Fabens HS designated T-STEM Academy

By Dr. Lourdes Sanchez

Special to the Courier

FABENS — Texas Education Agency has designated Fabens High School (FHS) as a T-STEM Academy. T-STEM is short for the Texas Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math Challenge Scholarship Program. The program was established by House Bill 2910 and passed by the 82nd Legislature in 2011.

The designation will expose students to rigorous science, technology, engineering, and math curriculum. It is an excellent pathway to a future in employment opportunities to produce workers proficient in these fields in order to stay at the cutting edge of STEM throughout the 21st-century said Fabens High School Principal Ruben Carrillo.

This is an exciting time for Fabens Independent School District said Superintendent Poncho Garcia. "I am very excited that our district has been selected. This is another great opportunity for our students here at Fabens ISD."

The STEM program fosters an environment that teaches students the meaning of independent innovation and allows them to explore subjects at a greater depth. In addition, high school students at will be able to participate in internships and engage with educational and professional mentors to assist in their own personal growth and development in the STEM fields. Every student will have the ability to be problem solvers, self-reliant, inventors, and technology literate and local thinkers.

The first year of the T-STEM program is provisional. Upon successful completion of the first year, the program will be funded by a grant from the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corporation. The FHS Wildcat T-STEM Academy is prepared and excited to move forward with this great opportunity.

Dr. Lourdes Sanchez is the Director of Federal and Special Programs in Fabens ISD and wrote the grant application for the District's T-STEM program.

Getting your home ready to sell

As the economy improves, today's sellers are facing a very different environment than they were before the housing market stumbled in 2006.

Today's housing market features new procedures and standards, not the least of which are continuing borrowing hurdles for prospective buyers. If you are thinking about a home sale in the coming months, it pays to do a thorough overview of your personal finances and local real estate environment before you put up the "for sale" sign. Here are some general issues to consider:

Make sure you're not underwater. You may want to buy a new home, but can you afford to sell? The term "underwater" refers to the amount of money a seller owes on a house in excess of final sales proceeds. If what you owe on the home – including all selling costs due at closing – exceeds the agreed-upon sale price, then you will have to pay the difference out of pocket. If you're not in a situation where you absolutely have to sell now, you may want to wait until your financial circumstances and the real estate market improves.

Evaluate your finances. Before you sell, make sure you are ready to buy or rent. Making sure all three of your credit reports (<https://www.annualcreditreport.com/index.action>) are accurate is an important part of that process.

Consider "for sale by owner" vs. "for sale by broker." "For Sale by Owner" (FSBO) signs were a common sight in many neighborhoods during the housing crisis. Shrunken home values convinced many sellers to sell their property themselves rather than pay 5-6 percent of profit in broker commission. However, consider what a licensed real estate broker could accomplish in your specific situation. Many experienced brokers have market knowledge and negotiating skills that could potentially get a better price for your property. Deciding which route to take shouldn't be an overnight decision. Check leading FSBO and broker sites and talk with knowledgeable friends, attorneys and real estate professionals to learn as much as you can.

Think twice before spending on improvements. Not every home construction project pays off at sale time. Remodeling magazine's annual Cost vs. Value Report (<http://www.remodeling.hw.net/cost-vs-value/2015/>) tracks both pricing and cost recovery for leading remodeling projects. Before fixing up a bathroom, kitchen or any other area of your home, research whether the work will actually pay for itself at sale. For many sellers, it might be advantageous to hire a licensed home inspector to identify any structural, mechanical or major appliance repair issues that could delay or compromise a sale.

Don't forget moving costs. According to the American Moving and Storage Association, a leading industry trade group, the average professional interstate move of 1,220 miles costs an average of $5,630; in state, the average moving cost is $1,170. After all the costs involved in selling a home, don't forget how much it costs to relocate.

Bottom line: Selling your home requires planning. Before putting it on the market, get solid, qualified advice on how to sell smart in a still-recovering housing market.

Veterans Post By Freddy Groves

Service-related hearing loss

Hearing loss is one of the most common disabilities for military personnel. It can come from all types of experiences and sources: aircraft engines, firearms, trucks, artillery and helicopters. Once the fragile nerve cells in the ear are damaged, you have hearing loss or tinnitus (ringing or buzzing in the ears). If you ever served in a combat zone, hearing loss can be even greater.

If you've had hearing loss that you've tried to ignore, don't. It's not going to get better on its own. If you've missed out on some of the words in conversations, or if you keep asking people to repeat what they've said, or even if the music you used to listen to doesn't sound the same anymore, you likely have hearing loss.

In most cases, it can be fixed with hearing aids or implants. Depending on your rate of loss, getting your hearing back could open up a whole world. The Department of Veterans Affairs even has a Progressive Tinnitus Management program.

The first step is to call the VA audiology clinic to schedule a full audiology workup for service-related hearing loss or tinnitus. Even if you think you don't have hearing loss, go anyway and get a baseline workup for future comparison.

Another option, if you can't get a fast appointment at a VA facility, is to check your community. Often audiologists and hearing-aid providers will offer free hearing tests. Tell them you need both the "speech discrimination" and "puretone" tests. If you show any hearing loss, that's your first document in submitting a claim to the VA.

If your hearing loss is determined to be service-related, a hearing aid will be provided free of charge, and batteries under certain circumstances.

Home, safe, home

Some say the electric feeling of buying and moving into your own home never wears off. When you own the floors you're standing on, the walls surrounding you and the roof over your head, you also own great satisfaction from the hard work that resulted in your home becoming yours.

Yet, just as it was hard work to achieve the American Dream of homeownership, being responsible for maintaining and, inevitably, repairing your own home can be just as much hard work. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development's Home Repair Program is an affordable way to keep your home safe, accessible and energy efficient.

The program provides very-low income rural homeowners with a one percent-interest fixed-rate loan of up to $20,000 for essential things like leaky roof repairs, improving accessibility, or even upgrades to heating and cooling systems to make a home more energy efficient. Seniors age 62 and older, who cannot qualify for a loan, may be eligible for a grant of up to $7,500, or a loan and grant combination to make needed repairs and improvements.

Last year alone 398 rural homeowners in Texas were able to make necessary improvements to their homes they did not realize they could afford. Some installed new smoke and carbon monoxide detectors or replaced old insulation. Some widened doors and added ramps. More importantly, these Texans renewed the pride they felt the day they bought and moved into their own home.

One homeowner from Farmersville discovered she was able to afford the installation of a handicap ramp and railings with a 504 Home Repair Loan and Grant. Ms. Anne Hall suffers from post-polio syndrome and often experiences severe joint and muscle pains and weakness. In conversation with USDARural Development Area Specialist Amber Anderson during the final inspection of her newly installed handicap ramp, Ms. Hall mentioned the side effects of her illness made getting into a bathtub difficult. Amber knew she had a solution for this problem and shared information about an innovative bathtub with a side entry door. Just a few short months later, a second loan and grant was approved and a new handicap bathtub was installed. USDA Rural Development employees in Texas make extra efforts to assist all eligible homeowners with their home repair needs.

Being a homeowner is hard work and a big responsibility, but you have a partner who wants you to succeed. USDA Rural Development wants to keep rural American homes safe, accessible and energy efficient. We also want to help homeowners preserve the pride in their homes. To learn more, visit www.rd.usda.gov/tx or call 254-742-9770.

PUBLIC MEETING NOTICE

FM 1110 (Clint Cutoff Road) Widening and Realignment
From Interstate 10 (I-10) to SH 20 (Alameda Avenue)
El Paso County, Texas
CSJ: 1281-02-007, etc.

The Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) – El Paso District will host a public meeting to present the alternatives under consideration for the proposed widening and realignment of FM 1110 (Clint Cutoff Road) from Interstate 10 (I-10) to SH 20 (Alameda Avenue), a total distance of approximately 2.4 miles in El Paso County, Texas.

Thursday, September 17, 2015
6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.
Clint High School Auxiliary Gym
13890 Alameda Avenue, Clint, Texas, 79836

The purpose of the proposed project is to improve system linkage and mobility by adding capacity and by providing a direct connection between Interstate 10 (I-10) and SH 20 (Alameda Avenue). The proposed transportation improvements to FM 1110 would help facilitate the safe and efficient movement of people and goods in the Lower Valley. The purpose of the meeting is to present four reasonable alternatives and a no-build alternative under consideration and to offer the public an opportunity to ask questions and provide input regarding the alternatives. The public will also have an opportunity to learn about and comment on the project need, purpose, and identified environmental constraints. Information will be presented in both English and Spanish.

The proposed project would be constructed in phases. The first phase would consist of the improvements between I-10 and FM 76 (North Loop Drive) and the second would consist of improvements from FM 76 to SH 20. The proposed roadway would consist of four travel lanes, two in each direction, a raised median to allow for turn lanes at intersections, bicycle lanes, and sidewalks. The proposed project would include improvements to the intersections at FM 76 and SH 20 and an overpass at the Union Pacific Railroad tracks. The proposed roadway right of way (ROW) width would be approximately 124 feet wide (136 feet wide at intersections). Additional ROW width may be needed at select locations to provide storm-water drainage. The proposed project could potentially result in relocations.

Written comments regarding this project may be emailed to ELP\_FM1110Project@txdot.gov, or mailed to TxDOT-El Paso District, Attn: Gus Sanchez, FM 1110, 13301 Gateway Boulevard West; El Paso, Texas 79928. Comments must be hand-delivered or postmarked on or before Monday, September 28, 2015.

The public meeting will be held in open house format and the same material will be presented in English and Spanish. Spanish-speaking team members will be available at the open house to assist with translation needs. If you have any questions, require other communication needs or special accommodations please call Blanca Del Valle, TxDOT Public Information Officer, at 915-790-4200 at least two business days prior to a meeting to request assistance. TxDOT will make every reasonable effort to accommodate these needs.

The environmental review, consultation, and other actions required by applicable Federal environmental laws for this project are being, or have been, carried-out by TxDOT pursuant to 23 U.S. Code (U.S.C.) 327 and a Memorandum of Understanding dated December 16, 2014, and executed by FHWA and TxDOT.

In the sports world you either have it, or you don't

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

In their 1970s hit Celluloid Heroes, the Kinks offer some cautionary words near the end of the song for those seeking stardom in the movies, "Those who are successful, be always on your guard, success walks hand-in-hand with failure, along Hollywood Boulevard."

Those words of wisdom can also be attributed to the world of sports.

Reporters often act like a bunch of 6-year-olds who get as much of a thrill out of destroying their tower of building blocks as they did stacking them up as high as they could.

The world's greatest athletes just don't arrive on the scene as the best in their field. What the public never sees are the years of practice and dedication they put into their sport, often starting at a very young age.

Let's put it this way, if an athlete reaches superstardom at the age of 25, it's a pretty safe bet they've already been competing in their sport for 20 years.

Everyone knows that the career of a sports star comes with an expiration date.

What is startling sometimes is that the end can come so quickly and without warning.

There are guys who age gracefully like Peyton Manning and Tom Brady and Derek Jeter and Tim Duncan and so on, who are, or were still productive at their advanced ages.

And then there are other superstars who seemed to lose everything overnight. Athletes like Lance Armstrong and Mike Tyson and Barry Bonds and Toyna Harding and Latrell Sprewell, just to name a very few.

Whether it's a deterioration of physical skills or some other self-inflicted problems, or a combination of both – sports is littered with the carcasses of "on top of the world" careers.

And like clockwork, the sports buzzards are circling once again.

The final chapter of his career may not have been written yet, but we are in the midst of witnessing one of the greatest superstar collapses of all time.

Tiger Woods missed his third straight cut at a 2015 major last week at the PGA Championship.

Woods will turn 40 this December and though that age would mean certain retirement in many other sports, plenty of golfers remain competitive through their mid to late 40s.

That means still having many opportunities to finish first or at least near the top of the leaderboard of many tournaments. But Tiger has slipped to the point that finishing "near the top of the leaderboard" isn't even a goal anymore.

It's "finishing" – period!

Whether you like him or not, it's painful to watch him struggle to make the ball go where he wants it to. There was one thing on the golf course Tiger never looked like... human.

Not too long ago he was the greatest golfer of all time. It didn't matter whether he passed Jack Nicklaus' record of 18 majors.

With his dramatic fist-pumping winning putts, to his thunderous drives, to his outright intimidation of the rest of the field, to the familiar sight of him raising the trophy in his red and black attire – Tiger was the best the game of golf had ever seen.

And just two years ago he won five tournaments and was named Golfer of the Year. Now it seems more like a decade ago.

Of course Tiger's downfall started in 2009 the night that his ex-wife found out he was fooling around with a multitude of babes and nearly wrapped a seven iron around his neck.

Tiger lost his wife, he lost his kids, he lost many endorsements, he lost millions of dollars and he lost his respect.

That is when Tiger stopped playing like Tiger Woods and started playing more like Eldrick Woods.

Now it looks like Tiger has lost his strongest asset – his confidence.

New golfers now like Jordan Spieth and Rory McElroy and Jason Day are vying for the spot Tiger once owned.

Of course it'll be years before we find out if they can set the golf world on fire the way Tiger did.

But like the Kinks warned, that flame of stardom can go out at any time without warning. Just ask Tiger.

A sporting view By Mark Vasto

To be Frank was to be a Giant

Truly, there can be no professional sports without an announcer. It just doesn't work any other way.

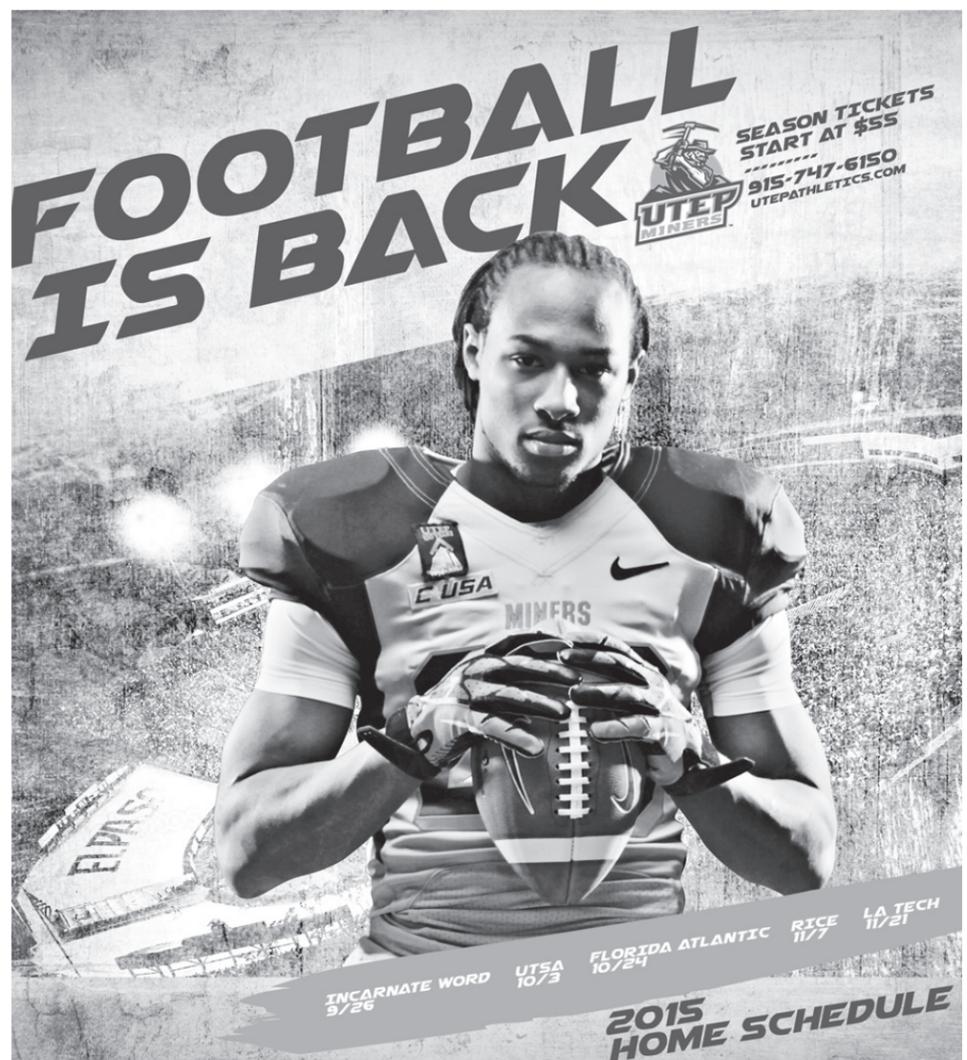

Think about it... when you were a kid, playing football or baseball down the street and ruining Mrs. Johnson's front yard, the voices you heard in your head weren't the kind that got you put away upstate for awhile... they were the dulcet tones of the many maestros of the microphone!

To the untrained eye, sure, you were a 16-year-old string bean wearing sweat pants, but when you went up for the Nerf, you were like Lynn Swann, and when you ran unabated into the end-zone, you followed in the well-worn footsteps of Tony Dorsett or Walter Payton. That time you caught a 5-yard curl and proceeded to drag half of the little brothers on the block that you agreed to let play that "one time" 50 yards after the catch for a touchdown

DEAR DR. ROACH: My husband had his aorta replaced in 2012 and has trouble with sink-in marks on his legs at the bottom. It doesn't matter how much I pay for a pair of his socks, or how loose they fit, his legs still get the marks. He is 79 and has no other health problems. Would you have any idea what could be causing this? His heart doctor thought it was his blood pressure medicine, and at that time, he was taking 10 mg of amlodipine in the morning. He now takes lisinopril for his blood pressure and levothyroxine for his thyroid. — R.M.M.

to avoid it. It's even in the supplemental nutrition products that I am encouraged to drink. My question is whether there is a recommended daily allowance of sugar for cancer patients. — L.V.

I am sorry to hear about your diagnosis. It is next to impossible to avoid all sugar, but you don't need to avoid all sugar. In fact, eating a little sugar may be more important in people with liver disease, since it is the normally functioning liver that's necessary to make sugar when we need it.

I would recommend sticking around the World Health Organization and American Heart Association guidelines of 25-40 grams of sugar daily. That's much less than most people take in.

When you can see the imprint of the socks, it means that there is some swelling (edema) in the loose tissues of the legs. Although leg edema can result from serious problems with the heart, kidneys or liver, or even from blood clots, it is far more likely that it is not any of these serious conditions. After a major vascular surgery, it is common to have a bit of swelling in the legs. In fact, most people nearing their 80s have some degree of swelling, usually from imperfect valves in the veins or lymphatic vessels that don't work as well as they did 50 years earlier.

Amlodipine (Norvasc) and medicines like it often cause a degree of swelling that is not dangerous. A careful physical exam and a few blood and urine tests are all that's necessary to be sure that the leg swelling isn't being caused by a potentially dangerous condition.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 77-year-old male who, in mid-February, was diagnosed with late-stage liver cancer. I started chemo in early March. The doctors advised limiting sugar, so I started reading labels. Sugar is in everything! It is almost impossible Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.

like Mark Bavaro? It would have been all for naught had you not been piping in the play-by-play to yourself ala Keith Jackson, Marv Albert, Gil Santos, Bill Grigsby, Hank Stram or Pat Summerall.

That was a different era, to be sure. It was a time when football coaches wore suits and fedoras on the sideline, a time when Michelob used to come in funky bottles emblazoned with gold and red ribbons and was considered a premium beer, a time when you didn't need a $66 billion search engine in order to figure out what channel the game was on, because there were only three channels. And on Monday night, you can bet that all the Mr. Johnson's of the world were watching Monday Night Football.

Frank Gifford was a star long before he was the tolerant All-American glamor boy in the booth, the guy who used to break the games down while preventing Howard Cosell from having a break down. Cosell was the sports announcer who could never be ignored, whose arrogance often transcended his greatness, particularly when he felt he had to do something beneath himself, like announce football with jocks like Don Meredith and Gifford.

But it was Frank who won everyone over. He was a trailblazer – the first guy to really transition into the booth after his Hall of Fame football career. And for all of Cosell's bluster, when it came time to break the news to the world that John Lennon had been killed, he froze, and he looked over to the guy seated at his right, the other guy in the gold blazer. The golden boy, Frank Gifford himself. MVP in 1956. Hall of Famer, triple threat.

And he said to the man with all the words, the man who never played the game, that it was just that: a game.

"Got to do it," Gifford said. So, what would Cosell say today upon learning of the passing of Francis Newton? They called him "Frank" because quite frankly, he was New York's first football star. The Yankees had the Babe and the Iron Horse. The Trolley Dodgers of Brooklyn had Jackie Robinson. The Jets had Joe Willie, and the Mets had the "Say Hey Kid." But for Big Blue, their first shining star was truly a Giant. Frank Gifford, the man who could kick, run and pass, passes from this vale of tears at age 84. He will be missed.

Condolences to Kathy Lee and family.
