‘Robomate’ earns Qorvo Award for robotics team

Special to the Courier

ANTHONY, TX – The Anthony High School robotics team, A-Town, represented the Anthony Independent School District (AISD) at the BEST Robotics Texas State Championships in Dallas in December. A-Town competed with 99 teams from across the state, marking a milestone for the district’s growing STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) programs. A-Town qualified for State by advancing from a regional competition in New Mexico in October.

BEST Robotics is an intensive eight-week engineering and design challenge in which students receive a materials kit and are tasked with designing, building, programming, and marketing a robot to complete in themed missions. The Factoids themed competition centered on artificial intelligence applications. A-Town developed Robomate, a conceptual security-assistance robot designed to enhance school safety through facial recognition with direct communication links to security personnel and law enforcement.

A-Town advanced to the Wildcard Round in Dallas for the first time in program history. They earned the Qorvo Award for Most Elegant Robot.

The award recognizes excellence in robot design and engineering. Qorvo Inc. is an American semiconductor company that sponsors the award.

“This was my largest team to advance to state, with 17 students participating,” said Robotics Sponsor Priscilla Terrazas, a middle school science teacher. “What makes robotics special is that it’s about much more than building robots. Students develop skills in marketing, research, writing, presentation, and teamwork. Many of our students are also involved in athletics, band,

Minnesota officials should call off the mob

If Minnesota officials don't like President Trump's threat to invoke the Insurrection Act, maybe they should do more to tamp down the insurrectionary activity in their state. After an ICE officer was violently attacked by two illegal immigrants while making an arrest and shot one assailant in the leg in self-defense, anti-ICE activists – predictably enough – rioted.

In response to the unprovoked attack on the officer, Mayor Jacob Frey blasted ICE. Imagine, he implored, if your city “was suddenly invaded by thousands of federal agents that do not hold the values that you hold dear.”

Minnesota elected officials might want to consider whether portraying federal law-enforcement officers as an alien invading force is the best way to convince President Trump that he shouldn't resort to the Insurrection Act. They sound like Confederate officials complaining about, say, the 20th Maine Infantry showing up within the city limits of Richmond, Virginia, circa 1863. But they can't help themselves – this is how they think.

A state representative named Liish Kozlowski thought the new shooting provided more evidence that ICE officers “are not here for public safety or for fraud or for the well-being of anybody, but to hunt and harm us.”

Prior to the latest incident, Gov. Tim Walz implored Trump to “end this occupation.” This mindset is why the elected leadership in the state has justified and encouraged a low-grade anti-ICE insurgency. It doesn't involve guns or bombs, but other tools of coercion and intimidation meant to make it impossible for the federal government to enforce the nation's immigration laws in the state.

ICE officers are operating among a hostile population, significant elements of which consider them an occupying force and are determined to expel them. This is “Free Palestine” for the anti-ICE crowd.

Apologists for the agitators say, as Ilhan Omar has maintained, that they are only recording ICE officers and holding them accountable. This is nonsense. The activists almost always have cameras, true, but they are obstructing ICE vehicles, yelling at ICE officers and, if the opportunity arises, trying to “de-arrest” people.

The point of all of this is to create an atmosphere

Food for thought By Dr. Glenn Mollette

Keep doing your best

The best we can do right now is the best we can do.

We can be influencers and voices to those who help and serve us. However, we don't control the government. We can vote and that is powerful. We can let our leadership know how we feel and that is never a waste of time. We can make our contributions to causes that bring about change. We can volunteer in places that make a difference. After that, it's up to those we elected. After we do and have done all we can do, we have to sit back and wait and watch to see what is going to happen. Sometimes we approve. Sometimes we don't and sometimes we are unsure.

In the middle of conflict and uncertainty, we should never cease to pray for our President and leaders of government. They need our prayers. They also need our support. They need it when we feel they are right and they need it when we believe they are wrong. Just because we believe leadership may be wrong doesn't mean we withdraw our support. Usually when we feel they are wrong they need our support more but in a different way. That's when we say, “I support you but you need to go at this in a different way.” Sometimes those who lead us listen and it seems like often they don't pay any attention to us.

In the middle of all that is going on in America and the world we need to be busy going about our lives as much as possible. We need to work our jobs, take care of our families, pay our bills, plant and raise our gardens and do life as best as we can. Our country and houses of faith are made up of everyday, hard-working Americans. Hard working Americans of faith have made this country and will keep this country going.

Too often we have albatrosses that are hung around our neck. We've had Vietnam, Afghanistan and Iraq. They were financially crippling and killed thousands of our people. We don't want any more of that insanity but we are wondering if we are bound and determined for more?

What will Venezuela bring to America? What are we getting ourselves into? What kind of blowback is coming our way? Are we going to plunge head first into Iran and their problems? Here we go again placing ourselves where we don't need to be. Next, there is Greenland, Cuba and Mexico. Where will all this take us and cost us?

Let's pray for Venezuela that they can get their act together and elect their own leadership. If we can help them with their oil and benefit both countries then that would be a win-win.

In the meantime, let's do the good things we know to do. Our communities and towns need us to carry on, even when it seems like the world is trying to fall apart.

Estrada named FISD Athletic Director

By Sofia Maciel
Special to the Courier

FABENS – Mr. Emmanuel “Manny” Estrada has been appointed as the new Athletic Director for Fabens Independent School District. He will officially assume the position on February 6, 2026.

Estrada brings 20 years of experience in education and athletics, having served as a classroom teacher, coach, and campus administrator. He most recently served as Assistant Principal at Riverside High School, where he oversaw athletics and academic departments and helped lead the campus to an “A” rating from the Texas Education Agency.

Throughout his career, Estrada has held multiple coaching and leadership roles, including Football Coordinator, Head Track Coach, and Head Cross Country Coach, guiding student-athletes to district titles and state-level competition while emphasizing accountability, teamwork, and academic success.

Superintendent Dr. Rogelio Segovia welcomed Estrada to the district, saying, “On behalf of the Fabens ISD Board of Trustees and myself, I am thrilled to welcome Emmanuel Estrada to Fabens ISD. He brings energy, leadership experience, and a strong commitment to our student-athletes and coaches, and I am confident he will make a meaningful difference for our amazing students and community.”

As Athletic Director, Estrada is committed to strengthening Fabens ISD athletic programs by promoting character, academic excellence, and pride in the Fabens community.

speech and debate, esports, and theater, which strengthens the collaboration needed to succeed in competitions like this,” said Terrazas.

AHS seniors said the trip was a meaningful final robotics experience.

“While this is, unfortunately, the last trip I’ll get to go on, getting to reconnect with the people I don’t have classes with through robotics really is such a beautiful thing that happens on these kinds of trips, and I’ll forever miss that,” said Cody Vega.

Team captain and Lead Programmer, Cesar Arreola, believed Robotics helped develop his leadership skills. “Being captain of the robotics team, this year has been one of my most fulfilling opportunities in my high school career, especially considering the success of previous years. From collaborating on designing robots, to squashing bugs in our programming, to teaching the newbies how to work the power tools, every task we did came with the immense satisfaction of creating something together. Our hard work culminated in our state trip to Dallas, where we won an award,” said Arreola.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 26, 1875, a gang of men likely led by Pinkerton Detective Agency staff, who mistakenly believed that outlaws Frank and Jesse James were holed up in their family home, raided the house, leaving their mother, Zerelda James, permanently maimed and their 9-year-old half-brother, Archie Samuel, dead from an exploded flare meant to flush the brothers out.

• On Jan. 27, 1970, John Lennon composed and recorded "Instant Karma," his third solo single prior to the Beatles' official breakup, in one day. Though he remarked that he "wrote it for breakfast, recorded it for lunch, and we're putting it out for dinner," the song was actually released to the public almost two weeks later.

• On Jan. 28, 1777, poet, playwright and British General John Burgoyne submitted a plan to the British government that would isolate New England from the other colonies, which involved an invasion of 8,000 British troops from Canada moving south through New York and taking the Americans by surprise. Its failure that autumn launched severe criticism, and soon after Burgoyne retired from active service.

• On Jan. 29, 1929, The Seeing Eye, America's first school designed to train guide dogs for the visually impaired, opened in Tennessee. For the benefit of skeptical reporters, co-founder Morris Frank showcased his own dog, Buddy, on busy New York streets.

• On Jan. 30, 1994, American speed skater Dan Jansen set a new world record of 35.76 at the World Sprint Championships in Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

• On Jan. 31, 1961, a chimp named Ham became the first hominid in space, after a 16.5-minute suborbital flight, paving the way for the first human in space three months later.

• On Feb. 1, 1917, Germany returned to the policy of unrestricted submarine warfare it had suspended in response to pressure from America and other neutral countries. The previous day, German chancellor Theobald Bethmann Hollweg had announced that "the destructive designs of our opponents cannot be expressed more strongly. We have been challenged to fight to the end. We accept the challenge. We stake everything, and we shall be victorious."

After decades of misery, Indiana wins it all

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

Everyone knows that there are the traditional heavyweights in college football. Some of the football bullies include schools like Alabama and Ohio State and Texas and Georgia and Michigan and LSU and Oregon and Notre Dame and Oklahoma and USC and a few others that are always challenging for a title.

There have been other guys, smaller guys, who have tried to challenge the big guys over the last two or three decades, teams like Boise St. and Central Florida and BYU and Cincinnati and James Madison, but they just couldn’t quite accomplish that David vs. Goliath thing.

In what was an outstanding NCAA football season, the Indiana Hoosiers won the national championship with a 27-21 win over the Miami Hurricane.

Let’s try to understand exactly what this Indiana team has just accomplished.

Now I wouldn’t quite say that Miami is Goliath, but they are former champions, and I do know that Indiana has never had the talent to be David.

A lot of people know about the Hoosiers of coach Bobby Knight and the five NCAA basketball championships they own. Some may also know that this is the 50th anniversary of the 1976 Indiana team that won the title and finished undefeated.

Oh, and by the way, they are the last team to ever do that.

Well, Indiana’s basketball success hasn’t exactly trickled down to its football program.

Let’s put their football team into the kind of perspective only a UTEP football fan can understand.

Since 1969, the UTEP Miners have enjoyed just eight winning seasons, and we’re about as far away from a championship as any team can be. Well, since 1969 and prior to the last two seasons, the Indiana Hoosiers had just 11 winning seasons. That’s just 11 winning teams in the last 55 years.

And their all-time total of 715 losses makes Indiana the second-worst team in NCAA history. Only Northwestern, with 718, has lost more games than Indiana.

Heck, even UTEP has less losses with 655.

Which only goes to show you that anything is possible, except dribbling a football of course.

Anyway, the Hoosiers not only won this year’s national title, they are the first team to finish a season 16-0. It all started a year ago when the Hoosiers shocked everyone by going 11-2.

That makes them 27-2 over the last two seasons, but in the three years prior to that, Indiana was a combined 9-27.

Heck, once again, over the same last three years UTEP is 8-28.

Does that mean the Miners are about to explode onto the scene with 11 wins next year and challenge for a national championship in 2027?

Don’t bet on it.

But what Indiana did proves that there’s always hope for a team that has been a perennial loser. Who says things have to stay the way they’ve always been?

In this day and age, all a team needs to do is to hire a good head coach, hire a good coaching staff and convince enough big-dollar-donors to funnel enough money to the university so that it can go shopping for enough high-caliber players to change the program’s culture.

And then do it again year after year.

Ask schools like Texas Tech and Vanderbilt how they’ve suddenly turned into title contenders in almost every sport.

Indiana not only shocked the world by winning a title, it knocked off Illinois, Iowa, Oregon (twice), Michigan St., UCLA, Penn State, Wisconsin, Ohio State, Alabama and Miami, on the way to winning it.

No one can accuse this team of taking the easy road to a championship.

Of course, it doesn’t hurt when you hire a coach like Curt Cignetti, who no one had ever heard of, but did lead little James Madison to a 19-4 record in his two seasons there.

Cignetti has only been a head coach for four years (two at Indiana), his record is an astonishing 46-6.

It also doesn’t hurt to have the Heisman Trophy winning quarterback, Fernando Mendoza.

That’s the starting formula, a coach, a player and money. Every program in America is searching for that winning combination.

There are a few rich entreasures and former players associated with El Paso and UTEP.

Who knows, maybe even UTEP can start being David.

Avoiding the flu

There are some good tips out there for avoiding the flu this winter, and given the nature of the beast this time, it’s to our benefit to pay attention.

If you’ve listened on the news, you know that the flu this year is worse than usual, arriving a month early and launching like a rocket. This one is an influenza A virus, but not the one they were predicting. The vaccine was created for H1N1, but surprise, surprise, what quickly emerged was the H3N2 mutation (also called subclade K), which the vaccine isn’t geared up to tackle because it was created for H1N1. Hence the higher than expected number of cases. For the first time in years, the CDC is calling this a high severity for all age groups flu season. During December, in one week alone 19,000 people were admitted to the hospital.

Our job is to avoid the flu this year. Here is the advice from the CDC:

- Get your flu shot. Even though the vaccine isn’t aimed at the H3N2, it will still offer a bit of protection.

- Wash your hands – all the time. Scrub for 20+ seconds or use a hand sanitizer that has at least 60% alcohol if there is no soap.

- Wear a good mask if you go out.
- Don’t touch your face. If there are germs on your hands, that’s how it will infect you.
- Eat right, drink fluids, get enough sleep.

Get out those sanitizing wipes and disinfect the door knobs, kitchen cabinet handles and surfaces, everything that gets touched in your house.

Run your air cleaner, if you have one.

- Stay away from sick people. Flu likely spreads via droplets in the air when sick people cough or sneeze or talk. On a scary note, people can have (and pass around) the flu a whole day before they even have symptoms.

Stay healthy!

of violent intimidation and make every step ICE takes in the city as painful as possible. If this is the work of “legal observers,” as the euphemism has it, the Proud Boys at the Robert E. Lee statue in Charlottesville in 2017 were just “historic preservationists.” Jacob Frey says that the activists are protecting their city and looking out for their neighbors. In no other context, though, would the mayor make this claim. If, say, the FBI arrests gangbangers in Minneapolis, it’s not an assault on the Twin Cities – in fact, the opposite. As for neighbors, anyone arrested for any crime is someone’s neighbor. Just because the guy stealing hub caps or dealing drugs lives in a neighborhood doesn’t mean he gets legal immunity, or his neighbors get to try to prevent law enforcement from going after him. Often, the “neighbors” that the activists are supposedly protecting, by the way, are other activists who have interfered with ICE and been detained. In Trump’s first term, “the resistance” was an over-the-top term that applied to the fervent opposition to Trump, including massive street protests that were obnoxious, but lawful. In Minnesota today, “the resistance” is a more apt phrase. That’s why the Insurrection Act is in play. It is an antiquated law with a vague trigger, allowing the president to use active-duty military forces and federalized National Guard troops to quell “unlawful obstructions, combinations or assemblages.” If Trump goes there, it would be a big deal. It would be better, first, to try to provide more protection for ICE officers with other law-enforcement assets and, better still, if Minnesota could turn off the anti-ICE insurgency. Jacob Frey famously told ICE to “get the [expletive] out of Minneapolis.” Now, he should tell the agitators to get the [expletive] off the streets. A1C level a good measure barring other blood issues

DEAR DR. ROACH: I had an eye issue last year that led to blood tests resulting in an elevated A1C. I said that it wasn’t my blood; I am plant-based, exercise regularly, and don’t drink sodas or alcoholic beverages. Of course, they wanted to start me on medication for prediabetes, but I opted to see if I could fix it with dietary changes first. I was told to limit bread, pasta and rice, among other things that vegans eat, and proceeded to lose a lot of weight. (I don’t have much to spare.) During my recent blood test, my A1C was still high at 6.1%. Looking into it a bit further, my physician’s assistant realized that low iron can impact A1C readings, and I have always had low iron. I take a supplement almost daily with an orange. Please tell your readers about this so as not to scare them into taking medicine that they might not need. There still may be something going on with me, and I will be getting more tests to be sure that this can be corrected. But I am somewhat relieved that it is not prediabetes. – M.K.

The A1C level measures the amount of sugar that is found on red blood cells. For most people, it’s an excellent indication of how high their blood sugar has been over the past few months. Half of red blood cells die after 60 days in most people, so the normal ranges of A1C are appropriate for people who have red blood cells that live a normal life. Several conditions lead to red blood cells that live much shorter than this. Sick cell disease, autoimmune hemolytic anemias, and severe heart valve disease are among the diseases that have markedly shortened the lifespan of red blood cells. This can cause a person’s A1C level to be falsely low. A person with poorly controlled diabetes may have a normal A1C because the red blood cells don’t live long enough to accumulate as many sugar molecules on them. People with iron deficiency have slower red blood cell turnover or longer-lived red blood cells. This means that there is more time to accumulate sugar and a falsely elevated A1C level. Before we had the A1C test, we had blood sugar levels and glucose tolerance tests to make the diagnosis of prediabetes and diabetes. In people with abnormalities in their red blood cells, these are more reliable than the A1C level. DEAR DR. ROACH: When I lay down, my toes tingle. This has been going on for several years. I’ve read that this is a sign of diabetes, but my annual physical shows that my sugar level is normal. – B.Y.

Tingling toes are a common symptom of neuropathy, but there are many types of neuropathies. So, it isn’t a diagnosis as much it is a description of a nerve problem. While diabetes is among the most common types of peripheral neuropathies, it isn’t the only one. Since both legs are affected, it is less likely due to the direct compression of the peripheral nerve, which normally occurs on one side. The fact that it only occurs when you are laying down does suggest that there may be compression higher up, possibly in your spinal cord. Other neuropathies that normally affect both sides of the body include vitamin B12 deficiency and thyroid disease. Some medications can do it, but sometimes no cause is ever found. A neurologist is the ideal specialist to help diagnose this condition, especially one who specializes in neuropathy. Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Expansion of veterans cemeteries

by Freddy Groves

The VA awarded $77 million in grants for 20 veteran cemeteries across the country during fiscal year 2025. These grants will allow the establishment of the first state veterans cemetery in Alaska (to serve 12,000 veterans) and the expansion of 19 others.

Besides the establishment of a veterans cemetery in Alaska, the grants will allow expansions of existing veterans cemeteries in Arizona (2), Arkansas, Kansas, Kentucky (2), Massachusetts (2), Montana, New Mexico (2), North Carolina (3), Tennessee, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia and Wisconsin.

In fiscal year 2025, more than 43,000 veterans were buried in grant funded cemeteries, with 124 cemeteries supported since the program began in 1980. Over the years, grants have provided over $1 billion to these state cemeteries. The goal: to provide burial access within 75 miles of home to 94% of all veterans.

As an added benefit, veterans who are buried in VA grant cemeteries are also included on the Veterans Legacy Memorial site (www.vlm.cem.va.gov).

The VLM is an online memorial with the records of over 10 million veterans who are buried at VA National Cemeteries, VA grant funded cemeteries such as the ones receiving grants this year, U.S. Park Service National Cemeteries, and many others. The Legacy page for each veteran is a place for family members, friends and former military comrades to add their own memories of the veteran.

To find a veteran’s page, do a search on the VLM website. You need the veteran’s first and last name, but you can fine-tune your search by adding year of death, the cemetery you want to search, the branch of service and other information.

If you want to add details to your veteran’s legacy page, first look around at other pages to get an idea of the possibilities. You can add awards and decorations, career details, a military timeline, a biography, PDF documents that can include newspaper clippings, photos and much more.

Visit www.cem.va.gov/burial-memorial-benefits for more about the VA’s burial and memorial benefits.

• Making your own flavored yogurt is cheap and much better for you. You can avoid a lot of added sugar. Start with plain, unflavored yogurt and add: pureed fruits, toasted oats, honey, vanilla or almond extract, plumped-up raisins (add enough hot water to cover a tablespoon of raisins and let sit for a minute or two). Yummy.

• “My son was allergic to something in store-bought toothpaste, and the ones at the health-food and specialty stores seemed so expensive. I got a “recipe” to make toothpaste and it works so well that we all use it now. Just mix 1/2 cup of baking soda with a pinch of sea salt and some peppermint oil. A few drops at a time and stirred in. I keep it in a jar with a tight-fitting lid. Shake a bit into a little cup and dip your toothbrush into it. It scrubs off stains and is refreshing. The salty taste takes some getting used to, but it feels really clean for hours. Love it!” – K.S. in Florida

• “A pinch of salt tossed in the coffee grounds will cut the bitterness in lower-quality coffee. This is especially useful if you get a good deal on a can of coffee that’s not your normal brand.” – P.L. in New Jersey

• You can easily extend the amount of ground meat you have with lentils or oatmeal. They maintain a meaty texture and take up some of the flavor of the meat. There’s a reason Grandma used oatmeal in her meatballs, too: It helps the meat retain moisture.
