Team Judge or Team Ohtani – either way you win

By Steve Escajeda Special to the Courier

The Major League Baseball season is already approaching the quarter mark of the season with every team having played about 40 games now.

Forty may sound like a lot of games, a season.

Anyway, last year will always be known for its domination by two players, the Los Angeles Dodgers' Shohei Ohtani and the New York Yankees' Aaron Judge.

In fact, the two big men led their teams to the 2024 World Series, where the Dodgers beat the Yankees in five games.

Both Ohtani and Judge had an incredible season. Both were named MVP of their respective leagues.

Judge batted .322 (3rd in MLB) and Ohtani hit .310 (5th), Ohtani scored 134 runs (1st), Judge scored 122 (4th), Ohtani had 197 hits, (4th) and Judge had 180 (8th), Judge smashed 58 homeruns (1st) and Ohtani had 54 (2nd), Judge drove in 144 runs (1st) and Ohtani knocked in 130 (2nd), Ohtani had 411 total bases (1st) and Judge had 392 (2nd).

The only place where one guy dominated the other was in stolen bases where Ohtani finished second in the league with 59. Judge, who is not a base stealer, swiped 10.

Of course, Ohtani will always be known for having the better year, being the first player in history to make the 50/50 club, 54 homeruns and 59 steals.

Well, enough about last year. This year both Ohtani and Judge are numbers. off to hot starts.

Well, Ohtani is off to a hot start. But Judge is on fire, putting up historic numbers that may lead to one of the best MLB seasons ever.

One of the most impossible things to but it's not very many when you figure do in baseball is hit .400. In fact, the in that every team plays 162 games in last player to do it was the great Ted Williams, who hit .406 in 1941.

> Now for you non-history buffs, that was back in the middle of World War II.

> Well, as of last Sunday, Aaron Judge was hitting an amazing .432.

To prove how dominant that is, the next player on the list is batting .349.

The 6-7, 282-pound Judge looks more like an NFL tight end than a right fielder. He's known for either blasting towering homeruns or striking out. He's never been known as a guy who can also get base hits.

doing this season.

Judge leads all of MLB in hits. (54), batting average (.432), runs batted in (33), total bases (99), onbase percentage (.520) and slugging (.792).

Oh, and he's second in runs scored (31) and homeruns (11).

And in all those categories, he isn't just leading the league, he's way ahead of the next guy.

Ohtani leads the league in just one you two names – Ohtani and Judge. category with 35 runs scored.

Yes, I know there's a lot of baseball left to be played, over 100 games. But it looks like these two are going to have another one of those "let's see who can top who" seasons.

Judge has plenty of time to slow down his torrid hitting and Ohtani has time to start catching up.

Either way, one thing between these two is becoming clear. It looks like But that's exactly what he has been Judge and Ohtani are going to emerge historic season now?

as one of those all-time sports rivalries. Let's take a closer look at the Think Ali-Frazier or Brady-Manning or Bird-Magic or even Coke-Pepsi.

Ohtani, who will be 31 in July, has won three National League MVP awards, was named the Rookie of the Year and has won two homerun titles. Judge is 32 and has won two American League MVP awards, named the Rookie of the Year and has won three homerun titles.

If there was ever a reason to start watching baseball again, I can give

Both the Yankees and the Dodgers are currently in first place. They could be headed for a possible World Series rematch. But we'll see how things are going in September.

It'll be fun to see how long Judge can keep this pace up. If he's hitting anywhere near .400 in mid-summer, everyone will start following his every at bat.

So, why not just start following his

DEAR DR. ROACH: I ate some tilapia last night, and within an hour, I had nausea and a headache, then vomiting a few hours later, and now diarrhea. What do you think is going on? -- V.P.

I would be interested if you felt any sensation of warmth on your face or neck or any flushing, as your symptoms are highly suggestive of a foodborne illness called scombroid poisoning. It most commonly happens after eating tuna, mackerel or bonito but can come on after eating other fish as well, including tilapia. The fact that it began so soon after eating a compatible fish is suggestive of the diagnosis.

Scombroid is the most common foodborne illness from seafood. Scombroid happens if the fish is not stored at a cold-enough temperature (at any time) after being caught. This is why you should refrigerate cans of tuna after opening them.

In addition to the flushing sensation, headaches, nausea, and vomiting, people with a scombroid toxicity can get rashes on their face, neck and upper chest. Sometimes they get burning or itching around their mouth.

If the symptoms aren't gone before the condition is suspected, then an antihistamine tablet, such as diphenhydramine (Benadryl), can help relieve symptoms. If there are stomach or intestinal troubles, a different type of antihistamine, such as famotidine (Pepcid), can have an added benefit.

If the vomiting and diarrhea are severe, intravenous fluids may be necessary, although my experience is that most cases are milder than this.

Physicians who make the presumptive diagnosis of scombroid poisoning should contact their local public health authorities to identify where the contamination occurred and help prevent other cases. Scombroid poisoning is vastly underreported.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I was recently in the hospital for a hip fracture and was discharged with oxycodone. I've been taking it for about two weeks after stopping morphine in the hospital (the dosage being 2.5 mg twice daily), but I am worried about withdrawal. I know two people who got very ill after suddenly stopping pain medication. -- J.S.B.

Withdrawal from opiates happens when people who are physiologically dependent on opioids suddenly stop taking them. A person can become physiologically dependent in as little as three weeks, or even shorter if they had been taking opioids in the past. Opioid withdrawal is very unpleasant, with abdominal symptoms (nausea, cramps, diarrhea, vomiting, etc.) and agitation being the most common symptoms.

The main way of avoiding withdrawal is to avoid staying on opioids too long. Changing from a long-acting opiate like oxycodone to a shorter-acting one may help. Using non-opioid pain relievers to minimize the need for opioids can also help. I have sometimes tapered down the dose slowly to try to prevent withdrawal; however, the dose you are on is already quite low, so the likelihood of withdrawal is small. I do want to emphasize that it's important to get off these drugs. Recent studies have shown that 25% or more of people who start chronically taking opioids after a hip fracture continue to take them for months or years, but opioids are not good long-term pain medications for most people.

Hasn't our manufacturing sector been devastated? The aim of the Trump tariffs is to increase what's been a winning formula. employment in one sector of the economy at the expense of the rest of the economy, which is inherently a bad deal. I used to vacuum them up all the time, but now that she has a place to put them, it's better." - L.E. in New Hampshire
