businesses benefited by not paying the taxes timely; and then the comptroller compounded that by not assessing penalties.

I wish the state government were that easy on all of us. Have you ever been ticketed for an expired license or inspection sticker a year later and had your fines waived? Of course not.

The comptroller's office uses revenues from interest and penalty to finance a portion of its budget. By granting the amnesty, the comptroller is essentially adding to the budget shortfalls. Even if it is a very small amount, the amnesty causes money to be diverted from other programs in order to cover the shortfall. That is irresponsible action by the elected official in charge of our revenue collection.

The 2007 amnesty also collected $46 million in franchise taxes that were delinquent. I can't blame businesses on that one. The conservative leadership created such a confusing method of figuring a business's tax liability when the law was passed creating it.

You may recall the franchise tax was created to fill in the shortfall when school property tax rates were reduced by 1/3. That tax has never generated the projected revenues for our schools. The deficit has lingered around a $2 billion level.

That reason should be enough to be stricter on penalizing delinquent businesses instead of granting amnesties.

Gracias, mi gente, and I remain your friend and public servant, Chente por la gente.

Americas HS opens new training facility

By Christy Flores-Jones
Special to the Courier

The Socorro Independent School District celebrated the official opening of the Americas High School Athletic Training Facility with a ribbon-cutting ceremony March 16.

SISD and Americas High School faculty, staff and students celebrated the 5,000 square-foot addition to the school, which includes a state-of-the-art weight room adjacent to an expansive training room with modern machinery, equipment and tables to treat the student-athletes.

SISD superintendent Xavier De La Torre said the facility would serve the needs of the entire athletic community at Americas High School and it is a wonderful addition that the students greatly deserved.

"The game is actually won in a facility like this and on the practice field. It's the preparation that takes place here prior to the Friday night lights," De La Torre said. "I am thrilled the Board of Trustees moved forward and approved the construction of this facility with residuals from the 2004 bond."

The new addition was also welcomed by community members, including representatives from the Greater El Paso Chamber of Commerce.

Mark Ropella from the chamber of commerce presented the school with a certificate stating that the star on the mountain would be lit in honor of Americas High School's new Athletic Training Facility on March 16.

De La Torre said he was eager to hear about more achievements from Americas athletics. Currently, the Americas boys varsity soccer team is ranked number one in the city.

Also, this year the school's football, volleyball, boys and girls basketball teams made it to the playoffs, the cross

"It's great! We needed a new place to work out in," said Anthony Prieto, a senior and pitcher on the Americas baseball team, about the new weight room.

The student trainers are also excited to have a new state-of-the-art facility to be able to work with and treat athletes.

"I'm very glad that we have this facility to treat more athletes and get them better prepared," said Michele Torres, a senior and head student trainer. "We went from a small room to this huge facility."

devoted to upholding the rule of law and defending the freedoms we cherish," said Mueller in commending this year's award recipients.

Edwards was recognized for her work as the trial team chief for the Elder Protection Unit and the Socorro Annex for the Office of the El Paso County Attorney. She works in the community of Socorro, Texas, obtaining protective orders for victims of domestic violence, prosecuting deceptive trade practice cases, assisting law enforcement with mental health detentions, and collecting hot check payments. She also is an advocate for victims of domestic violence and works to educate the public about the services the annex office offers to break the cycle of violence.

Edwards is the president of the Adult Protective Services (APS) Silver Star Board, a non-profit organization established to support the mission of APS to protect older adults and people with disabilities from abuse, neglect, and exploitation. She advocates for new laws to strengthen the APS program and prosecute offenders who abuse or exploit vulnerable adults. El Paso has one of the first Elder Abuse Task Force initiatives, bringing together APS, law enforcement, and the district and county attorneys' staff who prosecute these cases. Edwards provides regular training to APS staff and law enforcement regarding abuse and actions to take to prevent and alleviate this maltreatment of our vulnerable population.

Edwards was formerly a staff attorney for the Association of Professional Educators in Austin, Texas, where she represented schoolteachers and support staff in employment matters. She also served as a supervising attorney and represented victims of domestic violence at the Women's Advocacy Project in Austin and has worked as an administrator for the University of Texas School of Law. She is the former president of the Mexican American Bar Association and is currently a member of the El Paso Bar Association as well as a board member of the Visiting Nurses Association.

from Socorro's District Service Center in the two basketball games. SISD superintendent Xavier De La Torre played on the DSC team.

"This is amazing," said Marcela Ortega-Ross, special education teacher at Benito Martinez Elementary, about the large turnout for the games. "Even Dr. De La Torre is here. He came out to support our students. I feel honored."

Students, faculty and staff paid for tickets to the games – one for the lower-grade students to watch and a second for the upper-grade students. There was almost 100 percent participation from students who wanted to watch the games and close to $1,500 was collected in the fundraiser.

"It was really successful and the students were really into it," said Chris Potter, Benito Martinez campus clerk and organizer of the basketball fundraiser. "I have to give credit to our special education teacher Ms. Ortega-Ross. It was her idea and originally it was just going to be teachers versus teachers. But it was a team thing and everyone really came together for it."

The money collected was used to purchase uniforms and shoes for the 26 Benito Martinez special education students that participated in the spring games according to Potter. A portion of the money also will go toward the Benito Martinez physical education department.

DPS issues VETERAN designation on drivers' licenses

By Alfredo Vasquez
Special to the Courier

The Department of Public Safety will now include the designation "VETERAN" on the face of any class or type of Texas driver license issued to a veteran.

To be eligible, a person must have served in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, or Marine Corps of the United States or served in the Texas National Guard, Texas Army and Air National Guard, and must have been honorably discharged, to qualify for the special designation.

Veterans who are not United States citizens but served and received an honorable discharge from one of the services are eligible to receive the veteran designation on their Texas driver license upon request.

However, the veteran must have received an honorable discharge or general (under honorable conditions) from the branch of service in which they served to have the designation placed on his or her driver license.

To initiate the process, a veteran should visit a driver license office and request to have the veteran designation placed on their driver license. Veterans must provide military documents (DD-214, DD-215) signifying they received an honorable discharge. Once the veteran status has been recorded, military documents will not be required to maintain the veteran designation on subsequent transactions.

Texas veterans, who are living out of state, may request the veteran designation by mail. Also, disabled veterans, who provide proof of a service-related disability of at least 60 percent, will not be charged a fee for any driver license or identification card transaction.

For more information contact the Texas Department of Public Safety, at PO Box 15999, Austin, Texas 78761-5999, or visit its website at txdps.state.tx.us.

Colleges, institutions must rid their ranks of predators

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

Over the last couple of decade we've learned of organizations that... well, let's just say are not the best environment for young boys.

It's no secret that some pretty sick individuals have given the Boy Scouts and the Catholic Church some awfully tough PR nightmares.

The crimes have almost always involved sexual abuse and the targets are seemingly always young boys.

What makes these crimes even more deplorable is the fact that they happen in organizations that, on the surface, advance high morals and family values.

But below the surface, these organizations do all they can to cover-up the offenses, putting their own interests and bottom line above the interests of the boys they've damaged for life.

First they deny that anything even happened, then they accuse the accusers of lying or misremembering, then they are confronted with overwhelming damaging evidence, and then they admit the crime and tearfully beg for forgiveness.

You would think that all the bad press the scouts and the church have received over the years would scare other entities from indulging in the same behavior.

But another facet of our society, which is also in the business of shaping young men's lives, has recently developed a reputation for abusing that very trust.

The collegiate sports community was set up to help young adults compete in athletics at their very best while obtaining a college degree.

Parents all over the country entrust their kids to college coaches and administrators with the expectation that they will be treated fairly and with the utmost dignity.

A growing number of coaches and administrators at certain colleges have only one interest they care about – their own.

We all know about the Jerry Sandusky incident at Penn State. His sexual abuse and the attempted cover-up cost Joe Paterno his job.

It also cost the school president and athletic director their jobs, because they did absolutely nothing about the scandal until it was way out of hand.

Then there was the Bernie Fine case at Syracuse.

The head basketball coach Jim Boheim quickly accused the accusers of lying for financial gain and virtually guaranteeing everyone that his assistant coach was innocent.

But when overwhelming evidence came out again Fine, an embarrassed Boheim found himself recanting his previous statements.

Now there is news out of the University of Wisconsin-Madison, that John Chadima, the school's recent former assistant athletic director, was involved in sexual improprieties with young men.

Chadima was suspended and then resigned in January after a male student employee accused him of sexual assault at a pre-Rose Bowl party in December.

Two other males have also come forward, accusing Chadima of the same kind of thing. One of the accusers is a former football player.

Chadima was with the college for 20 years and was the director of football operations from 1990 to 1997 and again from 2000 to 2003.

I'll always give a person the benefit of the doubt, but so many times a person accused of a crime gives what the movie All The President's Men made famous: a non-denial-denial.

In other words, a kind of fake denial that never involves the words, "I didn't do it."

Here's Chadima's non-denial-denial.

In a statement released through his lawyer, Chadima said he has "struggled to address anonymous allegations of matters about which I have no specific recollection."

"No specific recollection." I can pretty much guarantee you that if I had NEVER sexually molested a young man – I would remember that.

And Chadima never says that he didn't do it – period.

So how prevalent is this problem in the world of sports?

There are the allegations against Tennis Hall of Famer Bob Hewitt, 71, who is accused to molesting girls he coached as far back as the 1970s, some as young as 10.

There is Don Peters, who coached the 1984 USA women's gymnastics team. Two athletes said he sexually abused them as girls.

USA Swimming announced in 2010, that it has come to light that many of their coaches had been sexually abusing kids for decades.

Even Sugar Ray Leonard, the 1976 gold medal winning boxer, admitted to being molested by an assistant Olympic coach.

Sadly, the list goes on and on and on and...

Year of the workout

The Lombardi trophy hadn't even made it into the Giants' trophy case before the 2012 NFL season was foisted upon the nation. Bounty hunters, salary caps, free agency and last-minute draft moves dominated the sports section during February and March. Oh... and that guy Peyton Manning made a few headlines, too.

Yes, even teams like the Indianapolis Colts can say goodbye to a legend, as they did when they released the MVP quarterback last month. With that move, the Colts made it clear that the first-round draft pick will be former Stanford quarterback Andrew Luck.

Luck is a known commodity. The two-time Heisman Trophy runner-up certainly appears to be a viable NFL starter, but there is always room for doubt (see: Ryan Leaf). However, the real question mark resides in a grainy YouTube video taken through a hole in a fence at Duke University last month.

"What a ball," says the unknown filmmaker as Manning appears to unleash a 60-yard bomb to an unnamed receiver.

Scratch that... the receiver was apparently his former teammate Brandon Stokely. And Stokely likes what he sees.

"I saw him for three days at Duke, and he was the only quarterback, and he threw a ton of balls for three straight practices, and the guy looked to me like he did when I was there six years ago," Stokely told the L.A. Times. "People who say the Broncos are crazy for not watching his balls fly, or what are they doing? Those people are dead wrong. I'll put whatever reputation I have on the line behind that guy right now. He looks great."

So the question then becomes, well, why isn't Manning working out for teams? The answer – as any one of us signed to multi-year, million-dollar contracts can attest – is because he literally doesn't want to show his hand. If Manning were to perform poorly at a workout for, say, the Denver Broncos, and the Broncos decide to take a flyer on him, the word would quickly spread around the league that Manning was damaged goods.

Manning is, by all accounts, one of the "good guys" in the NFL (he certainly was the funniest "Saturday Night Live" guest host in sports history). It would appear unlikely that he would simply take some unwitting team's money and ride out the contract from the cozy confines of the bench. But Manning wouldn't be the first athlete to let his ego get in the way, to simply ignore or choose not to believe that his best days were behind him, his skills deteriorated to the point of no return.

Meanwhile, Andrew Luck seems to have his head on straight, as his monologue in the latest Nike commercial exhibits.

"You can't decide if you get picked first or second or which cities fans will wear your jersey," Luck says in the commercial. "You don't know if you will be surrounded by veterans or throwing to other rookies. You can't tell if teams see a gamble or their future franchise quarterback. You don't have a crystal ball. So people will tell you that all you can do is wait, but you know better, and you ignore them and do what you've always done, you make your luck."

Unlike Manning, we'll see if that works out.

it took about the same time for a combat tracker to find it. A City of Socorro Police

Felix Reyes

Department officer used his military training as a combat tracker in Afghanistan and Iraq to bust Felix Reyes, 41. Reyes had hotwired the Bobcat, valued at about $20,000, at a construction site on Alameda. He drove through two fences to get it off the property.

The officer tracked him down Alameda St. by picking up the tracks several places where the would-be thief wandered off the pavement on to the shoulder. The officer managed to figure out where Reyes crossed a canal behind a business on Alameda and tracked the Bobcat over a steel pallet bridge and into the yard of a house. He followed the tracks into an open yard where he found the Bobcat stashed behind a stack of hay bales. Reyes was accused of Theft of Property and was booked into the El Paso County Jail Annex.

On two different occasions a suspect robs the same convenience store in the same manner, threatening the clerks with a knife, and making this the Crime Stoppers "Crime of the Week." On Monday night Nov. 28, 2011, about 8:30 p.m., the suspect entered the Circle N store at 537 E. Vinton in Vinton, purchased a beer and left. He returned a few minutes later and went directly to the cashier with a knife, demanding money from the cash register and lottery tickets. He then put the employee in the store's freezer, and fled. The suspect was wearing blue jeans, black jacket, and a hoodie. On Thursday, Dec. 1, 2011, the same suspect returned to the same store, bought a beer and left. He returned in a few minutes, going directly to the cashier with a knife and demanded money and lottery tickets. The suspect put the employee in a storeroom and fled. It is known that there were other customers in and out of the store before and after both robberies. Investigators from the El Paso County Sheriff's Office are asking the public for help in identifying or providing better descriptions of the suspect, and possibly a vehicle description if any. If you have any information at all about this case, please call Crime Stoppers at 566-TIPS (566-8477) or on-line at www.crimestoppersofelpaso.org. You can remain anonymous and, if your tip leads to an arrest, you can qualify for a cash reward.

Your good health By Paul G. Donahue, M.D.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How does one eliminate dandruff? I have had it for months and have tried many, many shampoos without making any progress. I can't wear a dark suit coat. I look like I've just come in from a snow blizzard. Please give me some sort of program that I can follow. — H.H.

If after all this you still have dandruff, you need a doctor's intervention. The doctor can prescribe more powerful agents, ones that have cortisone that can calm the inflamed skin.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has just been told he has spasmodic dystonia. He has had two Botox injections. They made it worse at first but then better. Friends and family have never heard of it. Would you give us an explanation of it in layman's terms? — T.W.

Dandruff's official name is seborrheic (SEB-uh-REE-ik) dermatitis. "Dermatitis" indicates skin inflammation. Seborrhea is an overproduction of oil, sebum. Many with dandruff deny they have an oily scalp. They say their scalp is dry. That can be the case, but seborrheic dermatitis flourishes on skin with an abundance of oil glands. The scalp is one of those places, but not the only place. The flakes that land on your shoulders are sloughed-off skin cells. Dandruff usually is quite itchy. Scratching dislodges the dead skin cells.

A yeast with the name Malassezia contributes to the problem. It's probably not the actual cause, but it aids and abets the dandruff process.

I'm sure you have tried many shampoos. Let me suggest ones that contain salicylic acid, zinc or selenium. Scalpicin, Head and Shoulders and Selsun Blue are three brand names. There are others. The way you use the shampoo is as important as your choice of shampoo. Wash your hair daily with one of these products. Massage it into your scalp, and let the shampoo remain on your scalp for five minutes. Do this for a minimum of three weeks.

Spasmodic dysphonia messes up the voice. People often believe they have laryngitis from a virus. They don't; they have a cramping of the muscles that control their vocal cords. Their voices crack while saying a word, or become weak and breathy, or sound as though they are being choked. Sometimes it seems like the affected person has developed a stutter. The condition usually arises between the ages of 30 and 50. Its cause is unknown.

An ear, nose and throat doctor can make a diagnosis by viewing the affected person's vocal cords and seeing how they are misbehaving. Botox can put an end to the vocal muscles' spasms. Treatment lasts for about three months, and then another injection is given.

Contact the National Spasmodic Dystonia Association (www.dysphonia.org or 800-795-6732) for detailed information and for notifications of any new treatments.

If you have an improvement, you can cut back on your shampooing to every other day.

If there has been no improvement, then get a shampoo that attacks the Malassezia yeast. Nizoral A-D (1 percent ketoconazole) is a brand name you can find easily. Do the daily shampoo drill with one of these for three weeks.

Social Security Q&A By Ray Vigil

Q: I am receiving Social Security disability benefits. Will my benefits be affected if I work and earn money?

A: It can, depending on how much you make. We have special rules called "work incentives" that help you keep your cash benefits and Medicare while you test your ability to work. For example, there is a trial work period during which you can receive full benefits regardless of how much you earn, as long as you report your work activity and continue to have a disabling impairment. For more information about work incentives, we recommend that you read the leaflet, Working While Disabled-How We Can Help, at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10095.html.

Q: Is it true that a person can own a home and still be eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits?

A: Yes, a person who owns a home and lives in that home can be eligible for SSI benefits. SSI is for people who are disabled, aged, or blind and who have limited income and resources. However, there are some items we do not count as resources, such as the home you live in. For more information, read our booklet, Supplemental Security Income, at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/11000.html.

Q: If both my spouse and I are entitled to Social Security benefits, is there any reduction in our payments because we are married?

A: No. We calculate lifetime earnings independently to determine each spouse's Social Security benefit amount. When each member of a married couple meets all other eligibility requirements to receive Social Security retirement benefits, each spouse receives a monthly benefit amount based on his or her own earnings. Couples are not penalized simply because they are married. If one member of the couple earned low wages or failed to earn enough Social Security credits (40) to be insured for retirement benefits, he or she may be eligible to receive benefits as a spouse. Learn more about Social Security at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Q: Is there a time limit on Social Security disability benefits?

A: Your disability benefits will continue as long as your medical condition has not improved and you cannot work. We will review your case at regular intervals to make sure you are still disabled. Learn more by reading our publication, Disability Benefits, at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10029.html.

For more information on any of the questions listed above, visit our website at www.socialsecurity.gov or call us at 1-800-772-1213. If you have any questions that you would like to have answered, please mail them to the Social Security Office, 1111 Gateway West, Attn: Ray Vigil, El Paso, Texas 79935.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

- It was Irish playwright George Bernard Shaw who made the following sage observation: "A government that robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend on the support of Paul."

- We're all familiar with the act of CPR – we often see a film or television character come to the rescue and save a life using the technique. And on TV, according to a recent study, CPR is shown as being successful 75 percent of the time. The reality is not quite so rosy, though. A study conducted in 2010 found that when CPR is used in real life, only about 8 percent of the patients were still alive after one month. Of those who did survive that long, 97 percent couldn't live a normal life.

- Do you suffer from astrophobia? If so, I hope you don't live in Florida. Those who are afraid of lightning would be terrified in the Sunshine State, especially in Tampa, known as the lightning capital of the world.

- Researchers in the United Kingdom have invented a robot that eats slugs and is powered by the gas from the decaying creatures. They have dubbed their creation the SlugBot.

- For six generations, many members of the Fugate family of the Appalachian region of Kentucky have suffered from a rare blood disorder called methemoglobinemia. The disorder seems to have no adverse health effects, but it's not at all difficult to diagnose it at a glance: Sufferers have blue skin. Not just a slight tinge, either; various family members have been described as "blue as Lake Louise," "the bluest woman I ever saw" and "almost purple."

Thought for the Day: "A stockbroker urged me to buy a stock that would triple its value every year. I told him, 'At my age, I don't even buy green bananas.'"

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.
