Texas health care

With several politicians raising concerns about the possible collapse of individual insurance markets while Republicans are back to the drawing board on health care reform, WalletHub (a personal-finance website) conducted an in-depth analysis of 2017's Best & Worst States for Health Care. The analysts compared the 50 states and the District of Columbia across 35 key measures of health care cost, accessibility and outcome to determine where Americans receive the highest-quality services at the best prices. The data set ranges from average monthly insurance premium to physicians per capita to share of insured population. Texas ranked 41st overall out of 51. WalletHub's study ranked Texas:

- 27th in Hospital Beds per Capita;
- 43rd in Physicians per Capita;
- 31st in Dentists per Capita;
- 43rd in Physician Medicare-Acceptance Rate;
- 51st in Percent of Insured Adults Aged 18 to 64;
- 49th in Percent of Insured Children Aged 0 to 17;
- 28th in Percent of At-Risk Adults with No Routine Doctor Visit in Past Two Years; and
- 47th in Percent of Adults with No Dental Visit in Past Year.

There's no business like toe business

Dawson City is located in the heart of the Canada's Yukon Territory and is known for the Klondike Gold Rush. Tourists are apt to pay a visit to Diamond Tooth Gertie's Casino while there. They may also stop in at the Sourdough Saloon to try its signature drink, the Sourtoe Cocktail—a shot of whiskey garnished with a mummified human toe. The toe was recently stolen but worry not, says the Association of Mature American Citizens. The remorseful thief returned it. He mailed the toe back to the Saloon with a letter of apology, according to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. In case you are wondering, you are not supposed to swallow the digit; you

GIVE THEM SPACE – Fast Freddy Balderrama, a tow truck driver with ASAP Tow Truck Service and Auto Repair of El Paso, is glad that tow truck drivers are now included in the Texas law, referred to as the Move Over/Slow Down law. Texas law compels drivers to slow down or move over for all emergency vehicles

By Alfredo Vasquez
Special to the Courier

EL PASO COUNTY – Local motorists should always be on the look out for emergency vehicles, especially with the numerous roads and highways under various construction phases throughout El Paso County.

When vehicle commuters see flashing lights on the side of the road, it's meant to tell them to slow down, and, if it's safe, move over away from police, fire crews, paramedics, and tow truck drivers.

Since 2003, the Texas law (Transportation Code 545.157), referred to as the Move Over/Slow Down law, requires drivers nearing stopped emergency vehicles to either slow down or change lanes. During the 2011 Legislative session, tow trucks were added to that law.

The Texas Legislature amended the Move Over/Slow Down law to require motorists to slow down or move over when passing a tow truck displaying emergency lights to improve safety for all emergency personnel who routinely work in dangerous conditions along the state's ever-expanding roads and highways.

To remind the public of this important safety measure, the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) activates on occasion on the electronic signs along major thoroughfares a message that states: If Tow Truck Stopped Ahead, Move Over or Slow Down, It's The Law.

"The Mover Over/Slow Down law is about providing extra protection for those individuals on the side of the road doing their jobs, as well as the people on the roadside with them," Department of Public

What it says

The Move Over/Slow Down law states that a motorist must either vacate the lane closest to the stopped emergency vehicle if the road has multiple lanes traveling in the same direction or slow down 20 miles per hour below the speed limit. Emergency vehicles include police, emergency medical service, fire vehicles, and tow trucks. A violation is punishable by a maximum fine of $200. If the violation results in property damage, the maximum fine increases to $500. If the violation results in bodily injury, the offense is enhanced to a Class B misdemeanor.

Safety (DPS) Director Steven McCraw stated in a news release. "Thanks to the added provision, tow truck drivers, who

Prepare for major life expenses with tax-advantaged accounts

College tuition, a new pair of glasses and retirement may seem unrelated, but the tax law says otherwise. By knowing how and where to save your money, you could pay for each of these expenses with tax-advantaged – or in some cases income-tax-free – money.

Individual Retirement Agreements (IRAs) and 401(k)s are perhaps the two most well-known examples of these types of accounts. But they're not alone. With educational and medical expenses in mind, consider the following types of accounts and how you might be able to use one to help yourself or your family.

Invest your college fund in a 529 plan. State-sponsored 529 plans come in two forms. Prepaid tuition plans let you lock in today's rate for in-state public schools and 529 college savings plans allow you to invest your savings based on your goals and risk tolerance. Contributions aren't a federal tax write-off, but if you invest in your state's plan, there might be a state income tax write-off.

As new parents ourselves, my wife and I made the decision to start preparing for our son's education with a 529 college savings plan. However, the state where we live doesn't offer a tax incentive. After diligently researching our options, we chose to establish the account in another state.

Many states let non-residents invest in their 529 plans and you can compare the state-based benefits, investment options, fees and contribution rules when choosing your plan. The College Savings Plans Network (CSPN) has tools to compare 529 plans by features or by state.

If the money is spent on qualified educational expenses, such as tuition, fees or school supplies, you don't pay federal income tax (and may not have to pay state income tax) on investment gains.

Provide financial support for a disabled person using an ABLA account. News of a life-changing disability could come at any time. Following the Achieving a Better Life Experience (ABLE) Act in 2014, states can now sponsor ABLE savings accounts. Like 529 plans, contributions may be tax-deductible on the state (but not federal) level and the investment earnings can be withdrawn tax-free to pay for qualified expenses related to a mental or physical disability.

Beneficiaries must meet two criteria to qualify for an ABLE account: the disability must have begun before they were 26 and it must have "marked and severe functional limitations." Anyone can contribute to the beneficiary's ABLE account, and there is a limit on the total annual contributions – $14,000 as of 2017.

For individuals dealing with a disability and those taking care of a loved one, an ABLE account could make it easier to manage and plan finances. Generally, if you have a disability you're disqualified from some types of federal government aid if you have over $2,000 in assets. The first $100,000 in an ABLE account doesn't count against the limit for non-Medicaid services, and the entire account balance doesn't count against the Medicaid limit.

Collectively known as ABLE 2.0, several new bills may increase the annual contribution for those who have a disability and are working, increase the eligibility age to 46 and allow families to rollover money from a 529 college savings plan to an ABLE account.

Make medical expenses more affordable with an FSA. Some employers offer a Flexible Spending Account (FSA) as a benefit to their employees. Employees can fund the accounts by putting aside a portion of their paychecks. You can then spend the money on qualified medical expenses, including eye exams, glasses and dental procedures, without paying income tax.

FSA accounts have a use-it-or-lose-it provision and the money you don't use could be forfeited at the end of the year. Employers could, but aren't required to, allow employees to roll over up to $500 each year or give them an additional two-and-a-half-month grace period to use the money.

Bottom line: Paying for higher education, covering medical-related expenses and saving for retirement are three important financial goals. Incorporating tax-advantaged accounts into your long-term plan could be a win-win for your wallet. You might be able to save money now by lowering your tax bill and lower your effective costs later by withdrawing and using the money for qualified expenses.

Let's change to 'Repeal and Restore' ObamaCare

Congress should take a vote on simply repealing the Affordable Care Act (ACA or ObamaCare). Republicans should be forced to go on the record to show how they keep – or renege on – their campaign promises.

Just in case it should pass, both Democrats and Republicans should be working on a series of "restore" bills to debate, one issue at a time, immediately after repeal. Members would have a chance to advocate for any parts of ObamaCare that they favor. However, the actual effects of the provisions should be named, instead of the purported good intentions. It is time to look at the nuts and bolts, not CBO guesstimates of enrollee counts.

Judging by the objections that have been raised to repeal, the American Medical Association (AMA) and others ought to be in favor of many of the following:

1. Keeping insurance UNaffordable: Reenact ACA provisions that outlaw catastrophic coverage and require a long list of benefits and guaranteed issue/community rating. Reenact the tax on insurers that was suspended for this year.
2. Restricting access to care: Reenact restrictions on physician-owned hospitals or other entities that compete with big hospital chains. Continue requirements on insurers that allow them to keep their costs down only by narrow networks, nonremunerative fees, or other measures that limit availability. Reenact the Independent Payment Advisory Board (IPAB) so it can limit services that can be paid for, and thus cap Medicare expenditures as Baby Boomers flood the system.
3. Protecting the managed-care cash cow (Medicaid): Continue without limit the huge federal subsidies to the Medicaid expansion states so they can continue to pour money into plans that keep childless, able-bodied adults on the welfare (Medicaid) rolls without necessarily providing any medical care. This protects the program from the fiscal restraints imposed by states' inability to print money.
4. Taxing the sick and the rich: Reenact all the taxes on medical devices, tanning salons, etc. This will help keep care unaffordable and limit availability. Also reenact the "Cadillac tax" on overly generous insurance benefits, and the added taxes on "rich" people. They are popular with the non-rich, and since they are not indexed to inflation they will help extract revenue from more and more people as time goes on.
5. Taxing the healthy, the young, and the responsible: Continue guaranteed issue/community rating so that the costs of older, unhealthy people who did not buy insurance until they "needed" it can be shifted to low-risk people who maintained continuous coverage and would have much lower premiums if they were actuarially fair.
6. Reducing jobs, especially full-time jobs: Reenact employer mandates to restrict job creation and augment down-sizing by making it much more expensive to hire people.
7. Taxing people who can't afford to buy insurance: Reinstate the individual mandate. The penalty has been criticized for not being high enough to "encourage" people to pay insurers rather than the IRS. They have to pay the insurers more than the IRS, but at least they would have an insurance card, whereas the IRS provides no benefits. Congress could increase the penalty. It could also consider allowing people to deposit that amount into a Health Savings Account (HSA), since uninsured people also receive medical care and have medical bills to pay. This would require lifting the requirement to combine an insurance plan with the HSA. But that gets into "replace" rather than "restore."
8. Funding navigators, websites, and advertising for Exchanges: While it would see unnecessary to pay to help people "shop" and encourage them to buy, when there are usually helping motorists in distress, now have additional protection under the law also, so they can do their jobs in a safer environment."

In the first year that the highway safety law went into effect, DPS issued more than 17,000 warning and citations for violation of the Move Over/Slow Down law, according to DPS officials. Violation of this law could result in fines up to $200. The punishment is more severe if there is property damage, and jail time is possible if someone is injured.

"It is very important that tow truck drivers be included in the Move Over/Slow Down law because my drivers and I have experienced close-calls when servicing a vehicle stranded on a busy roadway," stated Joe Balderrama, owner of ASAP Towing and Auto Repair of El Paso. "It is vital that the tow truck driver also be recognized as a first responder," he said.

Balderrama has been in the towing business for more than two decades, and he said that he knows of local tow truck drivers who were killed on the roadside while assisting motorists stuck on a highway. Though he's glad that the law includes tow trucks, he said that most drivers still do not pay much attention to the law.

Unfortunately, too many motorists do not understand the importance of the Move Over/ Slow Down directive; even though all fifty states have passed similar versions of the law, according to a report by the Traffic Safety Committee of the National Sheriffs' Association.

In its report, the sheriffs' association urged drivers to help protect the people who protect them, and follow this common-sense law: "Slow Down or Move Over away from emergency vehicles stopped on the side of the road."

"Our nation's law enforcement and emergency professionals put their lives on the line to protect our citizens. Slowing down and changing lanes to give our first responders the space they need to stay safe is the least we can do in return. It's what we must do. Move Over, America – It's the law," stated Bill Johnson, the executive director of the National Association of Police Organizations.

ObamaCare

may be only one product (or none) to “choose” from, people who have been hired to perform these functions would become unemployed if ACA is repealed.

9. Subsidizing economically nonviable products: When a marketplace is unstable because regulations make it impossible to make a profit, the only way to keep suppliers in it is to pay them with federal dollars from taxpayers or creditors. The sellers will continue to have enrollees who find the product affordable because somebody else is paying most of the cost.

10. Forcing everyone to fund contraceptives and abortion: Although many Americans consider these to be immoral, especially contraceptives that may have an abortifacient effect, others consider social benefit to override individual conscience. From the purely economic perspective, there seems to be a short-term benefit of having fewer children to support. In the longer term, there are also fewer taxpayers and workers.

It is time for supporters of ObamaCare to make their case for the parts that they like and have bills ready to introduce immediately if repeal should pass. If they do not favor these various provisions, how can they logically be opposed to repeal?

Once Congress focuses on the problems with ACA, it can begin to think about replacing them – with freedom, instead of more of the same.

2017 Property Tax Rates in El Paso County Emergency Services District #2

This notice concerns the 2017 property tax rates for EL PASO COUNTY EMERGENCY SERVICES DISTRICT #2. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual tax rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers start rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 1,084,996
Last year's debt taxes	$ 1,831,356
Last year's total taxes	$ 2,916,352
Last year's tax base	$ 3,082,987,473
Last year's total tax rate	$ 0.094595 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 2,906,987
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 3,147,803,383
= This year's effective tax rate	$ 0.092349 /$100

(Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate, and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$ 1,081,036
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 3,147,803,383
= This year's effective operating rate	$ 0.034343 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$ 0.037090 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$ 0.055363 /$100
= This year's total rollback rate	$ 0.092453 /$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If EL PASO COUNTY EMERGENCY SERVICES DISTRICT #2 adopts a 2017 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $0.092349 per $100 of value, taxes would increase compared to 2016 taxes by $74,854.

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Maintenance & Operation (M&O)	$ 3,513,389

SCHEDULE B – 2017 Debt Service

Kaepernick's future in the NFL is anybody's guess

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

With the rest of the NFL getting ready to open its exhibition season this weekend, the league should dominate the sports headlines for the next six months.

Well, really, it nearly dominates the headlines all year long.

Some of the hot topics during the offseason include Odell Beckham believing he should be the highest paid player in the league, Ezekiel Elliott's possible suspension, San Diego and Oakland obtaining new addresses and Tom Brady reaching the big number 40.

But by far, the biggest NFL story has been about a player who isn't even in the league.

The plight of quarterback Colin Kaepernick has been well documented, maybe even over-documented, ever since he decided to leave San Francisco and become a free agent.

You might say that he bet on himself... so far it's been a very bad bet.

Of course the only reason we care about Kaepernick at all stems from his stance on what he perceives is a system in a country that allows white police officers to murder unarmed black citizens.

We all know he protested by refusing the stand during the National Anthem. He instead would either sit down or take a knee. The action prompted other like-minded athletes to do the same.

Naturally, this led to many Americans coming out against his views, while others applauded him for having the courage to voice his concerns.

The great physicist Isaac Newton once said, "for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction."

Who knew Newton was such a big football fan?

Many believe that because of Kaepernick's controversial actions, other NFL teams have reacted by not taking a chance on him.

No teams have come calling. And it's beginning to drive some league players, and even sports commentators, nuts.

Even teams who have suffered quarterback injuries, have chosen to go Kaepernick-free.

But if the quarterback is looking for someone to blame for all of this, he may not have to go any further than his own bathroom mirror.

It's one thing to openly disrespect the anthem, but he didn't stop there.

He said when he started his protest, "I am not going to stand up to show pride in a flag for a country that oppresses Black people and people of color. To me, this is bigger than football and it would be selfish on my part to look the other way."

Of course there were some that thought it was funny that he wasn't offended enough to refuse his huge American paycheck.

Then there was the press conference he held back in November wearing a t-shirt with the images of former Cuban dictator Fidel Castro and Malcolm X on it.

He went on to praise Cuba's education system under Castro.

This didn't sit well with those who reminded Kaepernick that Castro killed many of his own people and repressed an entire country; many of whose citizens fled to freedom in the United States, or died trying.

He once referred to the police in American as a "runaway slave patrol."

There are many who agree with Kaepernick, but in today's society words have a way of finding their way back home.

It was learned last week that Miami quarterback Ryan Tannehill got injured.

So talk began about the possibility of Kaepernick being picked up by the Dolphins.

Yeah, right – what Kaepernick said about Castro is really going to go down well with the fans in Miami.

Action... reaction.

I'm not saying it's right or justified, it's just human nature.

If his actions were meant to jolt a population, then mission accomplished. But to not expect a reaction one way or the other, is fantasy.

If Kaepernick has taken advantage of his right to feel one way, then don't NFL owners have that same right?

Kaepernick may still sign on with a team. If someone needs a quarterback bad enough they'll come calling.

But as we've seen over the last decade – either through spoken words, social media or physical action – every single step by a public figure has to be taken as if atop fractured eggshells.

The reactions today can be either supportive, harsh or downright hostile.

But make no mistake – there's always a reaction.

"HE NEEDS TO SHOW SOME APPRECIATION FOR THE EXTRAORDINARY PERSONAL FREEDOM HE HAS IN AMERICA...SO FORCE HIM TO STAND UP."

A sporting view By Mark Vasto

Battle of the acronyms

Growing up as a kid (is there any other way?), the biggest fears I had in life now seem absolutely absurd.

You see, I was born into an era of five-channel television. You had your big three – ABC, NBC, CBS – and then two or three stragglers that showed nothing but reruns and live sports. And the old reruns ruled.

The reruns were mostly a cavalcade of extreme violence or predicaments. The Justice League would battle the Legion of Doom every Saturday morning; Godzilla would level Tokyo every Sunday morning. Superfly Snuka, Andre the Giant, Rowdy Roddy Piper and Hulk Hogan would rule the afternoons. I watched kung-fu fighters avenging the dishonor of their sister or mother before church.

Thanks to Wile E. Coyote, I had an inordinate fear of anvils falling from the sky and Acme in general, since it seemed to supply all his faulty weaponry. I used to worry that somebody would tie my sister to train tracks or that a hike through the woods would somehow end up with her falling into quicksand with no ape men to save her, because ape men were not indigenous to our area.

But without doubt, the biggest fear I had was instilled by my parents. If I wanted to climb a tree, my mother would tell me to get down because I might fall and "bang my head." My father would amp up the terror, warning me that I would "crack my head open."

Well, times have changed. The only time I've ever seen an anvil was at Colonial Williamsburg, and apparently modern science has cured the scourge of quicksand. Thanks to the UFC, you can watch kung fu without having to make it about a battle over your favorite aunt. Yet, a serious battle looms in American sports. The NFL has literally cracked its head open.

A recent study confirmed what we all most likely knew: 99 percent of the brains donated to science by former NFLers showed signs of serious chronic traumatic encephalopathy. CTE is a disease that causes early-onset dementia and a host of other things associated with brain function. It is the direct result of taking numerous hits to the head.

Nobody is shocked by the findings. We've known that football and fighting cause damage to the brain. Muhammad Ali couldn't even walk up the stairs at the 1996 Olympics. No, now the fear is that we're going to lose our game. Participation is key in sports. It is hard to fill roster spots when nobody will play, and after this CTE report, really, parents have to be afraid for their kids.

Luckily, this is nothing new. In the early days of football, the late 1800s, a Harvard coach came up with a formation designed to decimate Yale. Based on ancient military strategy, the wedge simply meant that everyone on the offensive team would grip each other's uniform in a V formation, their ball carrier safe behind them. The problem was that the wedge often singled out lone defenders with a half-ton of momentum, and that actually killed people. It got to be such a problem that the president of the United States, Teddy Roosevelt, got involved. Rather than see football go, he was instrumental in changing the rules of the game so that it exists to this day. That's why they carved his face into a mountain.

If we put our heads together, football can be saved. We just need to be careful and not crack our heads open.

Your good health By Keith Roach, M.D.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have mild osteoporosis in one area. I was on Fosamax for seven years. I have been off for two years. My doctor is suggesting I go back on Fosamax. Your thoughts on treatment in my case? – A.B.

this a general recommendation, although the theory makes sense to me. If I were treating someone in A.B.'s situation, I would restart treatment if the NTX level showed high bone resorption.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have been advised that Medicare will cover the bone density test only every two years. If that's true, why? – A.L.

READERS: Nearly every woman, if she lives long enough, must come to grips with osteoporosis. To order the booklet about this debilitating disease, write to Dr. Roach – No. 1104W, 628 Virginia Drive, Orlando, FL 32803. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow up to four weeks for delivery.

Osteoporosis is loss of bone minerals and strength. There are at least two ways to measure changes in bones, whether as an age-related drop in bone density and strength or as an increase in response to treatment. One way is to measure the bone density via an X-ray (DEXA). The other is a urine test, N-telopeptide of collagen (abbreviated NTX), which looks at net bone loss.

DEAR DR. ROACH: What are your thoughts about the MiraDRY procedure to get rid of underarm sweat? Is it safe not to have sweat under the arms? – S.J.

DEXA correlates well to fracture risk, but it changes very slowly. In fact, it changes so slowly that a repeat test within two years usually reflects variability in the test itself rather than an actual change in the bone, which is why most insurance companies – and, yes, Medicare – will cover the test only every two years.

MiraDRY is the brand name of a microwave device designed to treat hyperhidrosis (excessive sweating). This is a condition of abnormal, drenching sweat that greatly interferes with social activities, not normal underarm sweating. It is currently used only for underarms – not hands, feet or face, the other most common places for localized hyperhidrosis. According to several published papers, the microwaves heat up the water in the sweat glands, destroying them, while the skin itself is cooled. The published success rates (at reducing sweating to “nevernoticeable” or “tolerable”) are very high, as are patient satisfaction results. Side effects

Some experts believe that measuring NTX is a useful way of measuring the effectiveness of treatment, such as with a medication like Fosamax. Further, although the optimum duration of treatment for osteoporosis isn't clear, five years is commonly used (as it sounds like is the case for A.B.). NTX can guide whether restarting treatment is necessary. There just isn't enough information to make

New numbers

They finally realized the security risk of using Social Security Numbers on Medicare cards, says the Association of Mature American Citizens. The folks at Medicare headquarters promise that every Medicare recipient will have received a new card with a random Medicare Beneficiary Identifier, or MBI number, by April 2019.

Going up?

The German tech firm, ThyssenKrup, aims to provide high-rise visitors – whether it be an office building or an apartment complex – a more convenient way of getting to your destination, says the Association of Mature American Citizens. They are in the process of testing a revolutionary kind of elevator – one that goes up and down and sideways. And, there'll be no need for cables because the Maglev uses rails and magnetic fields to ferry passengers around their buildings. But, don't look for a Maglev system to come to a high rise near you very soon. This type of indoor transportation costs about five times more than your garden-variety elevator.

Veterans Post By Freddy Groves

VA caregiver program

The Department of Veterans Affairs caregiver program is back. That should be great news to people who were left in limbo after the VA pulled the plug on thousands of caregivers earlier this year while it considered how to revamp the program.

The Program of Comprehensive Assistance for Family Caregivers gives aid to eligible veterans who were severely injured on or after Sept. 11, 2001, and who need personal care for daily activities, such as bathing and dressing, or who need supervision or protection because of impairment. Care must be required for a minimum six months; tasks such as lifting, transportation and emotional support are not included. The stipend paid to the caregiver is based on how many hours of help per month the veteran needs, as determined by the tier level (high, medium or low) after a clinical evaluation.

Often it's a primary family member who is the caregiver. To meet the requirements, they need to be the spouse, child or parent and live with the veteran. Another level, secondary family caregiver, has slightly different requirements and duties. These often serve as backup support. Both must fill out an application, VA Form 10-10CG. All caregivers have support coordinators to help them in giving the best care they can, accessing benefits and services, and learning more about assistance that's available.

For more information, go online to the redesigned caregiver website: www.caregiver.va.gov. You'll find links to determine eligibility and specifics about how the program works, as well as the application to download. Put your ZIP code in to find local caregiver advocates, or call the caregiver support line at 1 (855) 260-3274. If you ever need to file an appeal, contact the caregiver support coordinator or the patient advocate at the closest VA medical center.

Here's a Tip By JoAnn Derson

- Moving? Stick a foam plate between your regular plates to cushion them. Bonus is that they are reusable at the new place.

- "I found that a travel makeup bag worked really well to keep all my electronic accessories in one place. I have spots for my different device chargers, as well as my wireless mouse, jump drives, earbuds and a spare battery. It makes it easy to grab what I need for a quick trip, and the cords are never jumbled together."
– E.T. in Massachusetts

- "We had a nice set of knives in a knife block. The scissors broke, and then a couple of the smaller knives went kaput, too. The block started to look weird with the spots for missing items. My wife filled a wide mouth vase with little stone beads, and the remaining knives are stored in it on the counter. It looks really cool and different, and keeps the blades safe."
– A.L. in Arkansas

- Purchase additional measuring cups in the most-used sizes and slip one in the containers of most measured items: flour, sugar, coffee, etc. You'll thank yourself when you don't have to search for the right measuring cup or try to clean one in between ingredients.

- Here's a tip for caregivers: Please make sure you put personal time on your to-do list, because it's just as important as following up on treatment plans and picking up prescriptions. You can help someone so much better when you are rested and ready to give. Take care of yourself so you can take care of others.

Social Security Q&A By Ray Vigil

Keep a close eye on your earnings record

Whether you're ready to retire, just joining the workforce, or somewhere in between, regularly reviewing your Social Security earnings record could make a big difference when it's time to collect your retirement benefits.

Just think, in some situations, if an employer did not properly report just one year of your work earnings to us, your future benefit payments from Social Security could be close to $100 per month less than they should be. Over the course of a lifetime, that could cost you tens of thousands of dollars in retirement or other benefits to which you are entitled.

Social Security prevents many mistakes from ever appearing on your earnings record. On average, we process about 236 million W-2 wage reports from employers, representing more than $5 trillion in earnings. More than 98 percent of these wages are successfully posted with little problem.

But it's ultimately the responsibility of your employers – past and present – to provide accurate earnings information to Social Security so you get credit for the contributions you've made through payroll taxes. We rely on you to inform us of any errors or omissions. You're the only person who can look at your lifetime earnings record and verify that it's complete and correct.

So, what's the easiest and most efficient way to validate your earnings record?

1) Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount to set up or sign in to your own my Social Security account;

2) Under the "My Home" tab, click on "Earnings Record" to view your online Social Security Statement and taxed Social Security earnings;

3) Carefully review each year of listed earnings and use your own records, such as W-2s and tax returns, to confirm them; and

4) Keep in mind that earnings from this year and last year may not be listed yet.

If you notice that you need to correct your earnings record, check out our one-page fact sheet at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/EN-05-10081.pdf.

Sooner is definitely better when it comes to identifying and reporting problems with your earnings record. As time passes, you may no longer have past tax documents and some employers may no longer be in business or able to provide past payroll information.

If it turns out everything in your earnings record is correct, you can use the information and our online calculators at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/benefitcalculators.html to plan for your retirement and prepare for the unexpected, such as becoming disabled or leaving behind survivors. We use your top 35 years of earnings when we calculate your benefit amounts. You can learn more about how your benefit amount is calculated at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10070.pdf.

We're with you throughout life's journey, from starting your first job to receiving your well-earned first retirement payment. Learn more about the services we provide online at www.socialsecurity.gov/onlineservices.

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.
