Local school districts' preliminary STAAR passing rates highlight challenges

By Alfredo Vasquez
Special to the Courier

EL PASO COUNTY – Passing rates for the State of Texas Assessments of Academic Readiness (STAAR) mathematics and reading tests in grades three through eight statewide remained relatively stable for the third consecutive year, according to preliminary results released recently by the Texas Education Agency (TEA). The results reflect passing rates for the spring 2014 administration of STAAR.

The tests assess students in third through the eighth grade in reading, math, writing, science and social studies. Not all tests are taken at each grade level. These preliminary scores do not include STAAR retake tests that were administered in mid-May.

Statewide, virtually all grades (3 through 8) recorded some improvement in mathematics over results from the previous school year. Fifth and eighth graders recorded the highest passing rate at 79 percent on the first administration of the test. The largest increase from the previous school year came in grade 6 – a jump of five percentage points. Grade 7 was the only grade level where math passing rates declined from 2012-13.

Eighty-two percent of eighth-grade students passed the STAAR reading test on their first attempt. Sixth graders recorded the largest increase (six percentage points) over results from the previous school year. However, with the exception of grade 4, all other grades showed some slight decrease from last year.

STAAR writing tests were administered in grades 4 and 7. Initial passing rates in each of those grades have remained stable over the past three school years. Students in fourth grade posted the highest passing rate of 73 percent – an increase of two percentage points over results from the previous school year.

In addition, fifth graders posted the highest preliminary passing rate in STAAR science (73 percent). The eighth grade passing rate in science was 70 percent. Eighth graders also posted a 61 percent passing rate in Social Studies.

Local-area school districts improved overall on the STAAR. Of the nine area districts, Socorro Independent School District surpassed the state's average in all subjects and grades.

Canutillo Independent School District surpassed the state's average in almost all subject areas, missing the state average of 70 percent by three percentage points in seventh-grade writing, and two points below the state average of 73 percent in fifth-grade science. The district was also one to three points below the state average in seventh- and eighth-grade math; and nine points below the state average in eighth-grade reading.

The preliminary results for the El Paso Independent School District (EPISD) indicated that the district's performance in most grade levels exceeded or met the state average. EPISD's results show that 68 percent of seventh graders passed the writing test, which was two points shy of the state average. In social studies, 52 percent of students passed the test, falling nine percentage points behind the state average.

At the Ysleta Independent School District, students scored above the state average in third through sixth grade reading, math and writing and science. But the district lags a few points from the statewide average in seventh grade math, with only 59 percent passing rate, eight points less than the state average.

San Elizario scores show the largest gap in eighth-grade science where students scored 26 points below the state average of 70 percent,

MAKING THE GRADE – With the recent release of the 2014 spring STAAR results, Texas Education Agency Commissioner of Education Michael Williams stated, "Assessments help determine whether a student has grasped certain concepts over the course of the school year. There are those who now step forward to argue that assessments do not measure everything occurring on a campus, in a district or with the whole child. To that point, I wholeheartedly agree. As I visit schools across our state, I am reminded of that point often. However, assessments are essential in identifying whether students require early support for basic subjects in our public education system."

Students develop video game, win award month.

The proposed video game is called Orange Skies, and it is a single-person adventure/strategy game that takes place on earth in the year 2053. The story line takes the video game's main character, Osvaldo Ymir, on an underground trek from ancient El Paso to ancient Albuquerque to find the government-created "seeds" that will help save vegetation and, therefore, humanity.

Northwest students Abraham Andujo, Alex Lopez, Erin Solis, Alejandra Reyes and Jeandell Dayritt designed the game. The students were under the direction of teacher Oscar Carrera.

Northwest was one of more than 12 schools to compete in the video game competition on May 28.

"We got together as a group to create something we all would want to play," said Dayritt, one of the students who make up the Northwest team. "In the end, we came up with something we love and are very proud to present."

Veterans Post By Freddy Groves

New VA health program draws praise from vets

The spotlight on delayed medical care at a number of Department of Veterans Affairs medical centers has overshadowed some recent good news about the VA's PACT program, its method of providing personalized primary care.

PACT (Patient Aligned Care Teams) was started in 2010 as a team approach to the wellness of individual veterans by using health plans with care provided at clinics and online via eHealth. Teams are made up of nurse care managers, clinical associates, providers and administrative associates, in tandem with nutritionists, social workers and pharmacists. Appointments with specialists are easily arranged.

Sounds pretty good, doesn't it... individualized medical attention. The veterans who receive these services like it, too, according to a VA news release. Here are some of the stats:

- Using secure electronics such as telehealth video conferencing, email messaging, home-based monitoring, phone calls and group meetings, the number of interactions with veterans increased 50 percent.

- Of veterans asking for a same-day appointment with their personal provider, 65 percent got it. Of those who asked for a specific appointment date, 78 percent were accommodated. In the past year, care during non-business hours increased 75 percent.

- More than 70 percent of veterans who are discharged from the hospital are contacted within two days to make sure they understand their instructions and to see how they're doing.

- Mental-health care services, also a component of PACT, increased 18 percent.

- As a result of PACT, there's been a 33 percent decrease in the number of veterans needing urgent care, and hospital admissions decreased 12 percent for acute conditions.

The bottom line? In a PACT satisfaction survey, over 90 percent of veterans had positive assessments of both inpatient and outpatient care.

and 38 points below the state average of 61 percent in eighth-grade social studies.

In Anthony, the district's fourth graders need help in math, reading and writing. Sixth graders in Anthony also will need help in math and reading after only 54 percent and 56 percent of students passed the test respectively.

Fabens, Clint, and Tornillo school districts also are having similar challenges in reading and writing.

Students who did not pass the STAAR had the opportunity to retake it in May and will have another chance on June 24 and June 25.

According to TEA, a student isn't required to pass the standardized test to be promoted to the 4th, 6th or 7th grades. The law only indicates that a student must show academic

Financial advice for new fathers

Each year when Father's Day rolls around, I'm reminded that I wouldn't trade the experience of raising my two kids for the world. But when I think back to how naive my wife and I once were about the costs of raising children, I can't help wishing we'd been better prepared.

If you're a new dad, or about to become one, you'd better sit down. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, a typical middle-income family can expect to spend over $241,000 to raise a newborn child until age 18 – and that doesn't even include prenatal care or college costs.

Right now, you're probably more worried about getting enough sleep than funding your retirement. But at some point, you'll need to plot out a financial roadmap to ensure your family's future financial security. As one dad to another, here are a few strategies I've learned that can help:

Start saving ASAP. It's hard to save for the future when your present expenses are so daunting, but it's important to start making regular contributions to several savings vehicles, even if only a few dollars at a time:

- Establish an emergency fund with enough cash to cover at least six months of living expenses. Start small by having $25 or $50 a month deducted from your paycheck and automatically deposited into a separate savings account.

- Even if retirement is decades away, the sooner you start saving and compounding your interest, the faster your savings will grow. If your employer offers 401(k) matching contributions, contribute at least enough to take full advantage of the match.

- Once those two accounts are well established, open a 529 Qualified State Tuition Plan to start saving for your children's education.

If funding these accounts seems impossible, look for a few luxuries you could cut from your budget for six months – lattes, eating out, premium cable, etc. After six months, evaluate whether they were actual "needs" or simply "wants" you can live without.

Get insured. If your family depends on your income, you must be prepared for life's unexpected events, whether an accident, illness, unemployment or death. Get adequate coverage for:

- Health insurance. Everyone needs medical insurance, no matter how young or healthy.

- Homeowner/renter's insurance. Don't let theft, fire or another catastrophe leave your family without a home or possessions. To reduce premiums, consider choosing a higher deductible.

- Life insurance. You'll probably want coverage worth at least five to 10 times your annual pay – more, if you want to cover college costs. And don't forget to insure your spouse's life so you'll be protected as well.

- Disability insurance. Millions of Americans suffer disabilities serious enough to miss work for months or years, yet many forego disability insurance, potentially leaving them without an income after a serious accident or illness. Ask about your employer's sick leave and short-term disability benefits and if long-term disability is offered, consider buying it.

- Car insurance. Almost every state requires insurance if you own or drive a car, and for good reason: It protects you financially should you cause an accident or be hit by an uninsured driver. Make sure you have sufficient liability coverage to protect your net worth and income – it only takes one serious accident to wipe out your savings.

And finally, spend responsibly. If you buy things you don't really need or can't afford, you'll just end up having to work longer hours to pay for them – time you could have spent watching your kids growing up.

proficiency to be promoted.

Under state law, Texas students in grades 5 and 8 must pass the STAAR reading and math tests to be promoted to the next grade. State law requires students who do not pass these tests to be retained in their current grade – unless a parent appeals the retention and a local, campus-based grade placement committee unanimously agrees to promote them.

Commissioner of Education Michael Williams stated recently that the latest STAAR results hold some promise for greater success in future years. He added, "However, I continue to emphasize that STAAR is a very different assessment with much higher rigor. Those districts that cling to test preparation, fact memorization and practice tests will not see success. An emphasis on critical thinking skills while also allowing our teachers to focus on the curriculum is the quickest path to future success statewide."

Fabens students raise money for vets

By Carla Ochoa
Special to the Courier

FABENS – Fabens High School Student Council honored Memorial Day and the men and women who have died defending our country by raising funds for military veterans and their families.

On May 22, teachers took part in the 2014 "Jeans For Troops" fundraising drive benefiting the GI Go Fund, an nonprofit organization that helps veterans returning home find employment, go to college, access their health care and financial benefits, and link to housing.

During the drive, which has schools and companies from all across the country participating in, Fabens High School gave their employees the opportunity to wear jeans to work in exchange for a $5 donation to the GI Go Fund.

"For generations, America's teachers have been responsible for educating America's children," said GI Go Fund Executive Director Jack Fanous. "They have always been individuals that mothers and fathers could rely on to set a positive example for their children. This Memorial Day, teachers around the country have set the example to our nation's children that this holiday is more than just the first weekend of summer, and more than the year's first barbecue. It is a day to remember the men and women who have fought and died to preserve our liberties, our freedoms, and the American way of life."

The GI Go Fund is an organization on the cutting edge of offering support to veterans, providing veterans with innovative ways of finding employment, securing their educational and health benefits, as well as providing aid and assistance to low income and homeless veterans. Since their founding, the organization has helped tens of thousands of veterans improve their lives and give them the capacity to provide and care for their loved ones.

In addition, the organization did tremendous work for veterans who were affected by Hurricane Sandy. They provided great rapid response to victims of the storm by delivering thousands of blankets and needed clothing and other supplies to shelters, as well as bringing Emergency Financial Assistance and Toys for the Holidays for the thousands of Veterans devastated by the storm in the months that followed.

Proceeds from this program will go to help the organization further its mission for veterans. This year, the GI Go Fund is working to expand access to healthcare for veterans that go beyond the limited options currently available to them.

For more information about the GI Go Fund, or to see all the schools and business that are participating in the "Jeans For Troops" drive, visit www.gigofund.org.

El Paso is catching up to the rest of Texas

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

I don't even recognize this city anymore. It was announced last week that the Sun Bowl and the Don Haskins Center were receiving a facelift of sorts, with new video boards and sound systems being installed. What the heck is going on? First El Paso acts quickly and decisively on building a widely successful baseball park in the middle of downtown. Then it's decided that a brand new long-overdue multi-purpose arena will be constructed in the downtown area in the next year or so. There are improvements and construction projects going on all over the city. You can't drive around for very long without seeing one of those large construction cranes picking up something and placing it somewhere else. Hospitals, schools and colleges, are going up, blighted buildings are coming down. Yes, even the long unused Lincoln Center has served its purpose and needs to make way for progress.

Roads are being fixed and new overpasses on the west side, east side, northeast, Ft. Bliss and UTEP are being construction at an impressive rate.

Now UTEP has even gotten into the act. It's no secret that the Sun Bowl's video board, which was something to see in 2001, was woefully outdated and honestly, rather embarrassing. Especially for a stadium that hosts the only bowl game that CBS carries.

Not only are the proportions of the current board out of whack; basically a square; but many of the lights and panels on the board never worked.

The new video board is much larger than the old one. And those long narrow digital boards that you see on TV at many of the better stadiums around the country will also be installed here.

There will also be a new speaker system installed at the Sun Bowl so announcements will sound more like the English language and less like Charlie Brown's teacher.

The new additions come at a great time. The NCAA has passed a rule beginning this fall that stadium video boards can show replays of controversial calls, even the ones that are under review.

How cool will that be? Of course UTEP head coach Sean Kugler said the new rule is great, unless the call is against the Miners.

The "Don" will also be getting new larger state-of-the-art video boards that will rival any other college basketball arena in the nation.

New rectangular video boards will also be installed that will reflect statistics, announcements and advertising.

There will also be a new marquee installed in front of the Haskins Center to replace the one there now. Of course the new one will be sharper and have more information options.

It's great to see that UTEP is keeping in line with all of the improvements going on around the city.

Naturally, there are those few people that are holding on to the past and protesting the demolition of old, unused, dangerous buildings that would make way for the future.

But as more and more El Pasoans make their way to Chihuahuas games at Southwest University Park, they are beginning to realize that they have no reason to be afraid of change.

The numbers of nay-sayers will continue to dwindle and more often than not, El Paso will continue to aggressively pursue the better things in life rather than be satisfied with the scraps left us by the rest of the state.

And just like the city, which will be seen with an entirely new attitude by out-of-town investors for its positive outlook, out-of-town recruits will begin to consider UTEP as a serious destination because of its progressive attitudes and actions.

Let's face it, that's why bigger cities and athletic programs get the top business and athletes.

What a fun sports town El Paso is becoming. Along with the spectacular experience of going out to a Chihuahuas games, UTEP football and basketball games are going to be that much more fun to attend as well.

Are we getting to the point that... dare I say it... the days of people saying, "there's nothing to do in El Paso," are coming to an end?

We may not be there quite yet, but with each courageous decision to invest in ourselves – it's getting closer and closer.

Motor home memories

Bouncing around in the back of a motor home on an interstate reminds people of a few things, chief among them being: "Why didn't I take Dramamine when it was offered"; "Does this thing have a sensor that automatically guides it to every single pothole from Richmond to Baltimore"; and "Did we remember to put a cap on the soy sauce?"

From the Conch Republic of Key West to that tiny little spot that juts out of the top of Minnesota, the sporting attitudes of those who enjoy both the outdoors and an active, vigorous life continue to turn their heads toward recreational vehicles. As international tourism declines and the number of stay-cations and weekend getaways continue to climb, so have the sales of RVs, fifth wheels and their assorted brethren.

Admit it ... you've thought of owning one at least once in your life, haven't you? Come on, it's a car with a bathroom, refrigerator and stove, for crying out loud. Imagine this scenario: Meeting at 5:30 a.m. You roll out of bed, put your shoes on, drive to the office parking lot in your jammies and walk into the meeting just out of the shower five minutes ago, fresh and clean as a whistle.

Of course, there are drawbacks ... a lot of them. There's a thing called a "black water tank" just underneath the floorboards of your bed. You wouldn't want to take the RV to the appropriately named dump station before that meeting. And there's that 100 point checklist you have to go through every time you move it, because one mistake can cost you $100,000 in losses and repairs – and that's only if you're lucky.

On the upside, if you're not mechanically inclined or a do-it-yourselfer, the good news is you're about to become quite the handy person after you get your first on-site mechanic's bill. Also, you'll learn how to plan things in advance. Think you're gonna get that spot near the water at Boyd's Campground in the Keys or that spot overlooking the Grand Canyon the day you feel a little spontaneity? You needed to be spontaneous a year in advance.

Also, you might want to learn how to speak French. It comes in handy when you're in a 30-foot C-class surrounded on all sides by towering, million-dollar Peterbilt motor castles filled with jabbering Quebecois in the middle of Kissimmee, Fla., in February.

But it all comes together at the palace of RVing – the Indianapolis 500. After a leisurely day of racing and winning by 0.06 seconds, even Ryan Hunter-Reay, still stinking of milk and sweat, was happy to climb aboard his own on-site motor home to soak in the moment with his family in air-conditioned, propane fueled splendor.

Memories are made of this.

Carrillo signs with St. Joseph

By Cynthia P. Marentes
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO – From the U.S.-Mexico border to the U.S.-Canada border, Dante Carrillo will soon be on his way to the northeastern part of the country to pursue a college degree on a basketball scholarship. On May 30 the San Elizario High School senior signed his letter of intent to play collegiate basketball with the College of St. Joseph in Rutland, Vermont.

Dante will receive an athletic scholarship of approximately $30,000 per year for four years. The 6-foot-1 Eagle intends to major in business administration while playing for the Fighting Saints as a freshman. At the signing ceremony hosted by San Elizario High School Dante thanked all his classmates, coaches and many of his relatives in attendance.

"I wouldn't be here today if it wasn't for all of you," Dante said to the audience.

During the 2013-2014 basketball season Dante helped the San Elizario High School boys varsity basketball team reach the Class 4-A bi district playoffs. The Eagles team coached by Mauricio Perez finished fourth in a competitive District 2-4A with an overall record of 17-13. Both coach Perez and assistant coach Richard

Dante Carrillo

Castillo describe Dante as a leader and role model on and off the court.

"He is a wonderful young man, very respectful. Everybody that knows him knows that he is a good person at heart and I am so proud of him," Perez said.

Dante is the son of Brigitte Ballou and Carlos Carrillo. He and classmate Abby Flores, who last week signed a letter of intent to play for Howard Junior College, are the only two student athletes from San Elizario High School to receive an athletic scholarship this year.

Your good health By Paul G. Donahue, M.D.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am 75-plus-year-old female in excellent health. My doctor's comment on my most recent annual physical results was: "Great results on all tests. Excellent report." My question: Is it necessary to have another colonoscopy at my age and with my good health? My mother died of colon/rectal cancer at age 85 in 2002, and all family members were advised to have this procedure. My initial results were two or three polyps removed that were not the type that would recur and were not cancerous. The recommended follow-up was five years. That exam showed no polyps and no recommendation for future follow-up. My previous doctor has retired, and I just received a letter from his replacement that I am due for another procedure. I am not inclined to do this at my age, and considering the "all clear" reports of the previous exams and my general good health. I would appreciate your thoughts and recommendation. —B.J.M.

neurologist? —J.W.

I would be very slow to recommend surgery on the neck at age 92. I would try other treatments, including medication, physical therapy and possibly injection, before considering surgery. Balance problems may benefit from problem-specific exercises. A neurologist may be very helpful in evaluating whether the symptoms are indeed coming from the spinal stenosis, because balance problems can have many different causes.

If symptoms were intolerable despite everything that could be done short of surgery, I would find the most experienced surgeon around, which could be either a neurosurgeon or an orthopedic surgeon.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have been reading your articles regarding gout and blood pressure medications. I suffer from pseudogout and take Diovan/HCTZ. Would changing this medication have any effect on my condition? —E.S.

The odds are low that the colonoscopy would find something there, but there is still a small chance, especially with your mother having had colon cancer. Not having it is reasonable. But since you seem to be otherwise healthy and can expect a longer life than average, I would still say to get it. In fact, I would encourage you to have it.

The booklet on colon cancer provides useful information on the causes and cures of this common malady. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Roach – No. 505W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

Pseudogout (literally, "false gout") looks a lot like gout, and both diseases are caused by deposition of crystals inside joints. In gout the crystal is uric acid, whereas in pseudogout, the crystal is calcium pyrophosphate. Pseudogout tends to affect larger joints, such as the knees, whereas the big toe is the classic place for gout. Hydrochlorothiazide (HCTZ), a common diuretic, can make gout worse, but should have no effect on pseudogout.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu. Wanted

Several hundred dollars in baby formula have been stolen and these thieves could be involved in other thefts. Investigators from the Pebble Hills Regional Command Center through surveillance footage obtained images of the suspects involved and are asking for help in identifying them through the Crime Stoppers "Crime Spot." The first theft took place on April 24, 2014 at 3:20 p.m., at the Target store located at 1901 George Dieter. The suspect's in the case entered the store and placed several containers of Baby Formula and exited the store. Just days later on April 27, 2014, the suspects once again went to the Target store at 1901 George Dieter and again took several hundred dollars in baby formula. The suspects are also believed to be driving two different vehicles, the first is described as a white Ford Excursion and the other is a dark blue Hyundai Santa Fe. The woman involved is described as heavy set Hispanic female, with brown and hair and medium to light complexion. One male suspect is described as a Hispanic male, with short hair and a thin mustache and beard. The other male suspect is also described as Hispanic, with a small mustache. Anyone with any information on the identity of these suspects is asked to call Crime Stoppers of El Paso immediately at 566-8477(TIPS), on-line at www.crimestoppersofelpaso.org or you can send a text message by entering the key word "CRIME1" (no space and include the quotation marks) plus your tip information, and text it to CRIMES (274637).

Social Security Q&A By Ray Vigil

Fathers, men's health and Social Security

This year, we observe National Men's Health Week from June 9 to 15. Each year we observe Men's Health Week the week prior to Father's Day, focusing on awareness, prevention, education and family.

And, June 8 is Best Friends Day, so if your dad happens to be your best friend too, all the more reason to celebrate.

Social Security encourages you to support fathers and friends everywhere in their efforts to stay healthy. The right balance of diet, exercise, regular visits to doctors and health care providers, and overall healthy living can go a long way to help everyone remain a part of your daily life for years to come.

Avoiding stress helps folks stay healthy. That's why we'd like to suggest that you advise the men in your life (and everyone for that matter) to avoid scams and phishers. Fathers and best friends may like to go fishing, but make sure they aren't the catch of the day when a criminal offers alluring bait.

For example, Social Security will not call or email you for your personal information such as your Social Security number or banking information. If someone claiming to be from Social Security contacts you and asks for this information, do not give out your personal information without calling us to verify the validity of the request. The caller may be an identity thief phishing for your personal information. Just call the local Social Security office or Social Security's toll-free number at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-0778).

If you receive a suspicious call, please report it to our Fraud Hotline. You also can report such calls online at <http://oig.ssa.gov/report> or by telephone at 1-800-269-0271 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. If possible, please include the following details:

- The alleged suspect(s) and victim(s) names, addresses, phone numbers, dates of birth, and Social Security numbers, if known;
 - Description of the fraud and the location where the fraud took place;
 - When and how the fraud was committed;
 - Why the person committed the fraud (if known); and
 - Who else has knowledge of the potential violation.
- Identity theft is one of the fastest-growing crimes in America. If you or anyone you know has been the victim of an identity thief, the place to contact is the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) at www.idtheft.gov. Or, call 1-877-IDTHEFT (1-877-438-4338); TTY 1-866-653-4261.

Whether you go fishing, play some ball, or take a hike, we encourage you to enjoy some healthy time with your father and with your best friend. But make sure no one falls victim to the wrong kind of phishing. Learn more by reading our publication, Identity Theft And Your Social Security Number available at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs.

STRANGE BUT TRUE
By Samantha Weaver

• It was famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright who made the following sage observation: "Many wealthy people are little more than janitors of their possessions."

• According to statisticians, about 200 people a year die while watching – not playing – football.

• Collective nouns are fascinating, especially when one kind of animal has multiple ones that can be used. Take ducks, for instance: A group of them can be called a flock, a badling, a brace, a plump, a sord or a waddling. If you see them on water you can call them a bunch, a paddling or a raft; and a group of ducks flying together is known variously as a skein, a string or a team.

• Noted industrialist John D. Rockefeller was the son of a notorious con man, William Avery Rockefeller.

• It takes about one minute for blood to make a complete circuit of your body.

• The 1950s TV show "The Adventures of Superman" starred George Reeves, and for the rest of his short life he was best known for that title role. After his untimely death at the age of 45, he was buried in the same suit he wore as Clark Kent on the show.

• Those who study such things say that more babies are born after the new moon and the full moon than at any other time of the month. Interestingly, more girls are born after the new moon, and more boys after the full moon.

• For one week in April of 1964, the top five songs on the Billboard chart were all by The Beatles. That also was the year that the band had a whopping 31 songs on the charts.

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.
