Best states for police

With President Joe Biden's State of the Union address calling for the nation to "fund the police" with better training and resources, the personal-finance website WalletHub has released its report on 2022's Best & Worst States to Be a Police Officer, as well as accompanying videos and expert commentary. In order to determine the best states to pursue a career in law enforcement, WalletHub compared the 50 states and the District of Columbia across 30 key indicators of police-friendliness. The data set ranges from the median income for law-enforcement officers to police deaths per 1,000 officers to state and local police-protection expenses per capita. Texas was rated 18th in the report, ranking (1-Best; 25-Avg.):

- 7th – Law-Enforcement Officers per Capita;
- 15th – Median Income for Law-Enforcement Officers (Adjusted for Cost of Living);
- 49th – Median Income Growth for Law-Enforcement Officers;

EXPRESSION – A mural, Women in Art: Inspiring Young Women Into the Field of Art, was recently completed at the Outlet Shoppes at El Paso by a group of female artists from the Canutillo Independent School District. The mural, above, is designed to feature the future of female empowerment and to pay homage to Canutillo, the upper valley community that welcomed the outlet mall in 2007.

CANUTILLO—To remind the thousands of people who visit the Outlet Shoppes at El Paso that they are actually in Canutillo, a colorful mural that masterfully heralds the upper valley community's rich history now adorns a large wall at the southwest entrance to the outlet mall courtyard.

The recently unveiled mural, Women in Art: Inspiring Young Women into the field of Art, also showcases the power of women, as the painting was done by an all-female crew of Canutillo Independent School District (CISD) teachers and

The new mural is located near the Old Navy and Puma stores, directly across from The Outlet Shoppes' new eatery, the Nopal Nation. During a recent unveiling ceremony, CISD officials acknowledged their gratitude for the opportunity to tell Canutillo's story and for allowing these young female artists to demonstrate their talents as they learned about their community.

According to the CISD contingent of artists, much of the information depicted in the mural came from the documentation that was provided by Canutillo residents. Some of the historic images painted on the mural include

La Paloma Grocery Store and Mexican soldiers who rode with Pancho Villa. According to local historians, Pancho Villa and his generals used to regularly come to Canutillo and frequent Fernando Carrasco's marketplace, La Paloma Store. During the Mexican Revolution era in the early 1910's, the troopers would purchase supplies, munitions, among other items to sustain them as they rode back into battle across the Rio Grande.

The Canutillo mural is just one of several murals that are featured on outdoor walls throughout the mall. Local artist Christin Apodaca's mural features

Scalia was right – again

Justice Antonin Scalia was among the most prescient Supreme Court justices in American history, and the firestorm over the leak of Justice Samuel Alito's draft opinion overturning Roe is a reminder of it.

In Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania v. Casey, the 1992 Supreme Court decision upholding (and amending) Roe v. Wade, the justices in the majority believed that they could settle once and for all the dispute over abortion.

Scalia thought this was outlandishly wrongheaded and said so in a dissent that looks farsighted 30 years later. Not only did the Court fail to calm the political waters on abortion, it made itself central to the political and moral argument over the issue.

If there's any doubt about that, consider the security fencing reminiscent of the days after January 6 that is now going up around the Supreme Court building. Consider the left-wing group planning protests at the homes of conservative justices. Consider the proposal from Sen. John Comyn of Texas that justices get 24/7 security details.

It's extraordinary that now, at the very least, the whiff of physical intimidation is part of the Court's deliberations on Roe.

Scalia might be surprised by that, but not that abortion has remained a point of contention over the decades, despite the Court's preposterous belief that it could make itself the final arbiter.

In his dissent in Casey, Scalia analogized the Court's jurisprudence on abortion to its decision in Dred Scott v. Sandford, the notorious 1857 case in which the Court denied the petition of a slave named Dred Scott for freedom.

The Court issued a sweeping decision, declaring unconstitutional the Missouri Compromise of 1820 that had banned slavery north of latitude 36 degrees 30' in the Louisiana Purchase. It did this, in part, because it thought it could forge a settlement on slavery that had eluded the political branches.

Instead, the Chief Justice Roger Taney made himself infamous for a decision that, like Roe and Casey, was wrongly decided, that entrenched and extended a profound social wrong, that short-circuited democratic decision-making, and that utterly failed to create political and social peace.

The decision was immediately excoriated by opponents of slavery in the harshest possible terms. They called into question its legitimacy and indeed the legitimacy of the Court itself. Serious and sober-minded men like Abraham Lincoln and William Seward advanced conspiracy theories for how the Court could have arrived at such an atrocious place. (There were indeed improprieties around the Court's deliberations.)

Scalia invoked a portrait of Roger Taney at Harvard Law School by the great painter Emanuel Leutze in

Who defines disinformation?

Just after Elon Musk bought Twitter, promising more freedom, the Biden administration announces a new government agency to "protect" Americans and the world from harmful disinformation, especially about the COVID pandemic.

It is called the Disinformation Governance Board, although some would call it the Minitrue, short for Ministry of Truth, the ministry of propaganda in George Orwell's novel 1984. The abbreviation differs from KGB by only one letter.

There is the First Amendment, of course, but there is precedent for disregarding it, especially in war. Newspapers were shut down and editors arrested for expressing anti-war views, at the time of the Civil War by Abraham Lincoln and World War I by Woodrow Wilson. President Wilson even suppressed information about the raging 1918 influenza pandemic¹ so as not to interfere with the war effort. The U.S. Supreme Court upheld Wilson's Espionage Act and its 20-year prison terms. Wilson even demanded that the Librarian of Congress report the names of those who ordered certain books! Today's technology permits government to find out if you even looked at a book or article online.

Today, "mainstream media" is mostly owned by a few conglomerates, that all seem to be on board with the current Narrative about this "war" on COVID. The First Amendment does not apply to private organizations. The internet and social media owned by Big Tech could threaten those who want to suppress certain truths.

We can tell something about the Agenda from the accounts that Twitter has banned: views of election fraud that favors Democrats; evidence of corrupt dealings with foreign governments by

FROM THE PARTY THAT WANTS TO ERADICATE DISINFORMATION

Hunter Biden's laptop; and information contradicting the official narrative on COVID-19.

With COVID, disinformation is defined by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Food and Drug Administration (FDA), and National Institutes of Health (NIH). Skepticisms about masks and lockdowns, information about early treatment with cheap, repurposed drugs, or anything that might lead to "vaccine hesitancy" are anathema.

Who writes the message? According to Dr. Scott Atlas, who was briefly a member of President Trump's COVID Task Force, in his book A Plague upon Our House, the nationwide message was dictated by Anthony Fauci, Deborah Birx, and Robert Redfield, even over the President's objection. Was it "the Science"? Dr. Atlas immersed himself in the deluge of scientific articles and brought copies to meetings. They were ignored. Birx, he writes, relied on unreliable or outdated data to dictate

"mitigation" measures. No one else was willing to confront her. The deadly results of useless lockdowns were not of interest.

Who is Deborah Birx to have the power to destroy Americans' livelihood and lives? Most of her work had concerned the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Both Birx and Redfield had been accused of misrepresenting their results on an HIV vaccine².

Birx like the others is an appointed bureaucrat, with no accountability to voters. But their agencies are honeycombed with conflicts of interest³. So, accountable they are—to private interests.

The Narrative—there is no early treatment (except possibly monoclonal antibodies), just get vaccinated and you will be safe—might change, now that double-masked and quadruple-vaccinated Vice-President Kamala Harris has tested positive⁴ for COVID. She is getting Pfizer's new oral drug Paxlovid™.

Pfizer has begun running animated 30-second spots⁵ focusing on how fast COVID-19 moves. It features a narrator saying you can move fast, too, by "asking your healthcare provider if a new oral treatment could be right for you." The ad doesn't mention the name of the drug, as it is not yet approved but only has an Emergency Use Authorization (EUA). A Pfizer logo pops up at the end of the spot along with a link to Pfizer's COVID-19 website.

Pfizer has so far spent $2.8 million on

Buffalo, Laguna Woods, Houston – the world gets crazier every day

A good person did not enter a grocery store in Buffalo, New York killing ten people and wounding multiple others. A good person did not enter a church in Laguna Woods, California wounding many and killing one person. A good person did not enter a Houston, Texas flea market killing two and wounding at least three more. These are evil people. The police officer who heroically fought back in the Buffalo grocery store with a gun was a good person. He was trying to protect the other good people who were in the grocery store. If America rounded up all the guns and used them for only police officers and the military, there would still be evil people. Evil plots, make irrational decisions and go to depraved levels to carry out their heinous acts. What an evil person does is beyond the comprehension of everyday moral people. A mentally depraved person thinks in a sphere of unreality. They have thoughts no one else would ever think. Pathetically they put their thoughts into action. The Buffalo shooter drove hundreds of miles. He bought tactical gear and wore protective armor that enabled him to withstand the security guard's bullets and kill the security guard.

ban a former President but it can't control or prevent an insane live video feed of someone wanting to show others that he is killing people.

Evil people will find a way to carry out their evil schemes. They will find a way to get guns or use cars, planes, trucks, fire or whatever to hurt others. The people killing people in churches and grocery stores are not deer hunters. They aren't wild turkey or rabbit hunters. They aren't the average citizens who just want a gun for their bedside table for protection. The people perpetrating these crimes are deranged.

Our society must find a way to unarm those who are displaying outward signs of craziness or have any records of unlawful activity. Once again, it's difficult to keep guns out of the hands of bad people because evil works very hard. However, we must continue to try.

Grocery stores, churches and most businesses will eventually have locked doors. You will need a card to unlock the door much like hotels use today. You will need your name and information registered with the business or house of worship before you'll be able to enter. Armed guards like airport security guards will check your identification when you come to the door. This still doesn't protect the families playing in a city park or those gathering in an open-air sidewalk café. To some extent we will always be vulnerable, everywhere.

The world has felt crazier every day for the last two years. This past weekend proved again that it's not getting better.

a female Folklorico dancer in a light blue dress. Apodaca related that the mural, Movements of the Past, is a symbol that celebrates the spirit of this borderland community. Another mural, Somos Fiesta by local artist Paola Martinez, features an array of brightly colored pinatas, an allusion to this area's diversity and culture.

The purpose for painting the women in art mural by an all-female crew is meant to inspire future generations to accelerate progress towards gender equality and, at the same time, to showcase the unique culture of the Canutillo community, explained Estella Ramos, an art teacher at Jose J. Alderete Middle School (AMS) which is in the Canutillo school district and located near the outlet mall.

"As a female artist I have always had a dream of collaborating with other women artists on a project. All that I lacked was a subject and a location. I was fortunate to find both," Ramos commented during the mural's unveiling.

"My husband, Dr. Regino Ramos Jr. (the CISD music director and a Canutillo native), has always told me stories of the history of Canutillo. I discovered that Canutillo is rich with history, but people living here don't know about it. I knew that doing a mural about Canutillo's history in a high traffic venue, like The Outlet Shoppes at El Paso, would help make people aware of Canutillo's rich history. We were very fortunate to find a willing ally in The Outlet Shoppes and their staff," the AMS art teacher stated.

Joining E. Ramos with this endeavor were CISD faculty members Heather Cawley, Northwest Early College High School (NECHS) art faculty member; Stacy Edgar, Canutillo High School (CHS) art faculty member; Rocio Ortega, Canutillo Middle School (CMS) art faculty member, and Nidia Avila, AMS Principal.

CISD students who participated in the mural project were: from AMS – Natalie Martin, Clarissa Mendoza, Julia Muller, Vivian Acosta, and Sophia Ontiveros; from CMS – Genesis Guevarra, Lily Grahn, Sabina Ureno, Naomi Escudero, and Alexandra Esquivel; from NECHS – Marysol N. Bustillos, Cienna Shah, and Isabella Fugate.

"We are thrilled to help showcase the history of Canutillo," stated Carlos Rodriguez, general manager of The Outlet Shoppes. "This is a great way for our children to learn more about our community and for us to learn from them," he added.

We need a toast

One can only imagine what a sip of the most expensive bottle of single malt scotch whiskey would taste like. All you need

The auctioneers at Lyon & Turnbull in Edinburgh, Scotland say they expect that the Macallan Distillery's record-breaking, nearly six-foot tall, 82.16 gallon bottle of its 32-year-old Intrepid brand single-malt scotch might fetch nearly $2 million at auction.

Big-name NFL players get into big-time trouble

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

Everyone knows that the sport of football is king in the United States. It doesn't matter what time of year it is, the NFL seems to always be in the news.

And it doesn't have to do anything with an actual game. It could be the trade deadline, the NFL draft, the announcement of next year's schedules, the start of mini-camp, free agent signings and don't forget the news anytime a head coach is fired.

Unfortunately, the constant NFL news also includes the knuckleheads in the league who just can't seem to keep themselves from being arrested.

I know it's not anything new for NFL players to gain the spotlight for doing something illegal and getting caught, but what's a little unusual this time is the number of big-name players who have been arrested recently.

Let's start with former Kansas City Chiefs receiver Byron Pringle, who now plays for the Chicago Bears. On April 23, Pringle was arrested in Florida and charged with reckless driving as well as driving while his license was suspended.

It turns out that Pringle was observed by Florida Highway Patrol doing figure 8s in his Dodge Challenger SRT Hellcat.

He was doing them with such force that officers first noticed a cloud of smoke that "reduced the visibility to nearly zero" for drivers heading west.

But that's not the worst part, when they stopped Pringle, they noticed he had a child in the back seat.

In mid-April, Carolina Panthers linebacker Damien Wilson was arrested in Frisco, Texas, after his ex-girlfriend said he threatened to kill her.

Wilson faces a charge of assault with bodily injury of a family member.

According to reports, an officer was dispatched to the apartment of Wilson's ex-girlfriend, Ryan Sokolosky in response to a domestic abuse disturbance. She told police that Wilson stole her keys and other items and choked her friend. She said he also destroyed her laptop by wrapping it in a blanket and slamming it to the ground, telling her it was her cat.

On May 12, Denver Broncos wide receiver Jerry Jeudy was arrested for involvement in connection with a domestic dispute. Jeudy was booked into jail on a misdemeanor charge of criminal tampering and domestic violence.

The woman who made the complaint was described as being in an "ongoing relationship" with Jeudy. The couple has a 1-month-old child.

Jeudy allegedly kept property from the woman, including a wallet, a child car seat and paperwork involving the child.

On May 13, Former Seattle Seahawks safety Earl Thomas was arrested in his hometown of Orange, Texas, a couple weeks after a warrant was issued following his alleged violation of a court protective order.

Police said he violated the protective order by sending threatening messages to a woman about her and her children.

The woman had told police that Thomas recently began threatening her and her children via text, including one message on April 18 informing her that he had just obtained two handguns.

On Feb. 13, Free-agent NFL running back Adrian Peterson was arrested at Los Angeles International Airport after an apparent domestic violence incident with his wife, Ashley Peterson. Los Angeles Airport Police said they received a call about a potential domestic violence incident on a flight that was leaving LAX for Houston.

Remember, it was Peterson who was charged with felony child abuse in 2014 for using a switch to spank his then-4-year-old son, which resulted in cuts and bruises all over the boy's body.

On Feb. 9, New Orleans Saints running back Alvin Kamara was arrested and charged with battery "resulting in substantial bodily harm," according to the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police.

Detectives found surveillance video from the casino that matched the victim's account of events. According to the police report, Kamara pushed the victim and another male in the group punched the victim in the face and knocked him against the wall. Kamara then punched the victim several times.

The incident occurred around 6:25 a.m. on the eve of the Pro Bowl. Kamara was then arrested after the Pro Bowl, which he played in.

It's actually not that difficult to stay out of trouble, people do it all the time. But for some reason, some athletes just can't stop proving how dumb they can be.

1859. "He sits," Scalia wrote, "facing the viewer and staring straight out. There seems to be on his face, and in his deep-set eyes, an expression of profound sadness and disillusionment." Scalia imagined him despairing at what his ambitious ruling in Dred Scott had wrought and warned the Court against making the same mistake again.

"It is no more realistic for us in this litigation than it was for him in that," Scalia noted, "to think that an issue of the sort they both involved – an issue involving life and death, freedom and subjugation – can be 'speedily and finally settled' by the Supreme Court..."

Rather, Scalia argued, "By foreclosing all democratic outlet for the deep passions this issue arouses, by banishing the issue from the political forum that gives all participants, even the losers, the satisfaction of a fair hearing and an honest fight, by continuing the imposition of a rigid national rule instead of allowing for regional differences, the court merely prolongs and intensifies the anguish.

"We should get out of this area," he urged, "where we have no right to be, and where we do neither ourselves nor the country any good by remaining."

Can Prilosec be taken for more than 14 days?

DEAR DR. ROACH: What's the story with Prilosec? Doctors routinely tell people with GERD or acid stomach to take this forever. Yet it clearly describes only a 14-day treatment on the box. A physician assistant told me that because of a rare infrequent condition some users have that the manufacturer is legally bound to post the 14-day limit, but that the general population can safely ignore it. Can you enlighten and reassure those of us whose physicians have said to take it long term? – C.D.C.

The patient instructions in the over-the-counter versions of proton pump inhibitors, such as omeprazole (Prilosec), do recommend a 14-day course. However, longer courses may indeed be prescribed by a licensed prescriber, such as a PA. Even so, there are relatively few people who need lifelong medication. Those who do may have a condition such as Barrett's esophagus, in which PPIs – the most potent medical treatment to suppress stomach acid – are necessary. They not only relieve symptoms, they are also prescribed in hopes of reducing the risk of developing cancer of the esophagus. The data on this are still not clear.

For people with acid reflux (also called gastroesophageal reflux disease), PPIs are usually not needed lifelong. However, it may still be reasonable to use these drugs long term if the prescriber feels the benefit outweighs the risk.

There are several risks of long-term use of PPIs. Stomach acids are important in protecting against bacteria, and two kinds of bacterial infections are more common in PPI users. The first is in the colon, especially of Clostridium difficile, where PPI users are about 30% more likely to be infected and may do so even without the antibiotic use that is the most common risk factor for C. diff. The second is pneumonia, although the apparent association may not be as strong as formerly thought.

Low stomach acid may decrease absorption of vitamins and minerals, especially magnesium, iron and vitamin B12.

PPIs were thought to increase the risk of a rare tumor, gastric carcinoid, based on data from rats, and of colon cancer. Those risks have not been seen in humans. Early data suggest increased risk of kidney disease and dementia. That risk appears to be small, if it even exists.

Long-term PPI use has some risk of side effects and should be used only when there are benefits to PPIs that can't be obtained with other treatments, including other medications and lifestyle changes. This especially includes better diet, weight loss when appropriate and not eating right before bed.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I'm not against medical marijuana when prescribed, but why do patients want or need to smoke it? What does the secondhand smoke do to children and adults around those who are smoking it? – C.G.

Secondhand cannabis smoke has potential adverse effects. It can be irritating to the eyes and respiratory tract. The psychoactive component, THC, can be absorbed by someone in close proximity, especially if exposed over a prolonged period. This is also true for the vapor made by an e-cigarette device.

Cannabis smoke is irritating for the user as well. Many people who use medical cannabis use edibles containing extracts, THC and CBD. These have no risk to others, although they do carry a higher risk of acute intoxication for the user. In any event, cannabis users should take care not to expose people who do not want to be exposed, especially children.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu. (c) 2022 North America Synd., Inc. All Rights Reserved.

Can VA puppy program help combat PTSD?

by Freddy Groves

The Department of Veterans Affairs has published its plan for starting up a pilot program for the Puppies Assisting Wounded Servicemembers for Veterans Therapy Act. In the PAWS Act, the VA will do a five-year pilot program to train dogs as a means of assisting veterans with PTSD (post-traumatic stress disorder), with the veterans doing the training.

Five VA medical centers will be part of the pilot program: San Antonio; West Palm Beach, Florida; Anchorage, Alaska; Asheville, North Carolina; and Palo Alto, California.

There are three requirements for veterans to be eligible to join the pilot program: be enrolled in VA health care, be diagnosed with PTSD and get a recommendation from a VA mental health-care provider.

Veterans getting care from a non-VA provider will need to contact the VA facility where they get authorization for the non-VA care and ask about taking part in the pilot. Additionally, the veteran must have had an appointment for some type of care within three months of asking to join the program, and then continue with appointments every three months.

The VA would be required to provide the dogs to veterans with mental illnesses who do not have mobility problems with training provided by certified trainers. Veterans would not be allowed to be around the dogs unless the trainer is present, nor to use any shock collars.

At the end of training, the veteran can adopt the dog if the trainer believes it's in the veteran's best interest, and additional training will continue for the life of the dog. However, some of the training involves getting a dog ready to be a service animal for someone else, so a veteran might work with multiple dogs.

To read all the fine print about the dog program, go to the Federal Register (www.federalregister.gov) and search for PAWS Act, then look for Implementation of the PAWS for Veterans Therapy Act.

Then, clean out and shorten your dryer's vent hose to make your machine more energy efficient. It cuts down on drying time, too, saving you time AND money.

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART).
